Clash over foreign, defense policies

Ford, Carter in 2nd debate tonight

AN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jimmy Carter says he's ready to slug it out with President Ford in tonight's debate on foreign and defense policies, but White House aides say Ford isn't preparing for what may be the toughest questions he'll face.

The second of the three debates between the two presidential candidates is scheduled for 6:30 p.m., PDT, at the historic Palace of Fine Arts in San Francisco. The three major commercial networks and the Public Broadcasting Service will televise the encounter.

There have been suggestions that Ford may be asked during tonight's debate about the effect on African nations of the racial slur that led to Monday's resignation of his agriculture secretary, Earl Butz.

And Ford may be asked about a report by the General Accounting Office (GAO) which says 41 American lives were lost in the Mayaguez incident last year because of hasty action and poor intelligence.

Ford advisers brushed aside suggestions that the Butz affair could come up in tonight's debate, but U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations William Scranton was asked in a television interview on Sunday about Butz' comments, and he said they "will hurt in the United Nations."

Scranton said he feared the incident could drive "a wedge in relationships between the West and the Africans."

Ford has been unavailable for questions on the Butz matter since it became public knowledge last Friday night that Butz had made an obscene racial remark about blacks. Ford's only comments about the Butz case were on Monday when he read a prepared statement in which he regretfully accepted Butz' resignation.

Mike Duval, a White House special counsel, said Ford has been given no special briefing material on responses he could make either to questions about the Butz affair or the Mayaguez incident.

Carter, who said after the first debate that he had not been aggressive enough, said of the second encounter, "I think it will be a much more freewheeling, much more aggressive exchange."

But White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford could be inhibited by the subject of tonight's debate because his words "will be interpreted by foreign leaders as reflecting American policy."

Jim Karayn, debate project director for the sponsoring League of Women Voters, said, "I think the candidates will be looser now that they've been through it once."

Almost certain to come up in tonight's debate is the report issued Tuesday by the GAO which is critical of the Ford administration's handling of the 1975 Mayaguez incident.

Forty-one Americans were killed in the operation. While the assault was under way, the Cambodians, who had seized the Mayaguez, a merchant vessel, released its crew.

The GAO, Congress' auditing arm, said a Marine assault on an island off the coast of Cambodia was ordered despite reports from U.S. pilots that the crew of the Mayaguez was not on the island.

"We disagree with that conclusion," Nessen said of the GAO report. "The President carried out the actions in the Mayaguez case and believes they were right."

The first debate, staged in Philadelphia, concerned economic and domestic policies. An Associated Press poll conducted as soon as the debate ended called it a draw with a slight gain in support for Ford.

Even before the 90-minute confrontation ended, spokesmen for both candidates were claiming victory. Similar claims can be expected tonight if neither candidate succeeds in dominating the discussion.

In the hours before they were to step on stage to accept questions from a panel of three reporters, the candidates followed a regimen similar to that before their first confrontation.

Both worked alone, studying briefing books prepared by their staffs. There were no reports this time that Ford was rehearsing for the meeting with his Democratic opponent by fielding questions from aides, as he had done before the first debate.

The format of the second debate will be the same as the first. A coin toss will determine which candidate gets the first question. He will have three minutes to answer. The questioner then can ask a follow-up query which the candidate has two minutes to answer. The other candidate then gets two minutes to comment.

Karayn said the panel has been asked to keep follow-up questions "on the same point as the original question."

A different panel and moderator are chosen for each debate. The moderator tonight will be Pauline Federick, international affairs analyst for National Public Radio.

S.D. man kills self after standoff with SWAT team

Barricaded himself in home

By JACK BURSON
PB Staff Writer

A young San Dimas man shot himself to death early today after barricading himself in his home and holding off sheriff's deputies for more than two hours, authorities said.

The victim, Rick Aris, 22, shot himself in the head with a .22-caliber rifle shortly after 4 a.m., ending the standoff which began shortly after 2 a.m. Aris' body was found in a chair in the attic of his home at 134 W. First St. Deputies, who earlier had entered the first floor of the small, frame house, had to climb a ladder leading into the attic.

The incident began at 2 a.m. when Aris' girlfriend, Kim Drake, 20, ran to the sheriff's station less than a block from the Aris residence and told deputies that Aris had hit her. When they arrived at the house, deputies said, they found Aris outside holding a rifle. He fired one shot into the air and ran inside the house, they said.

The next few minutes were spent removing Aris' parents, Donald and Mary Aris' from the house. A seven-man special weapons team arrived and the standoff began.

Deputies said they fired no shots, and tried to coax the young man from his position in the attic at the rear of the house. In the meantime, fire department paramedics, and ambulance and firemen arrived and stood by while the standoff continued. During that time SWAT team members managed to enter the first floor.

Then, shortly after 4 o'clock, deputies said they heard two shots. They cautiously climbed the ladder into the attic and found the young man dead.

Investigators said that the victim's parents told them that their son had been despondent lately. He was a 1972 graduate of Bonita High School where he had been active in athletics.

A total of 21 sheriff's deputies were involved in the incident.

STUDENT VIOLENCE

An enraged rightist student strikes at the body of a left-wing student hanging from a tree outside Thammasat University in Bangkok. At least 22 persons were killed when police stormed the university during demonstrations. More than 180 were wounded.

22 dead, 180 hurt in Bangkok student riots

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's defense minister seized power today after frenzied fighting between leftists and rightists over the return home of former military dictator Thanom Kittikachorn. Police said at least 22 persons were killed, most of them students, and about 180 wounded.

Rightists hanged two students and mutilated their bodies, witnesses said, and other bodies were set afire.

Radio Thailand said Defense Minister Sangad Chalawyu had taken power from Prime Minister Seni Pramoj's elected government and declared martial law. Sangad, 60, was armed forces supreme commander until named to Seni's new cabinet six days ago.

The city was calm as night fell with no overt opposition to the move.

Unconfirmed reports put the death toll at 35 or more in the riots at Thammasat University, with some bodies mutilated or burned. Fighting first erupted between right-wing and left-wing students, then waves of police firing machine guns stormed the leftists. Right-wing groups moved in again behind the police.

Then a right-wing mob of about 10,000 broke through the gates of Thailand's government house but did not enter the building itself, which was surrounded by 1,500 police.

Witnesses said rightists hanged two students, then set upon their bodies with sticks, gouged out the eyes and cut the throats. The body of another victim lay headless on the college grounds.

Associated Press photographer Chee Sae Chu saw a mob drag four students from the university gates through nearby streets, beat them, soak them with gasoline and set them afire. Strips of automobile tire were used to feed the flames. Chee said he could not tell if the victims were dead or alive when they were set afire.

Authorities arrested more than 1,300 university students.

Field Marshal Thanom, whose own regime was ousted by widespread student rioting in 1973, returned from exile to Thailand on Sept. 19 and was ordained as a Buddhist monk. He said he wanted to be close to his 91-year-old father.

Collision kills Corona woman in Cucamonga

A Corona woman was killed early this morning and an Alta Loma man was critically injured when their automobiles collided in the intersection of Grove Avenue and Arrow Highway in Cucamonga.

Highway Patrolmen who investigated the 7 a.m. accident withheld the identity of the woman pending notification of next of kin.

Patrolman were unable to establish the identity of the man.

At the scene, officers said the woman's car appeared to have been traveling northbound on Grove Avenue when it was hit broadside by the pickup truck driven by the man.

The impact of the collision knocked her car over a curb and between two traffic signals in front of a small market at the northeast corner of the intersection.

The truck flipped over on one side.

Both victims were taken to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland. The woman was pronounced dead on arrival. The man was admitted to the intensive car unit.

A dog riding in the car with the woman was injured, officers said.

L.A. supervisors call for reports on Fontana plant

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county Board of Supervisors has called for monthly reports on the success of a crackdown on smog violations at the Kaiser Steel plant in Fontana.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, a longtime foe of the steel plant, requested the information from the Southern California Air Pollution Control District Tuesday.

Hahn said that as many as 1,000 violations of smog regulations have been found at the plant but there has been no decision as to how many will actually be written up.

Weather

Continued fair and warm today and Thursday with light to moderate smog. High today 92, low tonight 60, high Thursday 91. The high Tuesday was 92, and the overnight low was 59. Thursday's sunrise 6:50, sunset 6:27.

Health officials reverse stand, now urging swine flu shots for children

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Federal health officials have reversed their earlier stand and now recommend swine flu shots for children, especially those who suffer from asthma or heart defects.

Deland Meriweather, director of the National Influenza Immunization Program, said here Tuesday that high-risk children already were receiving the vaccine at 16 test centers throughout the nation. He said he expects vaccination of normal children will begin on a national basis after a hearing at the National Institute of Health conference in Bethesda, Md., Oct. 22.

When the immunization program began Friday morning, only those over age 18 were eligible for the free inoculations.

Meriweather said children were excluded from the program not because they are safe from the disease but because tests showed "an unacceptable incidence of side effects in youngsters.

"We have identified everyone as being susceptible to the swine flu virus."

Ratification likely

Agreement reached in Ford Co. strike

DETROIT (AP) — The 22-day-old strike against Ford Motor Co. is expected to last at least another week while workers vote on a tentative agreement which puts union members on the road toward a four-day work week.

The three-year accord, reached late Tuesday, must be ratified by 170,000 United Auto Workers members who struck the No. 2 auto maker in 22 states at midnight Sept. 14.

Union officials say it could take a week to 10 days to win ratification and end the walkout, which has shut Ford assembly and manufacturing plants and halted the firm's North American production.

The agreement made it seem likely that the strike would not damage the nation's economic recovery. Financial analysts had said the walkout could have serious impact if it lasted longer than a month.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock said details of the settlement would not be announced until after it is reviewed today by the union's international executive board and on Thursday by the union's National Ford Council.

But sources said a key element in the pact is a provision for 13 more paid days off spread over the three years, in addition to 33 holiday and vacation days Ford workers now receive each year.

The union had demanded more paid days off as a first step in its long-range goal to shorten the work week to preserve current jobs and create new ones. The idea is to force the industry to hire more workers to replace those taking time off.

Sources said the additional time-off provisions are tied to attendance requirements — a worker must be on the job the day before and after his scheduled extra day off to get paid for it.

Other provisions, sources said, include general wage increases averaging about 3 per cent a year, an additional first-year increase of about 20 cents an hour, continuation of a cost-of-living protection formula, special cash supplements for retirees and improvements in fringe benefits.

Some union officials have expressed concern that the settlement may be rejected by the 25,000 skilled tradesmen at Ford, who are being polled separately this year. If the tradesmen reject the pact, UAW bargainers may return to the table before putting the pact before production workers.

The dual vote is in response to a revolt in 1973 by the independent-minded skilled tradesmen, who rejected the last settlement but were overruled by union executives.

As a concession to the tradesmen, the new pact is said to contain a special wage boost for them, starting at 25 cents an hour and depending on classification.

An end to the walkout and resumption of normal production also could be held up by unresolved disputes over local working agreements.

Diplomats have special interest in debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans listening as President Ford and Jimmy Carter debate big world issues probably will be concerned more with rent, food prices and taxes than with such concepts as "nuclear overkill" or the future of white supremacy in faraway Africa.

But it will not be so with thousands of envoys who staff 128 foreign diplomatic mission in Washington and nearly 150 delegations at United Nations headquarters in New York.

Trained in the esoterics of international relations, they will, through the night, be signaling their reports, analyses, interpretations back to their home capitals.

Both Ford and Carter will be aware of this. And the knowledge will impose on each even greater constraints than those that derive from their respective political party commitments. This is because they will be discussing America's vital interests around the world, interests each contender is pledged to preserve.

The listening diplomats, then, will be alert for clues that might suggest even the slightest switch in the foreign policy of superpower America. Because certain switches could affect the stability of rocky regimes, the budgets of nations on the brink of bankruptcy, the orientation of middle-road governments big or small.

So from the arctic to the Aegean, from Panama to Peking, leaders of states and their supporters will be hanging on the words and ideas of Ford and Carter, in some cases more so than Americans themselves.

In a changing world where old rulers are vanishing and new power systems arising, an ill-judged phrase, an exaggerated criticism by either candidate could inflame feelings or revive fading rivalries.

Nor would it necessarily do much good to remind a sensitive Panamanian or a sulky Palestinian that the heady rhetoric in an electoral showpiece will not bind a future administration to an inevitable and unchangeable course of action. Not all foreign nations are familiar with the processes of democracy.

The campaigners, even focusing mainly thus far on home affairs, have already through some statements generated international unease and resentment on certain issues.

Some examples:

—Early in 1974, Ford promised Panama he would continue plans to negotiate a new Canal Zone treaty "as quickly as possible." Panamanians were threatening sabotage if they could not regain 559 square miles of territory and operational control of the canal.

Ellsworth Bunker, chief U.S. negotiator, spoke gravely of the possibility of a "new Vietnam" unless there was agreement. But deferring to hawkish sentiment among Republicans, the President has stalled and negotiations have been suspended.

Panama strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos has displayed understanding of Ford's problems in an election year, but he now is in a hot spot himself. And he has to cope with disorders attributable at least in part to Ford's flat refusal to contemplate parting with America's foothold in mid-Panama.

—In July, Carter spread dismay among key European members of NATO by expressing skepticism toward the allies' existing nuclear strategy. He told an interviewer he does not believe in the real possibility of limiting nuclear war.

This strikes at the heart of NATO's central strategic doctrine of being able to counter an attacker with a "flexible response" involving an initial use of tactical nuclear weapons only. That NATO doctrine hinges on the supposition that time could be bought for "hot line diplomacy" to perhaps avert all-out nuclear war.

Carter's stated view was that once any sort of nuclear weapons are used then the whole nuclear balloon would go up. To anxious West Germans, Britons, French and other Europeans this implied a return to the long-discarded 1950s concept of "massive nuclear retaliation."

Carter has since amended his view, suggesting there could be a U.S.-Soviet understanding never to use nuclear weapons to settle disputes, a suggestion that has raised disbelieving eyebrows in Europe.

—Ford, in his quest for the Republican party's nomination, was engaged in beating back the challenge posed by Gov. Ronald Reagan. In March, he authorized Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to warn Cuba of a possible U.S. invasion unless Cuban troops quit meddling in other parts of Africa as they had intervened in Angola.

In May, Kissinger addressed a different kind of warning to allies in Southern Europe and notably to the Italians, who were approaching a crucial election. The United States, said Kissinger, would have to reconsider its position within NATO if fellow members admitted Communists into their governments. The action irked several of America's best friends in Europe, who took the view that such outside inteference could only help, not harm, the Communists.

— The Democrats angered Arabs by adopting a policy plank promising to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital. This led Arab ambassadors to send a telegram of protest to the party convention in New York.

The regular job of the diplomat is to scrutinize each statement, speech and phrase uttered by the candidates for clues pointing to foreign intentions of either a Ford or a Carter administration.

Most envoys watching the debate will know in general what to expect from the candidates. But the occasion will have value for foreign observers hoping to assess which man has the better grasp of today's realities and the more acceptable vision of mankind's tomorrows.

In reaching their conclusions, the envoys of most of the world's governments will have to allow for the special constraints under which Ford and Carter will be speaking.

Ford, they will recognize, has to protect his party flanks, knowing that any overt expression of softness toward the Communist world might cost him the active support of Reagan followers.

Carter, they know, will be freer to criticize, indeed to promise. But he has displayed awareness that some influential people abroad tend to regard him as something of a radical.

Doubtless, he will note his exposure to the advice and experience of the Democratic party's foreign policy establishment and to others who have helped him into the mainstream of Democratic liberalism.

'Just Another Dish' Valued at $1750

NORTHBROOK, Ill.—A major art exchange here reports that a man who found several "dishes" in his attic was amazed to learn that one was a rare collector's plate valued at $1750.

"While this price is unusually high," says J. R. MacArthur, director of the Board of Governors of the Bradford Exchange, "exceptional collector's plates have been appreciating quickly on the market. The secret of wise investment is in knowing what plate to buy when."

To aid the collector-investor profit from this booming market, the Exchange has put together a complete easy-to-use kit with pictures of all 859 major plates regularly traded, current market prices, an analysis from The Economist on the collectibles market and step-by-step guidelines for picking plates with extra ordinary potential.

For a brief time, this kit is available for just $1.00, with a 30-day money back guarantee. To order, send your name, address, zip code and $1.00 to The Bradford Exchange, 17238 Waukegan Rd., Morton Grove, Ill. 60053 before October, 16.

GOP ired at timing of Mayaguez report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are complaining about the timing and content of a congressional report that criticizes the handling of the Mayaguez incident.

The General Accounting Office, in a report issued Tuesday, said Marines were ordered to invade a Cambodian island and rescue crewmen from the captured cargo ship, despite reports that the crewmen were no longer on the island.

The report also said intelligence information incorrectly indicated the island would be defended by about 20 Cambodian soldiers, but the Marines landing on the island were met by fire from about 150 heavily armed men.

Eighteen Marines were killed or listed as missing as a result of the assault on May 15, 1975, and 23 Air Force men were killed in a helicopter crash two days earlier.

The report, released by the House international political and military affairs subcommittee, said the Cambodians began releasing the crewmen from another location while the attack on the island was starting.

Shortly after the release of the report, President Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, said Ford disagrees with the conclusions. He said Ford "carried out the actions in the Mayaguez case and believed they were right."

Rep. Larry Winn Jr. of Kansas, one of two Republican members of the House subcommittee that released the report, noted that the document was released the day before Ford and Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter were to debate foreign policy.

"I'm sorry that someone saw fit to release it now, because I was told it wouldn't be released until after the election," Winn said.

Winn said the report raised generally legitimate questions, but he said he had been told by a subcommittee staff member it would not be released until after the election "because it could — they didn't think so, but it could — become a political issue."

But Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the subcommittee, said timing of the release "was never a question." He said the report had been held up by the National Security Council, which is controlled by the White House, because of a dispute over what portions of the report should be seen by the public.

Fascell said the NSC had at first wanted to keep the entire report secret, but the subcommittee had refused, leading to negotiations that did not end until late September.

The report was harshly attacked by Lawrence Eagleburger, an assistant to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. He called it "totally inadequate and misleading."

The GAO report concluded:

—U.S. officials should have relied on and checked further U.S. jet pilots' accurate reports that all or most of the Mayaguez crew appeared to be on a fishing boat and not on Koh Tang Island, which the Marines raided to rescue them.

—Accurate U.S. intelligence that about 150 heavily armed Cambodian soldiers were on the island never reached planners of the Marine raid, who thought the Marines would be resisted by about 20 soldiers.

The GAO report praised the general effectiveness of the military. "The performance of U.S. forces was inspiring," it said.

An intro to 9 MAC bidders

Seventeen candidates are seeking council seats in the Nov. 2 election should Diamond Bar voters approve formation of a Municipal Advisory Council (MAC).

To assist voters in making more informed choices when they go to the polls, nine of those candidates will be introduced today

They are Virginia Lineberger, George Resh, Brenda P. Engdahl, Robert Newsom, Lorraine Hildenbrand, Ronald G. Foerstel, Donald Stokes, George Martin and Anthony Rentz.

(Martin and Rentz did not submit photographs to the Progress Bulletin.)

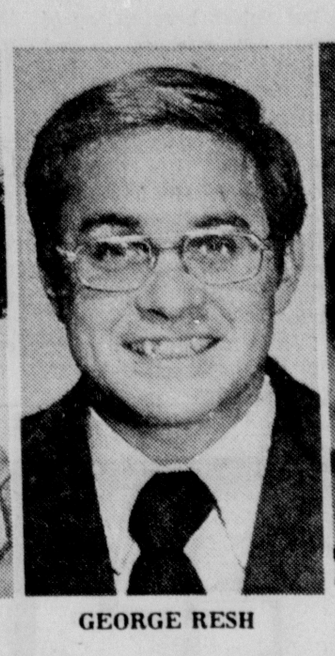

VIRGINIA LINEBERGER

Mrs. Lineberger of 845 Bridle Drive, is a utility sales representative. She has lived 22 months in Diamond Bar. She has had training in business and cosmotology and now is attending Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut.

She is president of the Diamond Bar Democratic Club, a member of the Education Committee of the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association, a cheer leader (instructor) mother for the "Tough Guys," a Pop Warner team, and a PTA member at both Lorbeer and Golden Springs schools.

She and her husband Max have three children, Debra, 21, Tanya, 13, and Max Jr., 8.

"MAC would be a voice representing our community in reaching and maintaining our objectives — making Diamond Bar an easingly improved community in — which to live, work and rear our families," she said.

GEORGE RESH

Resh, 36, 23900 Minnequa Drive, is a senior marketing representative with Cutter Laboratories. He has lived 10 years in Diamond Bar.

He has a B.A. degree from Cal State Fullerton in sociology and has completed course work for a master's degree in public administration. He is writing his thesis on Diamond Bar MAC.

He is active in Lions Club, Boy Scouts and is chairman of the MAC Committee of the Homeowners Association.

He and his wife Connie have two sons, Brian, 12, and Eric, 11.

Resh believes Diamond Bar must have a MAC. "There are three goals I would like to accomplish as a councilman," he said. "They are to establish a community MAC office, to bring back the Diamond Bar Community Coordinating Council and, within 30 days of the election, adopt bylaws to be sent to the county.

"I also would set a limitation of two terms for any individual MAC member. New ideas are essential if MAC is to survive as a viable representative of the community."

BRENDA P. ENGDAHL

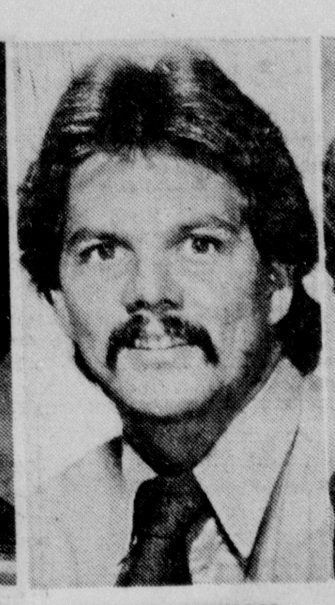

Mrs. Engdahl, 34, 24047 Decorah Road, is a former airline stewardess and ticket agent currently involved as a school instructional aide and homemaker.

She has lived in Diamond Bar for four years. She is a USC alumna. She has served as nurery school secretary, school classroom helper, Cub Scout Den mother and coach, and a Bible study teacher.

She and her husband, the Rev. Richard C. Engdahl, have three children, Derek, 10, Damon, 7, and Kirk, 2.

"It is important to bring a MAC to Diamond Bar to define boundaries, and to provide voters a voice. It will serve as an example to other unincorporated areas looking for an alternative to incorporation.

"The most important reason, however, is to unite our community, to eliminate the distinction of north and south Diamond Bar. Grand Avenue is not a Mason-Dixon line. I would like to make Diamond Bar a better place to raise our children," said Mrs. Engdahl.

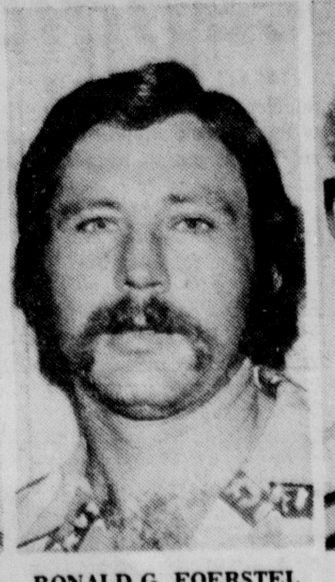

ROBERT NEWSOM

Newson, 25, 119 S. Prospectors Road, is a real estate broker. He has lived three years in Diamond Bar. He has attended Mt. San Antonio College and been active in the Homeowners Association, the area boards of Realtors and the National Notary Association.

"MAC would help accelerate the re-opening of Sycamore Canyon Park, set up programs to motivate the outstanding leadership qualities of Diamond Bar youth, attract good, clean business to stimulate employment and a tax base to help alleviate property taxes," he said.

"My leadership as a conservative would help stop any spending without the community's approval. I believe the community should make the major financial decisions."

Mrs. Hildenbrand, 42, 23934 Decorah Road, is a Realtor associate. She has lived 11 years in Diamond Bar. She is past president of the Diamond Point Swim and Racquet Club and a PTA worker.

She is chairman of the ways and means committee of the Homeowners Association. She and her husband Harry have three daughters, Desiree, 16, Roxanne, 14, and Heidi, 12.

"MAC would be of value to Diamond Bar," she said. "It would be a voice from the community to the country. It would prevent any neighboring community from annexing any part of Diamond Bar and it would put voters here on top of any zone changes, or any other changes, coming from county government."

Foerstel, 27, 22716 Casetas Drive, is a licensed contractor. He has lived 7½ years in Diamond Bar. He studied political science at Mt. San Antonio College and is a licensed pilot.

"It is my desire to work for the individual rights of the people of this community," said Foerstel. "MAC would provide the county with a two-way communication. It's true that MAC has no power, it is advisory, however, a MAC would give the community a needed focal point for solving the communication problem existing between county government and the perimeter of the county line.

"No additional taxation would result from formation of a MAC. Council members will be volunteers. We Diamond Bar residents have a need to actively influence the manner in which our community will develop."

Stakes, 46, 2416 Sunbright Drive, is an insurance agent. He has lived 13 years in Diamond Bar. He holds a B.S. degree from University of Nebraska.

Inmates criticize

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — Inmates at Rhode Island's prison here say they will ask a federal court for permission to use an inmate welfare fund to mail 100,000 letters critical of the prison's administration.

A prison spokeswoman said the state Corrections Department has denied permission for the mail campaign because it is "tough to justify that kind of expenditure as being for the welfare of the inmate population."

But an inmate leader said the prisoners voted overwhelmingly to apply the fund to the mailing costs and noted money in the fund includes profits from the inmates' hobby shop.

The inmate said the letters would be mailed to registered voters and would include a questionnaire which recipients would be asked to fill out and return.

The welfare fund generally pays for inmate activities.

Sacred cow

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Colorado's sacred cow is a bulky, meandering, cud-chewing beast that frightens people, tramples gardens and munches corn and lettuce oblivious to protests.

She looks just like any other cow, but has more freedom than most.

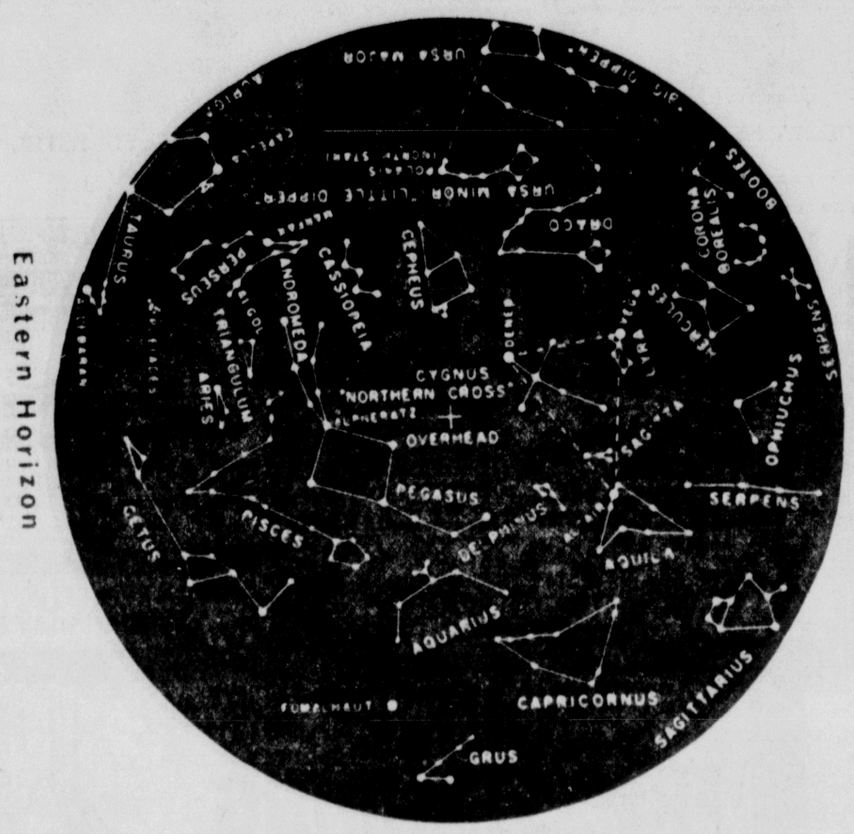

But she has more freedom to roam than household pets, or humans who stray onto another's property.

Capt. Phil Battany of the Boulder County Sheriff's department says it is legal for a cow to wander up to 50 miles from home — "All we can do is shoo them off the highway.

"If you hit a cow, you're responsible for damages to the cow, but the cow's owner is not responsible for the dents in your car." He says there is little law officers can do, under Colorado's range law, which dates back to when the 100-year-old state was a territory.

"People are afraid of cows, especially small children. The fellow who doesn't own any animals can't understand why he should have to pay several thousand dollars to fence in his garden to keep the cows out," Battany observes.

"They'll really trample a garden and they like to eat the corn and lettuce," he adds.

OCTOBER SKY — The sky as it appears in October will be discussed in the Citrus College planetarium shows offered to the public free of charge each Thursday at 7 p.m. this month.

Murder trial set Nov. 16

The murder trial of Pomonan Thomas Jackson Stewart was continued until Nov. 16 in Pomona Superior Court.

Stewart, 18, of 2474 Manville St., is accused of stabbing to death 23-year-old Bernardine Denise Brown in her home at 1107 Cornelia St., Pomona, on May 17. The victim was killed during a violent struggle in the kitchen of her home. Her two small children were in the house at the time their mother was slain, police reported.

The continuance was granted by Judge Glenn M. Pfau who appointed another pshcyiatrist to examine the defendant in the meantime.

Pomona police said that Stewart was a former friend of the victim. He has been in jail in lieu of $100,000 bail since his arrest several days after the woman was killed.

Planetarium shows offered at Citrus

"The Sun" is the subject of the Citrus College Planetarium show to be presented, without charge, at 7 p.m each Thursday this month.

Illustrated lectures will be given by George Carlson, Citrus College Planetarium director, who will discuss the relationship between the sun and the planets and the various apparent motions of the sun.

Carlson will also discuss the relationship of the sun to life on the earth and explore various aspects of the sun including what the surface looks like and how the sun was formed.

Citrus College Planetarium shows are offered each month during the school year, free of charge. A new subject is explored each month in a program which lasts approximately one hour. The Schlesinger Planetarium, a beehive-shaped building is located in the northeast section of the campus.

Dates for the shows are Thursday, Oct. 14, 21 and 28.

Spelling theft

Before Noah Webster compiled his dictionary, he produced one of the most useful volumes ever printed in English, the Blue-Back Speller. Unscrupulous publishers pirated the Speller and reprinted it without payment or credit. This led Webster to devise and champion the federal copyright law which Congress enacted in 1790 to protect the rights of authors.

He and his wife Valerie have three children, Curtis Dean, 13, Craig Donald, 11, and Dawn Elaine, 6.

"I desire to be elected and to serve on the first MAC for this community," said Stokes. "I feel things don't just happen and for Diamond Bar to continue to be such a desirable place to raise a family will take guidance by informed, interested people."

Stokes said Diamond Bar's areas of concern are planned zoning a dual school system, crime and normal growing pains.

"We have a limited amount of tax base which prohibits incorporation at this time, and it is my belief that our next best answer is A MAC.

"I live in Diamond Bar, make my living in Diamond Bar, my children attend Diamond Bar schools and we attend church in Diamond Bar. I patronize Diamond Bar merchants whenever possible.

"I have been active in many civic organizations. Therefore, I feel qualified to work with, and work on, any unsolved problems that face our community," said Stokes.

Martin, 36, 533 Camaritas Drive, is an instructor at Mt. San Antonio College. He has lived six years in Diamond Bar. He has degrees in psychology from UCLA and Cal State Los Angeles. As a volunteer he has trained profoundly retarded adults at Pacific State Hospital, a state facility in Pomona.

He and his wife, Penny, have two children, Jenny, 7, and Kim, 6.

"I worked for City of Los Angeles five years as an administrative analyst. I feel this experience would bring some proficiency in my dealings with the supervisor's office.

"MAC would bring the wishes of Diamond Bar residents to the immediate attention of the supervisors. MAC is a legally elected body of representatives and is therefor apt to have more influence with another governmental body than a homeowners association.

Rentz, 21, 24033 Meadow Falls Dr., is a junior at Cal State Fullerton. He has lived 13 years in Diamond Bar. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Rentz. He has two sisters, Mary and Kathy, and two brothers, Ron and Joe.

"As a participant in community activities, YMCA, Pop Warner football and Little League as a coach and umpire, I have had the chance to meet many Diamond Bar residents and hear their views both positive and negative concerning our community," said Rentz.

"The formation of the MAC in Diamond Bar will give our community a new and direct avenue of access to county government. This council, if run with discretion, could affect the changes residents desire. If elected, I will strive to see that it truly represents the Diamond Bar residents."

The remaining eight MAC candidates will be introduced in a future Progress Bulletin story.

New team of Reasoner, Walters smooth

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbara Walters and Harry Reasoner, newly teamed on the "ABC Evening News" and no doubt attracting more attention than the news they delivered, performed smoothly on opening night.

Their debut Monday held up despite the weight of heavy advance publicity and advertising. She didn't seem nervous, he was wryly gracious, and there were no major mishaps or misstatements.

There was also no hint that he had almost quit when ABC asked her to leave NBC's "Today" show, join ABC at $1 million per year and become the first female co-anchor of a nightly network televison news show.

Miss Walters seemed uncertain only once. It came after she quoted former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, who quit Monday amid controversy about an obscene racial slur, as saying "I think Jimmy Carter should now step up to the plate himself and resign for his indiscreet remarks (on sex and adultery) in Playboy.'"

Reasoner said, "I suppose the Carter people would object to having one verbal indiscretion linked to a racial joke."

That seemed briefly to fluster Miss Walters, as if Reasoner's unprompted remark were unexpected.

Such are the hazards of reporting an item and chatting about it in almost the same breath. In any event, it was all smoothed out by the second "feed" of Monday's show to ABC affiliates.

She again quoted Butz' contention that if he resigned because of a verbal indiscretion, so should Carter. Then she asked Reasoner: "Think that'll wash, Harry?" Not in the Carter camp, he suggested.

To show that ABC News means business with its new look, no doubt, and that Miss Walters hasn't lost her touch for interviewing the biggies, the show aired a taped satellite interview by her of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Even Sadat seemed caught up in the spirit of her ABC debut. At one point, during questioning about Lebanon, he said, "I declare this for the first time, Barbara, for you."

The show, preceded by a good luck message to Miss Walters from President Ford, closed with her one-minute, 45-second comment on herself, the new show and what she hopes happens on it.

She said most of those watching were probably loyal Reasoner fans, but some might be her "Today" fans or curious first-timers "drawn by the rather too much attention and overblown publicity given to my new duties and my hourly wage."

She didn't mention that the publicity included a recent interview of herself by herself in a women's magazine, but to all she pledged a big Reasoner-Walters effort "to bring you the best darn news program on the air."

Monday's opening effort was a fair start, and its ratings, expected in a few days, should be high. Whether it will be only a momentary lift from ABC's usual third-place ratings for evening news remains to be seen.

Several months will pass before any sort of trend can be reliably proclaimed. So stand by for the proclamation. If it comes from ABC, you'll know its high-priced gamble has paid off.

Increase in pensions

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county treasurer has warned the board of supervisors that inflation and higher salaries may force the county to increase by 50 per cent its contribution to employe pensions next year.

Treasurer-tax collector H.B. Alvord said Thursday the county may have to pay $77.5 million on top of the $145 million it now contributes to the pension fund that totals $1.8 billion this year.

Until now the county has met cost of living increases as they occurred through earnings from investment of retirement funds. But national actuarial studies have indicated that in the face of sharp inflation rates, that type of investment may be unsound.

Bugged king

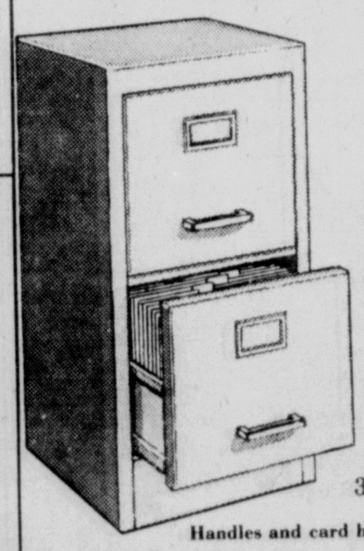

In the 13th century, England's King John hunted game near Kingsclere, in Hampshire, forcing the inhabitants to feed and house him and his retinue each time he came. On one visit, he was so badly bitten by harvest bugs he hastily departed. Grateful townspeople erected a weathervane in the shape of the insect, and it still tops the church there.

City council okays federal action

Work program may create 250 jobs here

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

A federally-funded work training program that may create as many as 250 new jobs in Pomona has been approved by the Pomona City Council.

The program, under Title I of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), now goes to the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors for approval.

If approved there, the city will administer a $766,520 program by subcontracting with local agencies and businesses for work training positions.

Shirley Smith, administrative coordinator for the program, said the city will not be the employer under this program.

"The city will be contracting for on-the-job training, classroom training, vocational education, work experience and manpower services, and will be responsible for monitoring programs to check compliance with federal and county regulations," said Mrs. Smith.

In other business Monday, the council refused the request of Jack Hoxsey, director of Parks and Recreation, to fill the vacant superintendent of parks position.

Despite Hoxsey's characterization of the position as "key" to the Parks Department, the council chose to leave the position vacant until its mid-year budget review in December or January.

The position has been vacant since the resignation of Roger Taylor on Sept. 3.

Councilman Benjamin Ochoa told Hoxsey that after studying the department's organization chart it appeared the ratio or supervisorial personnel to other employes was too low — meaning that cuts should be made.

"I'm not convinced we need that position," said Ochoa.

When asked for his recommendation, City Administrator Jerrold Gonce told the council he couldn't recommend filling the vacancy since he might have to propose eliminating the post or its companion position, superintendent of recreation, in the forthcoming management reduction plan.

"What we keep looking at is the fact that we take in $17 million a year and spend $20 million — the difference made up in federal funds and that's not a very reliable way to operate," said Councilman Charles Bader.

Hoxsey protested, saying that it was the general fund that was facing a deficit, not parks and recreation which has its own tax rates.

He noted that five positions had been cut from his budget this year in cuts totaling $114,000. His protest was to no avail, however, as the council voted unanimously to withhold filling the vacancy.

Bingo balls to bounce in Chino

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino residents are going to get that chance to play bingo.

After months of controversy, the City Council voted 3-2 Tuesday night to adopt an ordinance that allows bingo games conducted by non-profit groups for charitable purposes only. The new law puts into effect the city's option under a state law approved by voters on the June ballot.

Councilman Leonard Frketich's motion to approve the ordinance was seconded by Angel Martinez. It also received a favorable vote from Mayor Bob McLeod.

Opposing the ordinance were council members Eileen Carter and Pete Garcia, both of whom have expressed a strong distaste for "gambling."

Mrs. Carter warned that adoption of the bingo law might prove "expensive" for the city. Fees paid by groups sponsoring the games may not cover the city's cost of issuing a license, she noted.

The councilwoman said she had had phone calls and letters from persons on both sides of the controversial issue. "Those who oppose it do so on moral grounds."

Garcia, who said at an earlier meeting that he disapproved of gambling because he has a "duty to my forefathers", noted Tuesday that he had not changed his mind. "I'm still against bingo."

McLeod told councilmen he had received letters opposing the games from Church of Christ in Chino and Chino Valley Reformed Church. Also, the mayor received a note from Albert Petti, Chino resident, opposing bingo.

Several persons addressed the council after McLeod reopened a public hearing prior to the scheduled adoption of the ordinance.

Paul Askier, president of the parent-teacher group at St. Margaret Mary Catholic Church, said bingo would provide a "social evening" for many persons. He said he represents 2,000 families at St. Margaret's who favor bingo; and the games will offset costs of religious education there.

Mrs. Thomas McCarthy, a resident, said bingo playing would not be infringing on anyone's rights.

The Rev. Terrell Berry of the First Southern Baptist Church in Chino said "gambling is wrong. The form doesn't matter; it's a sin against God." He noted that 395 members of his church had urged him to speak against gambling in the city.

HE'LL CLOCK DEBATERS

Checking out his stopwatch is Louis W. Cockerham, Claremont High speech and debate coach, who will be limiting the time that the participants of the second presidential debate tonight can answer questions. Cockerham said it is quite an honor to be invited to serve as timekeeper. He said he would like Ford and Carter to engage in a direct exchange of ideas instead of the rigid structuring of the first debate.

Ford, Carter at mercy of Claremont speech teacher

By GEORGE MacLAREN

Television viewers watching the presidential debate at the Palace of Fine Arts in San Francisco tonight will not be aware that an important person off-camera, the timekeeper, is a Claremont High speech and debate teacher.

Louis W. Cockerham, whose special open house last Tuesday night produced an amazing surge of interest in a faltering speech and debate program at the high school, flew to San Francisco late Tuesday night for his special participation in the second of two presidential debates.

The debate tonight on foreign policy is being sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

"I consider myself the secretary of seconds or the monitor of minutes," Cockerham quipped.

"I am really looking forward to meeting the candidates, and being a part of the historic event" Cockerham said.

"However, I feel that the debates could be more meaningful if the candidates faced each other and participated in a dynamic exchange of ideas," he said.

Cockerham had received a telephone call Saturday from the National Endowment for the Humanities inviting him to be a consultant and timekeeper.

"I'll probably be pushing buttons and keeping records for accounting purposes," he said.

When Cockerham returns to his teaching duties Thursday, those at Claremont High will know they have a celebrity in their midst.

NEA president speaks here

Quality education is up to teachers

National Education Association (NEA) President John Ryor Tuesday told 400 Pomona teachers to "get off the floor and stop serving as an economic doormat.

"Create solutions," the 40-year-old educator said.

Ryor, a high math teacher from Battle Creek, Mich., told members of Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) meeting in the education Center auditorium, that it is their roles to be "participants in, not just subscribers to quality education."

The time has come, Royor said, for public school teachers to form special interest groups for children because "others don't care."

He said that NEA and teachers "want students to emerge from schools as productive and useful citizens."

He told the teachers that conditions outside the classrooms are responsible for continually lowering test scores in the public schools.

"Eighty-five per cent of the teachers who were in the classrooms when the scores were high are still there," he said. He blamed social change, television and lack of parental interest.

Ryor told the teachers that change could not come from NEA, but would have to come from the local level, from APT in Pomona.

He said a "double standard" had existed in the past in public education with governing boards living in a moral penthouse and teachers living in an economic basement.

Collective bargaining, he said, "is a must if you wish to make changes.

"Teachers cannot be expected to be all things to all people," Ryor said. "Educators cannot solve all the problems of society."

The teachers, who earlier had demonstrated outside the school board meeting and overflowed the board room at the beginning of the meeting, received Ryor with enthusiasm giving him three standing ovations.

Ryor was invited to Pomona by officers of APT, an affiliate of the California Teachers Association (CTA), a state chapter of NEA.

APT is exclusive bargaining unit for Pomona's public school teachers under California's new collective bargaining law. Their 1976-77 contract still is in negotiations.

School offer slated

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Pomona school board today at 3 p.m. will deliver to officers of Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) its "bottom line" offer on 1976-77 contract negotiations.

School board president Mary Montes made this announcement at the beginning of school board meeting Tuesday as teachers, at the Education Center to hear a talk by National Education Association (NEA) president John Ryor, packed the board room.

The offer, Mrs. Montes said, would be delivered first to the officers, then distributed to teachers as quickly as it could be gotten off district presses.

Mrs. Montes did not explain what the "bottom line" offer included only to say that it "carries the values for which you have been fighting."

All through the summer, district representatives and APT negotiators have been unable to agree over scope of what is negotiable and what is grievable. Money has not been an issue.

Mrs. Montes said the board had spent considerable energy on preparing the 58-page document and she described it as "very close to what we consider a final product.

"We will urge you and your associates to make this document available to every member of your unit.

"We ask you to study it at least 72 hours before you make your decision. It is very important in that it is our first agreement reached under the Rodda Act (California's new collective bargaining law), and it has not been easy. It has been a very painstaking task."

As Mrs. Montes finished speaking, the teachers filed from the board room into the auditorium to hear Ryor speak.

Before the school board meeting began, a number of teachers carrying placards demonstrated in front of the Education Center.

Ontario

$2.1 million city yard approved

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The Ontario City Council approved a $2.1 million project for a city corporation yard Tuesday night as a backup project in its bid for federal Public Works Act funds.

In approving the allocation of $104,100 to retain the architectural firm of Anthony and Langford to design the city yard, the council designated Dennis Wilkins, assistant city manager of public services as the city's representative for the project and approved the payment schedule. The council made it clear that the $3.4 million City Hall project gets first priority.

City Manager Roger Hughbanks assured council members "If it becomes obvious to us that having a second project would jeopardize the first project then we will pull the second project."

The federal bill for financially distressed cities to provide public works and capital improvement projects was recently approved by President Gerald Ford. The program will be administered by the Economic Development Administration. Applications will be considered on a first-come, first-served basis.

At its last council session, Ontario approved the preparatory steps for architectural designs and site development for a new City Hall to be located in an area bounded by Cherry and Plum avenues and B and C streets. The two-story building will be in a new city-county complex housing governmental offices on seven acres in the downtown area.

The allocation for the city yard project is within the city's budget and would complete the first three steps of the project. Hughbanks said "The council should understand that this is a backup project. Hopefully, we will get it, but we realize the chances are remote."

Mayor Paul Treadway voiced concern about the backup project becoming the first choice of the selection committee. He asked which of the two proposed projects would put the most people to work. Hughbanks replied that the City Hall project would be "more labor intensive."

Councilwoman Faye Dastrup asked about the possibility of including the east wing expansion of the library as a third project under the new federal act.

"The chances of securing either project are almost beyond odds. A third project would not be justifiable. I don't mean to throw a damper on it, but I am trying to be realistic," Hughbanks responded.

Treadway pointed out that if it was a question of priorities, then he personally would opt for the City Hall to be number one.

"The federal guidelines call for more points in the scoring table for more labor intensive projects. On that alone, the City Hall would come out ahead," Hughbanks assured the mayor.

La Verne planning ramps for handicapped residents

The City of La Verne has decided to ease the lot of its handicapped residents.

Yielding to a plea by Howard G. Wolff, a coordinator to the disabled at La Verne College, Mayor Mike M. Morales has aggreed to form a committee that would take into account the needs of the disabled in the community.

The first show of concern will be the construction of ramps along the city's community building this month, so that voters confined to wheelchairs could cast ballots more easily at next month's general elections.

Subsequently, the council hopes to build ramps at intersections throughout the city.

Wolff told the council that there were many improvements the city could make to help the disabled and the aged, and he called for a committee that could identify some of those needs.

"La Verne could be a model city for such a project," he declared. "The council could help the blind, the deaf, the aged and the ones in wheelchairs."

"We have apparently forgotten our disabled," Morales declared. "I'd like to do something about that as soon as possible.

He said he would bring the proposal to the attention of a joint meeting of the council and its commissions later this month.

Safe school routes mapped

As any nervous parent will attest, one of the most traumatic elements in sending a seven-or eight-year-old off to school is the thought of that busy street that must be crossed between home and classroom.

Armed with admonishments of "be careful" and "look both ways" just doesn't seem to be enough, and no city or school district can afford enough adult crossing guards to ease the worry.

In Pomona, the city and federal government have teamed up to offer some extra help.

Funded by a grant from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the city has devised maps of all the neighborhoods around elementary schools — showing the safest routes to school.

Deepak S. Ubhayakar, assistant director of the project, said he and Eric Halsey, another city employe hired under the grant, surveyed each of the areas and talked with school administrators to come up with the recommended routes.

The maps were passed out to some 9,700 elementary students in the city last week, along with a brochure about traffic safety, provided by the Automobile Club.

Chaffey board okays pay hike

The Chaffey school board Monday night approved two six-per cent salary increases to be given over a two-year period to the district's non teaching employes.

Classified employes will receive a five per cent boost now, retroactive to July 1 and 2½ per cent increases in March, 1977, September, 1977 and February, 1978.

Ballot tax measures

Despite the rising public demand for tax relief for property owners only two measures affecting property taxes will appear on the November ballot. Nevertheless, both Prop 10 and Prop 11 are significant reforms in the right direction.

Prop. 10 strikes at an evil which caused the colonists to rebel against King George III and form the United States. That was taxation without representation.

During the past couple of decades there has been a growing form of government within California which has reinstituted this hateful taxation without representation. These are the various local agencies, generally special districts, which exercise legislatively authorized "joint power" agreements and levy taxes on property without voter sanction.

Legislation usually has permitted these local agencies to be formed without voter approval, most often by agreement of the local supervisors and city councils. Generally the Legislature has fixed a maximum taxation rate which can be levied without submission to the voters.

The local agencies have been mushrooming for mass transit and other purposes and are contributing to the already heavy burden of the property owners.

To restrain the further expansion of such districts the Legislature has placed on the ballot Prop. 10 which would require voter approval of all taxation on property to be levied by any local governmental agency whose boundaries transcend county lines. Unfortunately it is not retroactive and will apply only to such agencies created after passage of the act. The reasons for its being limited to newly formed agencies seem only based upon political expediency. Those already entrenched presented too much opposition to such a tax restriction. This should not influence a negative vote however since it is a case where half a loaf is better than none. The protection provided property owners is a worthwhile one. Voters can approve this principle and hope for it to be extended to existing agencies in future proposals.

Prop. 10 is endorsed by both Senate President Pro Tem James Mills and Speaker Leo McCarthy and no organized opposition has surfaced.

A second proposal, Prop. 11, also affecting property taxes, would change the present methods of assessing personal property the same as that for real property.

According to Senators John Holmdahl and Walter Stiern and Assemblyman Daniel Boatwright, all considered legislatively taxation experts, the proposal is "basically technical".

They represent that the measure "will not shift any tax burdens and will not increase anyone's taxes". There is no indication otherwise to the contrary and the proposal has not been opposed on the ballot nor does there appear to be any organized opposition.

An indication that Prop. 11 will alter the format of property tax bills is seen in the explanation of the proponents. Stating that present law requires the tax bill to show both the full assessed value of property on the tax bill as well as the amount represented by the 25 per cent of full value upon which the tax is based. Apparently this dual figure will be eliminated with the new measure and the tax bill will merely reflect the amount upon which he is being taxed.

As the proponents say, it is basically technical.

Appropriate reminder

Everybody has been so preoccupied in celebrating the Bicentennial that the quindecimcentennial has gone almost unnoticed.

It was 1500 years ago this summer that mighty Rome fell, recalls UPI writer Jack R. Payton. Historians agree, anyway, that A.D. 476 was the year that the last western Roman ruler was deposed by Germanic invaders.

Since Americans are particularly fond of citing the fall of the Roman empire as an example of what happens when a country forgets its founding principles, the reminder is appropriate in this Bicentennial year.

The Romans took their own sweet time rising and falling, however — about a thousand years. That doesn't even count the eastern Roman empire, Byzantium, which lasted another thousand years, until 1453, or very nearly to the discovery of America.

The western Roman empire endured for half a millenium. Before that, the Roman republic had been around almost as long, until Julius Caesar crossed the Rubicon and put an end to it. By contrast, the United States has been in existence a mere 200 years.

If we hang on as well as the Romans did, it will be some accomplishment.

Disturbed by Indian exhibit

Dear Editor:

The other evening I visited the Pomona Fair. My husband and I were delighted with the rabbits in the exhibits. They were beautiful and as well cared for as God's little creatures could be.

Then I visited a building I wish I had never seen. I just finished a wonderful study on the Indians of North America this year with Dr. John Hatfield of Cal Poly Pomona. When I entered the Indian exhibit building I felt a sense of shock and sorrow. The white man is still using the sacredness of Indian spirituality, art and culture for his own glory and greed. I am sorry the officials of the fair are allowing such a display of ignorance and error for the fine people of Pomona and surrounding areas.

Hooray for NEA!

Dear Editor:

Your editorial of Sept. 28 pondered what the Equal Rights Amendment has to do with quality education. It will mean equal educational opportunity for female students and equal opportunity for women in the ranks of educational administrators, which, by the way, is a major weakness of the Pomona Unified School District in particular. This goal of equal education and opportunity for women is far from a reality today. Hooray for NEA! At least they have the foresight to recognize social justice and the needs of half of our population and to attempt to do something about it.

I am signing my name to this statement because I am proud of it, will defend it personally and am not afraid to disclose my identity, as the writers of the statement critical of the Pomona teachers were. Many readers of that letter are highly suspicious that it was written by administrators of the district or very close relatives.

I challenge you to print this letter in toto.

Army missiles fall short

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon has the disturbing habit of sweeping its mistakes under the secrecy label.

Government accountants have found, for example, that the Army's short-range air defense system is "troubled by uncertainty and high cost." But the accountants don't have authority to overrule the military brass on secrecy. So the misspending has been concealed from the public.

We have obtained a copy, however, of the General Accounting Office's classified study of the short-range air defense system, which the Army called SHORAD for short. Clearly the taxpayers are entitled to know how their money has been wasted. As for military security, intelligence experts concede that the Soviets know all about the SHORAD system because of its widespread use in Europe.

The GAO report uses such words as "inadequacies" and "deficiencies" to describe the system. To call it a "troubled" system would be a mild assessment.

The story necessarily is technical. The GAO study covered three basic components of the SHORAD system: Chaparral missiles, Roland missiles and anti-aircraft artillery.

The Chaparral missiles form the backbone of the SHORAD system. These missiles, mounted on tracked vehicles, were rushed to Europe at the end of the 1960s to fill an "urgent" defense gap. They were supposed to be integrated with existing military weapons such as the Navy's Sidewinder missiles.

The arriving Chaparral missiles, according to the government accountants, had some "performance weaknesses" such as "an inability to engage incoming aircraft, inadequate warhead, etc." This was a polite way of saying they didn't work, since their function was to engage incoming aircraft.

The Army recognized the deficiencies and intended to correct them. Or, to put it in the bureaucratic language of the Army brass, they "planned an expedited product improvement program."

But the accountants reported despairingly: "Although the Army has since come up with a number of improvements, they have not yet been made to the system. Thus the system in use today is still essentially the same as originally fielded."

Here are a few of the "performance weaknesses" that the GAO cited:

—The Chaparral is a sunshine weapon. Its "unrestricted use . . . is possible only in fair-weather conditions." Unfortunately, this occurs only about 25 per cent of the time. Thus an enemy need merely strike during bad weather.

—Unhappily, Chaparral missiles are also susceptible to enemy countermeasures. In fact, enemy planes could "essentially" have complete protection from Chaparral attack, the report warns.

—Chaparral missiles also have limited tactical use. Worse, the "survivability" of their launch unit in combat is a major problem.

—The Chaparral system relies on the gunner's ability visually to detect and distinguish between friendly and enemy aircraft. This is difficult to do with planes flying faster than sound. Thus in gloomy weather, the missile operators might shoot down the wrong planes.

Assuming that (1) it's a nice day, (2) the Chaparral's operators are keen-eyed and quick-witted, (3) the enemy planes are flying away from the missiles in a "tail chase" situation and (4) the Chaparral unit can survive combat long enough to shoot back, the system still has "insufficient lethality to consistently destroy (enemy) aircraft."

Indeed, the "probability of aircraft destruction is only 36 per cent," assuming the warhead is delivered almost directly on target.

If all this sounds discouraging, the Army remains undeterred. A spokesman acknowledged to us that "the GAO report as it pertains to Chaparral limitations is accurate" but promised that the Army is turning the Chaparral into a "potent" weapon.

Footnote: Despite all its problems, the Army wants to buy more Chaparrals, a move that the GAO labels "questionable." The Army is also developing the Roland as part of the answer to the Chaparral's inadequacies. But now "serious problems" have developed in the Roland program.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The Treasury Department has a strange concept of whom its main consumer representative should be. According to the Federal Register, he's supposed to "help achieve a flow of ideas between the consumer and Treasury." But the first man to get the job was a broker, named David Lefeve, from Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith. His newly named successor is an IBM official, Dr. John Webster.

Sacramento scene

Filling constitutional offices

By EARL G. WATERS

What happens when a vacancy occurs in one of the state's constitutional offices? These are that of the governor, lieutenant governor, controller, secretary of state, attorney general and superintendent of public instruction. It also includes members of the Board of Equalization. Excepting for the latter who are elected by district, all are elected by statewide ballot.

Provision has been made for the lieutenant governor to automatically succeed to governor whenever a vacancy exists by reason of death, disability, or resignation. But in the case of the other offices the vacancies which occur between elections are filled by the governor. Thus someone who never has been sanctioned by the voters can be named to high office, including that of lieutenant governor, and may succeed to governor without ever having stood before the electorate.

This very point bothered Congress when it was providing a method for filling a vacancy in the office of vice president. Prior to the new law which permits thePresident to appoint a vice president in the event of a vacancy, the office remained unfilled until the next election. To avoid the filling of that high office on the decision of one man they made it subject to Congressional approval. Both President Ford and Nelson Rockefeller underwent intensive screening by both houses of Congress before being permitted to take office as vice president.

Taking a leaf from that precedent the Legislature has proposed a constitutional amendment which would make any appointment by the governor to the state's highest elective offices contingent upon approval of both houses of the Legislature. It appears on the ballot in November as Prop 9.

If passed these offices, which have been heretofore filled by the governor alone, would be filled between elections only with the approval of the elected representatives of the people.

Assemblyman Mike Antonovich, who usually sees issues in good perspective, appears to have missed the point in this one. He argues against the proposal contending it would tie the hands of the governor and preclude him from exercising his normal executive functions.

His reasoning is faulty. Present law requires most all of the governor's appointees to state office be confirmed by the Senate. These are the non-elective subordinate administrative posts. It stands to logic then that when a vacancy occurs in one of the highest state offices, normally filled by a vote of all the people, they too should be scrutinized by the Legislature.

As Assemblymen Bill Lockyer and Bob Wilson, writing ballot arguments in support of Prop 9 contend, "It seems only reasonable to require an individual who might take office outside the election process be carefully considered by as wide a representation as possible."

The advantages of having the elected representatives screen appointments to high state offices are many. The simplest example is that it provides the governor with an easy out when being pressured by an individual or group to whom he is indebted. But it also protects the people against a willfull governor not dedicated to their best interests.

Gubernatorial appointments do not always get the careful screening one might expect. The failure to thoroughly check the background of an appointee could install in an elective office someone whose past could not stand the scrutiny of an open election campaign and who could do great harm during his tenure in office.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Last year there were over 3.5 million major crimes committed in California. Statistically that means that during the next 14 months, you or a member of your immediate family has a 50 per cent chance of being the victim of a major crime.

By major crime, I mean a crime like murder, rape or burglary. If it's murder, our laws allow many a convicted murderer to be out of prison in 7 years. Should that criminal be under 23 years of age, he could be released after only 6 months. — And what does the convicted murderer or rapist put up with if he does get to prison?

Well, at 3 of our prisons he will find a golf course waiting for him. The chances are good that he will even have his own television set in his private cell. One thousand five hundred convicts already do. And those who determine the policies for our correctional institutions are now planning to provide conjugal visitation privileges even for inmates in solitary confinement.

—All this while honest, law abiding citizens in many areas of our state are lurking behind barricaded doors and windows, fearful when they have to go to work or school or the grocery store, because our permissive judicial and penal system allows ruthless criminals to freely roam the neighborhood streets.

TV for deaf? Possible, but . . .

NEW YORK — (NEA) — I am one of the 14 or 15 million Americans who are known to be deaf or hard of hearing. I have otosclerosis, a freezing of the tiny stapes bone in the middle ear.

I believe the condition formed over many years and became serious during the Vietnam War. One day I received shrapnel in the leg, but never heard the grenade explode, and I knew I wasn't quite right.

In any event, I'm fortunate. My disease has been surgically corrected. Well, almost. Occasionally in conversation someone will ask me how I am and I'll respond, yes, it does look like rain.

Still, sometimes I think I hear too much. For instance I am told that many people, including some medical people, believe hearing loss is associated with such matters as stupidity, paranoia and sexual impotency. Sexual impotency? I resent that.

All of this personal data is not by way of inviting you to send in pennies. Rather my wish is to identify myself with an important but generally unknown social issue of the moment: television captioning for the deaf, otherwise known as the Line 21 dispute. As it is now and always has been, TV for the deaf is something like eating without swallowing. If one can't hear as well as see what is going on, the crudity of the tube is, alas, incomplete. A solution is at hand, however, I.e., the Line 21 dispute.

Roughly speaking, Line 21 is the first nonvisual horizontal band above a TV picture. Screens are composed of 525 such lines, the top 21 of which are unseen and are used by the industry for technical matters. For example some of the lines are necessary for the synchronization of the picture. Others are used for test transmission. Line 21, however, is an open line, not vital to set requirements, and thus it has a potential that the others do not.

One potential is public service to the deaf. Line 21 can be used to relay caption television programs to any set fixed with a special decoding device. The meaning of this technology should not be minimized. Captioned TV would allow those with a hearing loss to read dialogue, the same as everyone used to read at the silent movies. Admittedly, much of what is said on television is not worth reading, much less hearing, witness the foggy chatter of Mary Hartman, but social progress is never without its objections.

The caption technology is not experimental. It is a present reality. Engineers at the Public Broadcasting Service perfected the methods, and affiliated stations in certain areas have tested the transmissions successfully. Any program can be captioned. Any television set can be adjusted for decoding. Those who want the service would have to spend about $125 for a decoding device; all other television sets would receive the regular, noncaptioned, picture.

It is an amazingly simple answer to a complex problem. And yet, as of now, chances are slim to zero that it will soon become a reality. The Federal Communications Commission has the power to authorize caption use for Line 21, yet it is hestiating because of unanimous opposition from the four commercial networks.

Why the network disfavor? They give several reasons, all of which are lame. For example they say the captioning equipment is too expensive. In fact, here would be a one-time cost of about $50,000 (the price of a 30-second commercial on prime time) and thereafter about $1,000 for each 60-minute program captioned. Actually, the networks wouldn't have to buy anything if they choose not to; Line 21 captioning would not force caption, it would merely allow it.

The real reason for network opposition is that the executives want Line 21 reserved for more profitable use. Such as the transmission of printed commercials. To hell with the hard of hearing — unless one day they wish to read a nice captioned pitch about mouthwash.

Ah, capitalism. It is stronger than all forces except public contempt. I invite you to write your scorn to any or all of the networks. Address to: The People In Charge Of Keeping The Deaf In The Dark.

Nuisance phone calls stopped

Thank you for what you did for me to get nuisance phone calls stopped.

Somehow you made it real to the telephone company and police department that something would have to be done or the county would have another mental patient to support.

People at the police department and General Telephone Co. were very prompt in their action to stop the calls. They were extremely kind to me.

After they took action I received only two calls. I am grateful to know there is a way to stop some of what children call fun. — P. S., Pomona.

In your first letter you explained that you were 76 and under a doctor's care but couldn't get any sleep because children called you between 2 a.m. and 2 p.m.

You signed a complaint at the Pomona Police Department after writing to Action Line, making it possible for the phone company's security department to investigate.

We too are grateful to phone company representatives and the police for the courtesy to us and help to you.

At our request, Jack M. King, area public affairs administrator of the phone company, provided a list of tips for people bothered by emotionally disturbed callers or pranksters. This information was published in Action Line September 17.

I will be 64 next month and for two years I have been trying unsuccessfully to obtain my California Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance money.

This year I received requests from the Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance organization for my wage statement for 1975, my mortgage schedule with the information of taxes paid, my birth certificate and a copy of my property tax statement from the county assessor's office in San Bernardino.

I have done all these things and, again, hear nothing.

This is a frustrating experience for me, a widow trying to make ends meet.

In desperation I am appealing to you to see if you can unravel and resolve this problem. — M.P., Ontario.

After we contacted the Franchise Tax Board, you received word that your most recent refund due you as a senior citizen is on its way to you. It amounts to $128.01.

You were told that the board's records indicate claims for two previous years have not been received. You were asked for copies of those claims.

We are currently restoring a 1966 El Camino. All the outside trim was available through Chevrolet but none of the dash parts were. We have spent many hours in wrecking yards and on the telephone to obtain all the parts necessary to proceed.

We are trying to locate someone who does a process called vacuum metallizing (we think this is the right process). This is to recoat all the parts of the dash that look like chrome but are plastic. We located four people in the Los Angeles area that do this process. Two refused to mess with it. One said he had a 1,000 piece minimum and one said he had a $25 minimum.

We have run out of sources. Maybe you will have more luck. — P.B.

We haven't had more luck but maybe our readers will There are car restoration buffs among them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You must rely on yourself today! Allies who usually support you will not be in your corner. They may even oppose your basic motives.

He wants to reduce sex drive

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 20-year-old male who would like to know how to reduce my sex drive, at least to the point where I can stop scheming to take to bed virtually every girl I see.

I find it difficult to piece my life together and am trying to direct my energies into more constructive channels. Although this problem might sound hilarious to one who doesn't have it, let me assure the smirkers that it is very disconcerting.

In anticipation of your reply, "Seek professional help," I doubt if I could discuss this problem with anyone face-to-face. But I do need help and I hope you will take me seriously.

If the customary witty signature is required, I'll sign myself — Over-Sexed And Under-Achieving

Dear Over And Under: You are to be commended for recognizing your hyperactive sex drive as a problem. In reality, it is the symptom of a deeper problem. Most womanizers simply view themselves as a combination of Super-Stud, Casanova and God's Gift.

I AM going to suggest professional help because it's the only way to go. (Saltpeter is no solution.) You must learn why you are so insecure about your manhood that you have a compulsion to score every time a pair of female legs walk by. THAT'S the problem.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago we bought a spring and mattress which cost a lot more money than we had a right to spend.

Walter (my husband) insists on sitting on the edge of the bed when he takes off his socks and shoes (worst thing in the world for a mattress). When he does it I can just hear the springs go boinnnng.

Walter knows how this burns me up but it makes no difference to him. I'm writing this letter at midnight. He just did it again. I'm so mad I could spit carpet tacks, so please excuse the penmanship.

Walter's only response is, "Mattresses are made to be used. Get off my back." Please, Ann, come up with a good answer so I can show it to him. — Betsy

Dear Betsy: Walter's answer can't be improved on. Mattresses ARE made to be used. Get off his back.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read something that made my blood boil — "A Guide For Second Weddings." It said, "White gloves are out. So are bridesmaids, ushers, swans sculptured in ice, chrysanthemums and other big flowers that belong at funerals. Skip the pictures of the bride and groom feeding each other cake. It's corny. Nix on throwing rice, blue garters, and little people perched on top of the wedding cake. If the bride can't bear to part with all the old traditions, there's one left. She can have a great big fight with her mother just before the ceremony."

Isn't that an insult to all mothers of brides? Also, why must a second wedding cut out all the lovely trimmings? — Seething In Sarasota

Dear S.: Those instructions were not engraved on the Rosetta Stone, dear. They are merely suggestions. The last "suggestion" was written tongue-in-cheek, to add a little humor. Take what you like and leave the rest.

Mentioning unmentionables

A stock comic character in the American culture is the husband in a lingerie store buying wispy things of nylon and silk for his wife.

Like so many of our traditions, this concept of the embarrassed male amid the unmentionable is valid — but for the wrong reason. What he is embarrassed about is that he can't remember his wife's size.

For the average husband, buying a girdle, a slip or a chiffon peignoir is no more exciting than buying a bag of potatoes or a pound of ten-penny nails. True, some of the little boutiques and "specialty shops," with their dim lighting and deep carpets, display their filmy wares in such an erotic manner that an inexperienced male might think he had unwittingly stumbled into a harem or a massage parlor.

Usually, however, when a man's face turns red and his eyes bulge as he contemplates a frilly doo-dad, it is not because of lustful thoughts (Ah there, Jimmy!) but because he has just caught a glimpse of the price tag.

The female of the species, particularly, I suspect, the shop girls themselves, cherish the quaint illusion of Big Bumbling Boy paralyzed with shyness in the nylon jungle. They strive to intensify his agony and ecstasy by naming their colors "Nude" and "Blush Pink." Brassieres are "Low and Behold"; nighties are "Passion's Veil." The shop girls call their wares "intimate apparel." The male, with refreshing frankness, calls his baggy drawers "underwear."

The difference, however, with which the typical husband enters an underwear emporium, his irresolution as he stands in the center of the floor, the reluctance with which he approaches a simpering salesgirl are caused by the sudden realization that he has no idea what size of anything his wife wears.

Say he wants to buy her a slip for her birthday.

"What size?" asks the salesgirl. Nosey baggage.

"Size?" That vague look comes over his face. There are different sizes?

"Is she tall?" asks the girl. "As tall as I am?" And she smiles. Oh, those smiles!

"Tall?" he says wonderingly. He is beginning to sound (and feel) like a mental case, but the fact is he has no idea how tall his wife is. He couldn't guess what she weighs within 30 pounds, and challenged, he couldn't come up with the color of her eyes or even her hair. In fact, he's beginning to wonder if he HAS a wife. (So is the shop girl.)

Buy some stockings instead — that ought to be safe. All right, long, medium, short? Seams or seamless? Open or closed? Sheer or shirred? And what color?

"Aren't they — aren't they all the same color, sort of brown?" he asks desperately. He's been married 30 years, and it has never occurred to him that there are different shades in women's stockings. (He claims.)

These simple perplexities are drastically compounded, of course, if the man is foolhardy enough to be buying one of the more complex nether garments. (Here this column risks an X-rating.) The male is hopelessly lost, floundering, crimson-cheeked, and the clerk is in imminent danger of having hysterics.

All things considered, the best bet for your wife's birthday is, as it has always been, a box of candy and a handful of flowers.

Dr. Lamb

Young for a bone problem

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor told me I had osteoporosis and has given me hormones and a drug called Motrin to eliminate pain. Your column about how to stop progression was invaluable. What kind of doctor does one have to go to for treatment of such an illness or can you recommend proper exercises?

My doctor says just swim but there must be more I can do at home on my own. I am 35 years old and have many years ahead. I want to be strong and capable. How can I get a daily program of exercises for myself. Which exercises are good and which are harmful?

Your column was read to me two weeks after I was told of my illness. I thought I was destined to be a cripple at the prime of my life but you have opened a new door for me. Please tell me what type of doctor I should see.

DEAR READER — I am a little surprised at your diagnosis as osteoporosis (softening of the bones) is usually seen in women after the menopause, not a young lady like you. You could have some reason for early bone changes but it would certainly not be the usual type of osteoporosis. Porous bones can develop because of underlying endocrine problems or from disuse or nutritional problems. Your case is so rare, unless there is a known underlying cause such as an overactive thyroid, that I believe you should ask your doctor to have you seen by a specialist in rheumatology and possibly by another one in endocrinology. If possible see if you can be referred to a university medical center.

With osteoporosis at your age I agree that you should make every effort to stop the process now. The best combination treatment seems to be that developed at the Mayo Clinic of a combination of sodium fluoride, calcium and vitamin D. This work has been published in recent medical Journals and a rheumatologist or bone clinic should be familiar with this form of treatment.

Yes, exercises are important. For this aspect of the problem you should be seen by someone in physical medicine. You need exercise to prevent deformities and you also need to learn how not to injure yourself. You do not want to strain a weakened vertebra and you can prevent that by learning how to lift avoiding positions that unduly strain your vertebra.

I agree that swimming is a wonderful exercise and it is a good choice for a person with your problems. However, each person needs a set of exercises designed for his or her particular problem. You will need exercises to help maintain muscle strength to maintain posture.

Be sure you get enough calcium in your diet. That means either as tablets or capsules or as a a quarter of milk a day. Women who are on a calcium deficient diet are five times as likely to develop osteoporosis as women getting enough calcium.

Although osteoporosis is quite rare in a person of your age it is quite common in women after the menopause and in men 20 years older — about 70 or beyond. Hormones may delay the process for a while, but seem not to be the total answer. For more information on the disease and what to do about it I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Make beautiful music

Music is God's gift and everyone can share music. You see, I believe anyone can sing. Do you know the most beautiful song that you can sing? Just say, "How can I help you? I'm sorry, forgive me." Or, "I was wrong. You were right."

It is possible for your life to be a melody. All you have to do is pass on the most beautiful music in the world.

And what is that? Why, it's a word of encouragement to someone who's down. You can say to them, "Don't quit." "I'll help you!" "It's possible."

Positive statements and words are music to many a human ear. So go out, make your life-a melody, and sing a word of encouragement to someone you meet today.

Make your life a melody so that you are fun to live with.

Love and war man doubtful

Our Love and War man is having trouble buying the contention by one counselor that husbands and wives frequently misinterpret each other's gestures and tones of voice. Husbands and wives may pretend they misinterpret in order to keep the peace, says he, but they rarely really do. Or if they do with any great frequency, he believes, they have no business being together. He's rather positive about this, isn't he? Too positive, maybe.

The prettier the bird, the uglier its song. Generally, generally. The peacock screams, the macaw screeches, and the quetzal utters something between a yell and a croak.

The taste buds on the tongue do not work at all when they're dry.

Q. "You said the expression 'stone broke' came from the practice in England centuries ago of breaking the stone on which a craftsman worked, if he couldn't pay his debts. All right, where'd we get the expression 'bankrupt'?"

A. Similar story, different country. In Italy centuries ago when a moneyleader couldn't pay his debts, the bench on which he set out his coins was broken. Literally, "banco rotto." Such be the origin of bankrupt.

Maybe only the Seasoned Citizen remembers those various elderly motion pictures wherein some pilot flying over the Andes might say the weight of ice forming on his wings was dragging his plane down. A minor technical error, that. It's not the weight of the ice that endangers the plane, but the fact that the ice changes the contour of the wing, thus altering the flow of air over it. Or so a get-it-right subscriber reports.

STOCKINGS

Client asks how the garment people came to the questionable conclusion that the average American woman buys 11 pairs of stockings a year. They divided the number of sold stockings by the female population, I suspect. Women who work for salaries are said to buy closer to 24 pairs a year. Did I tell you why female file clerks tend to wear out more stockings than most other girls? It's that bending down to get into the bottom drawer of filing cabinets.

If what you say tends to be brief and pithy, you are thought to talk much in the fashion of the residents of that ancient Greek city called Laconia, which is where we get the word laconic, reports our Language man.

More men than women just can't stand cottage cheese and fried liver, but more women than men don't like buttermilk and kidneys.

ORDINANCE NO. 2000
AN EMERGENCY AND REGULAR ORDINANCE OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, CHANGING THE DEADLINE PERIOD FOR IMPOUNDMENT OF DOGS PRIOR TO THE ADOPTION OR DESTRUCTION FROM SEVENTY-TWO HOURS TO FORTY-EIGHT HOURS, BY AMENDING SECTION 4-71 OF ORDINANCE NO. 1673, ALSO KNOWN AS THE CODE OF THE CITY OF POMONA.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Pomona, California, as follows:

SECTION 1. That Section 4-71 of Ordinance No. 1673, also known as the Code of the City of Pomona, California, is hereby amended by changing the phrase "seventy-two hours" and the phrase "seventy-two hour period" in the first and third sentences, respectively, of said section to the phrase "forty-eight hours" and the phrase "forty-eight hour period", respectively. In all other respects, said Section 4-71 shall remain in full force and effect.

SECTION 2. Pursuant to Section 510, Charter of the City of Pomona, this ordinance is declared to be an emergency ordinance for the immediate preservation of public peace, health and safety of the City of Pomona, because the Pomona Valley Humane Society pound has a surplus of dogs and are above the number of dogs per dog run required by the County health codes due to the fact there has been an accelerated program to pick up unleashed dogs in the City of Pomona and adjacent areas, and if the pound must keep all dogs so captured for seventy-two hours, this condition which is detrimental to the pound and the dogs under their care will continue to exacerbate. The only other alternative the Pomona Valley Humane Society has to alleviate the situation is not to pick up all the stray dogs they can now pick up in Pomona and the adjacent areas, and if they do this the menace of unleashed dogs roaming the streets will continue to be a severe problem to motorists and pedestrians within the City of Pomona.

SECTION 3. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this ordinance, and it shall become effective as a regular ordinance upon its second and final reading, published as required by law and the elapse of 30 days.

APPROVED, PASSED AND ADOPTED this 20th day of September, 1976, as an Emergency Ordinance.

Rain brings China A-bomb fallout to Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A Sept. 26 nuclear bomb test in China has produced radioactive fallout "in significant quantities over Pennsylvania," state officials said today.

Thomas M. Gerusky, head of the state Bureau of Radiological Health, said weekend rainfall helped produce the fallout, and a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in Washington confirmed the fallout.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency had projected the fallout for Pennsylvania after a nuclear blast occurred at the Lop Nor testing site in western China.

Gerusky warned Pennsylvanians to carefully wash garden vegetables before eating them and he said there might be dangerously high radioactive levels in milk.

He said high levels of radioactivity were found in various samples of dirt, vegetation and rain water. He said the rainfall had brought radioactive particles from the atmosphere to the ground.

Gerusky said the radiation levels were the highest in Pennsylvania in many years. Tests have begun to see if further protective steps are needed, he said.

A major danger involves the level of iodine-131 in milk, he indicated. The radioactive isotope gathers on grass, is ingested by cattle and can be concentrated in the milk.

The fallout was first detected by the Philadelphia Electric Co.'s radiation monitoring program at the Peach Bottom nuclear power plant near the Pennsylvania-Maryland line.

After the original finding, the company took the extraordinary step of halting construction work at the plant Monday. Company officials apparently feared the high radiation levels were due to local problems.

The radiation findings were also verified by tests conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection and by the radiation monitoring program at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant near Harrisburg.

John Hope, a spokesman for the state Department of Environmental Resources, said people do not need to take additional precautions other than washing garden products.

He said the first tests of milk samples were completed late this morning and revealed radiation levels of 116 pico curies per liter. That is approximately the same level that existed during widespread nuclear testing in the early 1960s, he said.

"We would be more concerned if the levels moved into the thousands or tens of thousands," Hope said. He added, however, that officials do expect the radiation count to go somewhat higher than 116 pico curies.

"We're concentrating on milk because that's where there are health problems," Hope said.

He said experts believe there are no longer high levels of radiation in the atmosphere, at least over Pennsylvania.

"What we need now is more rain. If it rained now it would wash it away ...

"It's all down," Hope said of the airborne iodine 131.

Senate subcommittee report

Callaway brought pressure to bear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway exerted pressure on government officials in an effort to expand a Colorado ski resort in which he had a financial interest, a Senate subcommittee reported today.

Although there was no evidence that the pressures exerted by Callaway resulted in expansion of the Crested Butte ski area, which is located on federal land, the subcommittee found that his involvement showed insensitivity to potential conflict of interest and "raises serious questions of impropriety."

The subcommittee on environment and land resources rejected Callaway's claim that he was only interested in expediting the final decision on expansion of Crested Butte regardless of what the decision might be.

"It is the subcommittee's view that Secretary Callaway used the occasion to press for a decision ... favorable to the Crested Butte Development Corp.," the 175-page report said.

An 18-page report filed by the Republican members of the subcommittee charged that the investigation headed by Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., "is, by nature of its conduct and timing, an exercise for political advantage and excoriation."

At the time of the investigation, Callaway was President Ford's campaign manager, a position he resigned when the land deal surfaced as an issue.

The four Republican members concluded that "there was no testimony or evidence that pressure by Mr. Callaway had been used in the pursuit of his business interests."

The report approved by the five Democratic members focused on a July 1975 meeting in Callaway's Pentagon office with the then-undersecretary of agriculture, J. Phil Campbell, deputy undersecretary Richard A. Ashworth, and the associate chief of the Forest Service, Rexford R. Resler.

"Within a day or two of the meeting, Mr. Campbell, relying on what he had heard at the meeting, called upon the secretary of agriculture (Earl Butz) to 'push' the Forest Service to a decision which would 'positively designate Snodgrass Mountain as a logical expansion' of the Crested Butte ski area," the report said.

There is no question, the subcommittee said, that Campbell's memo to Butz "was an outgrowth of the meeting" in Callaway's office.

"Nor can there be any doubt that the memorandum called for the exertion of improper pressure on the Forest Service," the report said.

"In the subcommittee's judgment, the record compels a conclusion that the seed for this suggestion of improper pressure was sown during the Pentagon meeting with Secretary Callaway."

The subcommittee also found that Butz, in forwarding Campbell's recommendation, "himself desired a decision on Snodgrass Mountain specifically favorable to Secretary Callaway."

"The intention to exert highlevel pressure on the Forest Service process is manifest," the subcommittee said. However, the subcommittee added that "there is no clear evidence that the Forest Service's land allocation decision which made Snodgrass Mountain available for the expansion of the Crested Butte ski area is the result of pressures exerted by Mr. Callaway."

A tentative plan issued by the Forest Service in January 1975 for Gunnison National Forest recommended against allocation of Snodgrass Mountain to Crested Butte. That position was reversed in December 1975 when the Forest Service recommended that Snodgrass Mountain be made available as part of the Crested Butte ski area.

During that time, the Forest Service personnel responsible for the original recommendation were transferred to other positions. However, the subcommittee found that there was no connection between the transfer and the reversal of the Forest Service's position with regard to Crested Butte and Snodgrass Mountain.

Youth held in fatal beating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 17year-old youth has been arrested in the beating death of a Los Angeles printer over the weekend, police say.

Police said the youth was arrested late Saturday after being stopped for speeding and the arresting officer noticed the youth was covered with blood.

Robert Talbot, 47, was found dead in his Pasadena apartment and had been severely beaten arond the head with a blunt instrument.

The youth was booked for the investigation of murder, and investigators said they would petition to have him tried as an adult.

Up her Alley

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Julie McDowell knew that a runaway bowling ball bounding down a hill toward the glass front door of her office meant trouble.

"I saw the ball coming, rolling under a truck," said Miss McDowell, 19. "But I had this man on the phone and he just kept talking. I didn't know what to do."

She did the only thing she could. She watched the ball crash through the glass door and thud into her desk.

Police said the bowling ball rolled down a hill between Van Ginkel Lanes and Des Moines Technical High School and may have been doing up to 100 miles an hour when it crashed into the Hawkeye Cablevision office Thursday.

Grand Parade

The 125-member Mt. San Antonio College Marching Band will join the dozens of bands, drum and bugle corps and floats taking part in the Grand Parade Saturday as part of the 10-day London Bridge Days 1976 celebration at Lake Havasu.

The Lord Mayor of London, Sir Lindsay Roberts Ring, will serve as Grand Marshal.

The MSAC band, the largest to appear in this year's parade, is under the direction of Ashley Alexander. It is one of seven being brought to the parade by McCullock Properties, Inc.

The parade is one of the highlights of London Bridge Days, this year celebrating the fifth anniversary of the opening of the historic bridge at this resort city on the lower Colorado River.

Earthshaking letters

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The U.S. mail is to be delivered despite rain or hail or dark of night. Perhaps delays caused by "acts of God" are excusable.

The U.S. Postal Service here has found 11 undelivered letters postmarked March 27, 1964 the day Anchorage was hit by a disastrous earthquake.

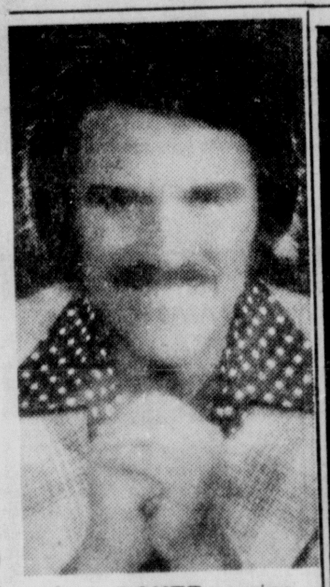

Apparently tremors loosened the screws which fastened panelling to the walls at the airport post office annex. The letters slipped through and were lost for 12 years.

When mail handler Bob Croxen, Jr., dismantled mail cases recently in preparation for the branch office move downtown, he found the long-lost mail.

Anchorage Postmaster Robert Opinsky said he initially returned the letters to their senders. Central Alaska Missions, Inc., of Glennallen, responded with a thank-you letter.

"They said they were going to frame it," Opinsky said.

Ten of the long-lost communiques were business letters, but the other two were personal, Opinsky said. One was sent from an Anchorage man to a woman in Brooklyn, N.Y. The other apparently was from an airman stationed at King Salmon to his wife in Denver.

DAVE BOYER, a singer and saxophone player, will give his Christian testimony today at 7:30 p.m. at the Faith Missionary Church, Pomona. His once promising musical career was nearly shattered by alcohol and drugs. Since his Christian conversion, he has recorded several sacred albums and conducts gospel concerts before youth groups.

Speech contest winner aired

Winners of a recent toastmasters area C-1 speech contest were John Gartland, "A Fish Trick," and John DeNault, "Gestures." Cal Bensema and Nollie Glover were chosen as runner-ups. All will be the C-1 representatives at the divisional contest Saturday.

Toastmasters is an organization dedicated to develop self-confidence and leadership through better speech.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE NO. 2801

AN EMERGENCY ORDINANCE OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, AMENDING ORDINANCE NO. 2784 OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, PROHIBITING THE ISSUING OF CERTIFICATES OF OCCUPANCY, BUILDING PERMITS, AND BUSINESS LICENSES FOR CERTAIN SEXUALLY ORIENTED RELATED BUSINESSES FOR A FOUR-MONTH PERIOD.

WHEREAS, The Council of the City of Pomona, California, passed Ordiance No. 2784 on July 19, 1976, prohibiting certain sexually oriented businesses from being located in the City of Pomona pending a study as to where these uses should be located; and

WHEREAS, adult theaters were not expressly included in said moratorium ordinance, and the definition of adult bookstore and adult theater was not included in said ordinance due to the fact that it was thought that the Planning Commission should define such uses; and

WHEREAS, at least one adult bookstore has already began business in the City of Pomona notwithstanding the moratorium ordinance, and adult theaters have threatened to come to the City of Pomona.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Pomona, California, as follows:

SECTION 1. That SECTION of Ordinance No. 2784, passed on July 19, 1976, is amended by including therein "adult motion picture theaters" and "adult mini-motion picture theaters".

SECTION 2. That for purposes of the moratorium and pending study by the Planning Commission and City Council, an "adult bookstore" is defined as follows:

"An establishment having as a substantial or significant portion of its stock in trade, books, magazines, and other periodicals which are distinguished or characterized by their emphasis on matter depicting, describing or relating to 'specified sexual activities' and 'specified anatomical areas', or an establishment with a segment or section devoted to the sale or display of such material."

And an "adult motion picture theater" is defined as:

"An enclosed building with a capacity of 50 or more persons used for presenting material distinguished or characterized by an emphasis on matter depicting, describing or relating to 'specified sexual activities' or 'specified anatomical areas', for observation by patrons therein."; and an "adult mini-motion picture theater" is defined as:

"An enclosed building with a capacity for less than 50 persons used for presenting material distinguished or characterized by an emphasis on matter depicting, describing or relating to 'specified sexual activities' or 'specified anatomical areas', for observation by patrons therein, including machines for individual viewing by patrons, commonly known as 'movie arcades'.

For purposes of the said definitions, "specified sexual activities" is defined as:

"(1) Human genitals in a state of sexual stimulation or arousal;
"(2) Acts of human masturbation, sexual intercourse or sodomy;
"(3) Fondling or other erotic touching of human genitals, pubic region, buttock or female breast."

For purposes of the said definitions, "specified anatomical areas" is defined as:

"(1) Less than completely and opaquely covered: (a) human genitals, pubic region, (b) buttock, and (c) female breast below a point immediately above the top of the areola; and
"(2) Human male genitals discernibly turgid state, even if completely and opaquely covered."

SECTION 3. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to erect, or construct, alter or maintain, or use or cause or permit to be erected, constructed, altered, maintained or used within the City of Pomona any building or premises which shall be used for, or designed or intended to be used for an adult bookstore, adult movie picture theater, adult mini-motion picture theater, adult entertainment establishments, nude photography studios, schools for nude photography, sexual encounter pariors, talk centers, weresttling and other bodily contact sports pariors, schools involving bodily contact such as (but not limited to) dance studios, massage schools, and physio-therapy studios, so long as the moratorium set by Ordinance No. 2784, and any extensions thereof, shall remain in effect.

SECTION 4. In all other respects Ordinance No. 2784 shall remain in full force and effect.

SECTION 5. Pursuant to Section 510 of the Charter of the City of Pomona, this ordinance is declared to be an emergency ordinance for the immediate preservation of public peace, health and safety of the City of Pomona because of proliferation of schools of physical contact activities, talk and encounter centers, adult bookstores, adult motion picture theaters, adult mini-motion picture theaters, and adult entertainment establishments and similar uses of land would not be beneficial unless properly regulated and assigned to certain zoning districts of the City not yet known until the above study is made.

SECTION 6. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this Ordinance, causing it to be published as required by law, and it shall be in full force and effect.

APPROVED, PASSED and ADOPTED this 29th day of September, 1976, as an Emergency Ordinance.

This poll points to disregard for life

CHICAGO (AP) — "What is the least amount of money you would take to push a button to kill a person inside a black box — (no one would ever know what you did)?"

A psychologists put that question to 200 persons around Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, D.C., in 1975 and to an additional 452 persons interviewed this year in St. Mary's County, Md.

Their answers, said Dr. Paul Cameron, point to a disregard for the value of human life in American society.

The people interviewed were divided into two groups. Those who acknowledged having deliberately killed someone — usually in military service — or having tried to do so were in one group. Those who had never killed or tried to were in the second group.

Forty-five per cent of those who had killed before said they would murder for money, Cameron said. The average price for them was $20,000.

Of those who had never killed or tried to, 25 per cent said they would do it and their average price was $50,000, he said.

"Lethality feeds upon itself," said Cameron, who teaches now at the Graduate School of Psychology at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif. He formerly taught in Maryland and did the studies at that time.

Cameron reported on his work recently at the annual meeting of the National Federation of Catholic Physicians' Guilds in Oak Brook, Ill. He elaborated in a telephone interview.

Cameron said an estimated 20 million persons in the United States have "participated in killing humans in various contexts."

"Their attitudes toward life cannot help but influence our society in a deathward direction," he said. "Part of the lethal trend toward death is the growing power of the military mind in our society."

Returning military personnel do not, as Americans tend to think, just come home and "eat apples, bake pies, have children," Cameron said. They return with a different, more lethal view toward life, he said, and this is passed on to their children.

The experience of killing not only affects the willingness to kill again but also attitudes toward the value of human life, he said. The surveys indicated that those who had killed or tried to kill were only about half as inclined as nonkillers to continue life support measures for gravely ill persons, especially the aged, he said.

"Those who have killed human beings are very different from nonkillers in their attitudes toward both murder and euthansia (mercy killing)," said Cameron.

Honey factory

Without nectar, there could not be honey. The flower nectar, mixed with enzymes within the bee's body, breaks down into dextrose and levulose, both simple sugars. This thin, partly ripened honey is stored in open cells in the bee hive, and the bees fan their wings in front of the cells to evaporate excess water.

Guard shot with own gun

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — A police science student who worked as a security guard was found shot to death on Stearn's Wharf here, apparently with his own gun.

Police said Jeffrey Brandon, 20, worked for Wells Fargo Security Services since February and was patrolling the wharf.

Although they are waiting for the results of ballistics tests, police said it appears Brandon was shot with his own gun.

By 6,000 B.C., in Europe man was a simple food gatherer, and had domesticated the dog.

American workers fleeing Canal Zone

PANAMA CANAL ZONE (AP) — Americans working for the Panama Canal Zone Co. are leaving their jobs in record numbers because of the likelihood that Panama will be taking an increasing part in running the 553-square-mile zone.

"The situation is deteriorating to complete apathy," said Frank Bright, 33, who was born here but has quit his job to return to the United States. "Everyone is just sitting around waiting for the ax to fall. It's kind of sickening, but I don't want to be the last guy to leave the Canal Zone, either.

"I just don't see any challenge and growth any more. It's a gypsy existence — not knowing what's going to happen to you from one day to the next. I was in the States not long ago and things look pretty good in private industry there."

Washington and Panama have been negotiating a new treaty for the U.S.-controlled Panama Canal Zone for about 10 years. The current round of talks has been stalled for four months but is expected to get under way again shortly, after the November election if President Ford wins and after Jan. 1 if Democrat Jimmy Carter wins.

Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd said in an interview with The Associated Press that agreement is lacking in only two major areas — when Panama would take complete control of the zone and how much of its land and waters would be ceded to Panama immediately.

Panama wants full control of the zone by the end of the century. Until then, the Panama Canal Co. would turn an increasing number of American-held jobs over to Panamanians under a new treaty.

The company, which has about 3,800 American employes, is owned and operated by the U.S. Defense Department. It is responsible for actual operation of the canal, while the Canal Zone Government takes care of such things as police and fire protection, schools and hospital services. The governor of the Canal Zone, U.S. Army Maj. Gen. H.R. Parfitt, is also president of the company.

American employes are worried they may be out of jobs soon. Many of them are using their vacations to go to back to the United States to look for jobs, according to a high-level company official.

"If someone stays here and then finds himself replaced by a Panamanian later, he could be either too old or not have enough updated job skills in order to get a job," said Bright. He said he would be moving to Atlanta in November.

Bright said his father came here in 1923 as a civilian employe of the Army.

Resignations of American employes of the Canal Zone this year — 224 — are up 50 per cent over the average for 1973-75, according to figures from the zone's personnel department.

Some of the Americans here say there is a growing resentment of Americans among Panamanians.

"The atmosphere has changed," said Morton Goodman of the Canal Zone public relations department. "I don't think it's a healthy atmosphere for bringing up kids any more. They see these anti-American slogans and murals downtown."

Recently, a cab driver refused to bring Goodman's wife from Panama City into the Canal Zone, he said, and Goodman himself was mugged and robbed on the street. He says such things didn't happen five or six years ago.

"We're lacking an atmosphere of getting together," Goodman said. Panamanians and Americans used to talk easily about problems between Panama and the Canal Zone, he said.

Americans fleeing Canal Zone . . .

"Now you have to be overly polite so you don't offend someone," Goodman said. "You have to watch what you say. We used to have freer exchange."

Goodman said he plans to return to the States, but has not found a job.

The increase in resignations is opening up plenty of attractive jobs for Americans who aren't worried about retiring with a company.

All American Canal Zone employes get one month's vacation and one month's sick leave which can be used as vacation each year. Americans there also get home leave every two years, meaning the company pays the round trip air fare for the employe and his family to return to the United States for his vacation.

Starting salaries average $12,700 a year for a nurse, $12,500 for a teacher with no experience, $19,000 for a teacher with a master's degree and 10 years' experience, $14,140 for a policeman, and $23,000 for a starting ship's pilot taking ships through the canal.

The Canal Zone Co. also pays for the shipment of furniture and car to the zone and rents houses at bargain rates to employes. For example, a three-bedroom ranch-style house in the zone rents for about $175 a month.

Life in the Canal Zone is easier than in many major U.S. cities. Schooling at American-run and American-staffed schools is free. There is virtually no serious violent crime inside the zone and no garbage or transportation strikes. Roads are kept in top condition.

Americans living there pay U.S. federal income tax, but there is no state or city tax. Prices for gasoline, food and clothing in Canal Zone-run stores are only slightly higher than in New Orleans.

"I guess we thought it would always be that way and we'd always be here," said one Canal Zone executive who asked not to be named.

One American who was considering working for the Canal Zone Co. said he liked the appeal of being there at the end. "It's kind of like running into the Alamo and slamming the doors shut," he said.

London fire

Between Sept. 2 and 6, 1666, a great fire swept London and left more than 200,000 homeless.

29 sue for vetoed wage hike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty-nine city department managers and bureau heads have filed claims against the city for the 5.6 per cent wage increases voted them by the city council last summer but vetoed by Mayor Tom Bradley.

The claims were filed Tuesday with City Clerk Rex Layton by David Pick, a Beverly Hills attorney representing the claimants.

Non-American

Royal Dutch Shell was the largest non-American industrial company in 1975 with sales of more than $33 billion.

Although the city has 45 days in which to accept or reject the claims, Pick said he and his clients were considering filing suit immediately in Superior Court "because prior conditions indicate the city council will reject my clients' claims."

The highest claims filed Tuesday were by City Engineer Donald Tillman and Fire Chief Kenneth Long. Tillman's claim asks that his salary of $57,712 be raised to $60,907. Long's claim asks a raise from $56,167 to $59,299.

Health care efficiencies being forced

NEW YORK (AP) — The threat of socialized medicine appears to be forcing the health care industry into efficiencies that might eventually slow the rise in patients' medical bills.

The threat, which has been a sword over the industry's head, may be one of the main reasons why during the past five years the length of inpatient stay at hospitals has been cut by almost a full day, from 8.4 to 7.5 days.

While that reduces the average stay to about where it was in 1962 — the figure rose sharply when Medicare was introduced in 1966 — it represents a genuine decline from the 9.1 day figure of 1946.

Alexander McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, now foresees the possibility that the figure might be reduced even more, cutting billions of dollars from the nation's health care bill.

The pressure from possible government action in the health care field has, among other things, forced hospitals to screen patients before admitting, to develop one-day surgery stays, to utilize home care, to reduce convalescent periods.

What it views as a threat also has led to more cooperation between health insurers and hospitals, and may even lead to a universal claim form acceptable to most insurers and hospitals.

A test of the new form in California indicated that state alone would save $8 million a year, said McMahon, leading him to suggest a national saving of about $80 million.

Such a development also would reduce a level of confusion that is probably unmatched in American industry, involving patient, doctor, hospital, insurer and regulator in an incoherent babble and shuffling of papers.

McMahon concedes that some of the efficiencies being introduced result from adverse public opinion and possible government action. In that sense, he said, "competition is good."

At the same time, McMahon maintains that a good deal of the change is internally motivated by staffs who recognize that the role of the hospital is changing and that they must respond to newer demands.

Years ago, he points out, "All a doctor could do was sit and hold the patient's hand and wait for mother nature's healing process. And in the earliest days, a patient went to the hospital to die rather than get well."

By contrast, today's hospital, with its expensive technology and high operating costs, is seen as a facility that must be used intensively, not as a rest home or even as a recuperative facility.

McMahon maintains that hospitals today are better audited medically and financially, that doctors often fail to get their patients admitted if the work can be done elsewhere, that insurers are refusing to pay for unnecessary care, and that follow-up checks by accreditation agencies and others keep hospital personnel on their toes.

McMahon, of course, is fighting a battle to keep the health care industry beyond the long arm of government control, and so can be expected to emphasize the positive response to complaints.

From this position he insists the battle is being won. "We're responding," he said. "It suggests to Congress and others that lots of positive activity is going on to control costs and that we may bring it off without additional regulation."

He feels also that people today are less likely to rely on regulation, having learned that it sometimes doesn't solve the problem, and may in itself by a factor in rising costs.

But, he was asked, what happens if the pressure relaxes? McMahon insists that efficiencies would continue.

We have to sympathize a little with poor West. He really had a pretty good double of South's four-spade bid. He certainly had no reason to suspect that South would score an overtrick.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued by leading his singleton club.

South won with the ace and decided that West's double indicated he would hold all four spades and the ace of hearts. South confirmed this by playing his ace of trumps. Then South led his deuce of hearts. If West had ducked he would have saved the overtrick, but West took his ace and led a heart back.

South was in dummy with the king. He ruffed a diamond, led a trump and played dummy's king after West put up the 10. Then South ruffed dummy's last diamond and led his last trump. It didn't matter what West did. Dummy's two trumps were good. South discarded a club on that last trump.

Where did the overtrick come from? Everyone was down to three cards. Dummy's were the queen and two little clubs. South's were the king and a small club and the jack of hearts. East was squeezed and had to chuck his queen of hearts to keep the club stopper.

Ask the Jacobys

What does the two-spade bid in the sequence pass-pass-one club-pass-two spades mean?

It is a forcing bid. In expert circles it shows both a maximum pass and a hand such as ♠ A Q J x x x ♥ x x ♦ x ♣ K x x x.

His hand has improved due to the club opening by partner.

Lack of pain no excuse for murder

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court says a person can be convicted of murder by torture even if the victim felt no pain.

"The murderer who exhibits the cold-blooded intent to inflict pain for personal gain or satisfaction may not ssert the victim's condition as a fortuitous defense to his own deplorable acts," said Monday's unanimous decision.

The decision stemmed from the case of Theresa Wiley who, with her brother, were convicted of murdering her husband with a baseball bat.

Mrs. Wiley contended in an appeal that her husband, William, was drunk at the time of his death and could not feel pain.

Chief Justice Donald Wright said Mrs. Wiley's condition didn't make any difference.

Pension costs hit Bay area budgets

SAN FRANCISCO — (LENS) — San Francisco and Oakland have not escaped the day of reckoning over extravagant pensions for their employees that now confronts many cities and some of the states. But they are among the first to do something about it.

Oakland, a city of 336,000, now spends 51 per cent of its budget on wages and pensions for its policemen and firemen alone. San Francisco, a city twice Oakland's size, spends 13 per cent of its income on pensions.

Up to now neither city has set aside money, year by year, to meet its future liabilities for pensions. Oakland was staggered in June to discover that its unfunded liability for policemen's and firemen's pensions was close to $500 million. The city's annual budget is about $98 million and even this has its taxpayers protesting.

By comparison, New York City's liability for unfunded pensions is put officially at around $6 billion (though it is probably a good deal higher) while that of Massachusetts is said to be around $7 billion.

In November San Francisco will ask the voters to let it provide a less generous system of benefits for all new city employees. Oakland has already done so: in June it placed new employees under the state's less expansive and less expensive retirement scheme. In addition both cities are setting aside large sums to cover previously unfunded pension liabilities.

San Francisco, which used to pay about 25 cents into its pension fund for every dollar it paid in salaries, is now paying 74 cents into its police retirement fund; Oakland is paying 71 cents (instead of 18 cents).

The scaling-back of pensions applies, of course, only to newly hired workers. Present employees and those who have already retired have contractual rights to the benefits they were promised. Some experts in retirement problems foresee the day when the discrepancy between the two levels of pensions in public employment — pre-1976 and post-1976 — will create new problems.

San Francsico and Oakland have been known for their generosity to their employees. But for two decades pension commitments have been rising at all levels of American government. Generous pension settlements were a popular way for politicians to avoid strikes; their immediate cost was low, and the voters' approval was easy to obtain.

The political muscle of the trade unions ensured that in a period of inflation the wages and pensions of public employees were not allowed to lag behind. Indeed, many little extras were tucked in.

For instance, San Francisco's system at first based retirement pay on the average of a worker's five highest paid years; then on the three highest; and eventually on pay in his final year.

Overtime pay was counted as part of the earnings on which the pension was calculated. So it became common practice to give heavy overtime to a worker who was about to retire, in order to increase his pension.

A court clerk, for example, who normally earned $20,000 a year, retired recently on a pension based on earnings of $46,000 because he worked so many hours of overtime in his last year.

Pensions for workers who chose to retire early have also been generous and so have those for the (suspiciously large) number who pleaded that they had become disabled on the job. For many policemen who could argue that, in these days of urban violence, keeping order had become a young man's profession, early retirement opened the door to a prosperous late middle-age.

They could retire and go into a second career providing security guards for private industry. California, which had about 44,500 policemen in local communities three years ago and about an equal number in private guard duty, today has far more, almost 65,000 privately hired as guards.

This has drained off trained policemen and has accelerated retirement at an unforeseen rate.

Unfunded pension liabilities are "catastrophic" says the Institute for Local Self-Government, representing all California's cities and counties.

The federal Department of Labor has started a year-long study of the country's 6,000 or so local government pension plans, which have assets of $106 billion and infinitely varied investment and funding program. These schemes, unlike those of private firms and unions, are not regulated by the federal government and do not want to be.

Air deaths

The U.S. dirigible Shenandoah broke apart at Caldwell, Idaho, Sept. 25, 1925, killing 14. The dirigible Akron crashed off the New Jersey coast April 4, 1933, and 73 crewmen died.

A broadside appearing on April 13, 1775, and circulating in New York City, stated that merchants were supplying the British army in Boston and that it was necessary to speak "... on the propriety of furnishing the troops with hay, straw, & etc., as well as boards and plank; the former of which will enable the General [Gage] ... more effectually to take the field, and the latter to make platforms for the artillery." The World Almanac notes.

Love story: still won't leave after 67 years

MILWAUKEE (AP) — This is a love story.

Lew Morrison is in love with his wife, Estelle — and has been for 67 years — and nobody is going to split them up.

Morrison, 91, and his wife, 89, have shared a room at the Woodland Health Center in suburban Brookfield for the past two years.

But Morrison's health is failing, and nursing home officials suggested that he move from the couple's present room in the ambulatory wing of the home to another area for intensive care patients.

"It started out as an ultimatum," Morrison said. "They were going to move me away from Estelle, and that was it."

But Morrison, former outdoor sports writer for the Milwaukee Sentinel and a former world flycasting champion, wasn't going to leave his wife of nearly 67 years without a fight.

"I don't care how old I am. I'm not about to take a horsewhipping from anybody. I talked real plain and they started listening," said Morrison, whose language ranges from peppery to profane.

So he complained to the district attorney, the sheriff and the mayor.

"We're getting along in life, and we've spent all this time together," he said. "We should be left to have our last years together, too."

Nursing home officials have agreed, at least temporarily, to allow the couple to remain together despite a strain on staff members who have to give extra care to Morrison because of recent illness.

"It's a hell of a note," Morrison said. "I'm getting to the point where I'm losing my eyesight and my hearing and I can hardly walk, and they're trying to break up my home."

However, he said he is satisfied, at least for the moment, with the decision of nursing home officials to leave the couple together.

"Estelle is happy, anyway," he said. "She had been crying a lot. I don't need that much extra care, anyway. Just a few pills a day. Big deal."

He vowed, "The only time we'll be broken up is when one of us leaves this world."

The bond, he said, is love.

"Sure, we love each other," he said. "Oh, we fight a lot, too. Always have. But after nearly 67 years, this has to be the longest fight on record, and I'm not willing to end it."

Foreign oversight

As late as 1939 there were no speed limits on British roads except in congested areas, a fact that caused some embarrasment when a British auto club came to America for a well-publicized motor tour. On their very first day, the visitors ran afoul of New Jersey patrolmen who pulled them over for cruising at speeds of 80 and 90 miles an hour.

Their views on the issues

Tunney vs. Hayakawa

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Democratic U.S. Sen. John Tunney and his Republican opponent, Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, both say tax incentives should be given to business to create more jobs.

Tunney and Hayakawa also agree that unemployment and inflation top the list of the nation's problems. They both list former President Harry S. Truman among their political heroes.

But they are on opposite sides of issues such as defense spending, the farm labor initiative and divestiture of oil company holdings.

They agree that Hayakawa's age (70) is not a factor in the election, but they describe the age factor in decidedly different terms.

In separate interviews, Hayakawa and Tunney listed the same problems among their priorities, but they outlined different solution.

Tunney said the defense budget could be cut by $5.7 billion. Hayakawa said it is probably not big enough as is. Tunney backed Prop. 14, the farm labor initiative backed by Cesar Chavez. Hayakawa said he is opposed.

Both candidates also claimed that supporters of Tunney's foe in the Democratic primary, liberal Tom Hayden, now are in their camp.

Here are their views on other issues in their race:

Q. Is big government just a convenient whipping boy, or is it really getting out of hand?

TUNNEY: The crucial issue...is not government bigness, but making government more efficient, more responsive and less intrusive. To accomplish that, I support regular congressional review of programs, strict implementation of the congressional budget process and an end to government invasions of citizens' privacy.

HAYAKAWA: The problem of big government is very real. Take the proliferation of federal agencies. The cost to large and small business is tremendous. The direct cost to the taxpayers is increasing at an appalling rate: $1.3 billion in 1972, $4 billion this year. Employment in federal regulatory agencies was 55,316 in 1973. This year it is 105,000 and rising.

Q. You both say Hayakawa's age is not an issue. But isn't his age an issue in the voters' minds?

TUNNEY: Dr. Hayakawa's physical age is not an issue, but the age of his ideas is. I am convinced voters will reject him not because of his age, but because his obsolete philosophy is fixed in the past.

HAYAKAWA: Our surveys and the greatest poll of all, the June election, prove my age is not a factor. The voters are aware that some people are mentally stagnant at 35, others are mentally and physically agile at 70.

Q. What are your opponent's greatest liabilities?

TUNNEY: Hayakawa is out of step with the times. ...I don't believe he's thought through some issues such as his proposal to station unarmed American troops in Angola.

HAYAKAWA: Tunney's record of nonperformance is his greatest liability. He lacks the ability to make firm decisions and stand up for them. His record is an amazing compilation of flip-flops. His absenteeism and neglect of his constituency...also is a strong liability.

Q. What issues most clearly define your differences?

TUNNEY: Hayakawa wants to send troops to Africa. It was my amendment that cut off secret funds for the conflict in Angola before our troops could be dragged into combat. He opposes full employment legislation. I support it. He wants to weaken the child labor and minimum wage laws. I support those laws.

HAYAKAWA: Tunney is a spender. I want to curb inflation and achieve a balanced budget. Tunney wants government to provide make-work jobs for the unemployed. I say only the private sector can increase the roll of wage-earners and taxpayers. Tunney advocates big government. I oppose it.

Q. Where do you stand on divestiture of oil company holdings?

TUNNEY: I support legislation to separate the 18 largest oil companies into producing, refining, marketing and pipeline entities.

HAYAKAWA: I would vote against it. This is the worst possible time to break up our greatest energy producers.

Q. How can we ease unemployment?

TUNNEY: I favor passage of an employment tax credit to encourage the hiring of the long-term unemployed, passage of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, further funding for labor-intensive public works projects, and easing of money supplies.

HAYAKAWA: We can increase employment by encouraging business, agriculture and industry to expand by eliminating the unnecessary over-regulation of commerce, and by providing tax incentives designed to inspire expansion and additional employment.

Q. Who are your heroes in politics, and why?

TUNNEY: Harry S. Truman, because of his guts, decisiveness, honesty and humility. Abraham Lincoln, because of his presidential attitude.... Thomas Jefferson, because he was a universal man skilled in politics, philosophy and the arts, who charted the goals of this nation through the Declaration of Independence.

HAYAKAWA: Harry S. Truman and Gerald Ford, because both fell unexpectedly into jobs for which they were not prepared. They had to learn and to grow quickly — and they did.

Dog gone

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — If your dog can beat the dogcatcher home, then the dog doesn't have to go to the pound under a bill signed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

The bill says a dogcatcher cannot take the dog to the pound if the owner is at home and the dog is back on the property — even if it left home for awhile.

The measure also says if the owner is not at home, the dogcatcher may take the dog to the pound, but has to leave a note for the dog owner on the owner's door.

Ford-Carter

How they stand on the issues

Strip mining

Gerald Ford

Ford has twice vetoed strip-mining legislation (pocket veto in 1974). — Congressional Quarterly, 1-17-76

In response to a question on the strip-mining bill, Ford said, "If the same bill came before me of course I would veto it because of several things. One, it would have slowed down our answer to the energy program. It would have slowed down significantly the development and expansion of our coal-mining throughout the country at a critical time when jobs were important. There could be a strip-mining bill that I would sign and I have indicated about 10 different amendments to the legislation. If they were adopted, yes, I would accept them . . . in the meantime, it has been interesting, there have been a number of states — not a number, but a few states — that have moved ahead in their own strip-mining legislation, and I think this could be a very good alternative."

—Northern Illinois Newspaper Assn., 3-12-76

Jimmy Carter

In response to a question on how Carter would reconcile the differences between the environmentalists and the coal companies, Carter said, "I favored the strip-mining bill that was vetoed ey President Ford, with a couple of exceptions."

—Business Week, 5-3-76

Carter says that he would "support efforts to place reasonable limits on strip mining. We must require reclamation of land as a condition of strip mining."

—Presentation to the Democratic Platform Committee, 6-76

Speaking about the search for other sources of energy, Carter said, "We have about 200 years worth of coal that's clean burning; it can be mined with strick strip-mining laws which i favor."

—CBS "Face the Nation," 11-30-75

"Substantial increases in coal production and utilization will only come with a stable regulatory climate. The recent veto of the strip-mining bill merely prolonged the present climate of uncertainty."

—Carter News Release, 7-11-75

Government Secrecy

Gerald Ford

Ford has said: "Basically, I agree with the philosophy of the Sunshine Bill." The bill, which has passed both houses of Congress, would require certain federal agencies to open their meetings to the public. He added, however, that "there may be some meetings held by agencies or departments in the federal government where there would have to be confidentiality maintained."

"To summarize, I'd simply say that any meetings, generally, I think, should be open to the public. But I think there has to be some safeguard wehere you're discussing classfied information that involves our national security."—St. Petersburg Times, 2-22-76

Jimmy Carter

Carter proposes the adoption of a broad open-meetings law which would cover both Congress and certain executive agencies. "An all-inclusive 'Sunshine Law,' similar to those passed in several states, should be implemented in Washington. Meetings of federal boards, commissions and regulatory agencies must be opened to the public, along with those of congressional committees. The only exceptions should involve narrowly defined national security issues, unproven legal accusations, or knowledge that might cause serious damage to the nation's economy."

He also believes there should be "broad public access, consonant with the right of personal privacy . . . to government files. Maximum security declassification must be implemented."

—Jimmy Carter, Code of Ethics

On abortion

Gerald Ford

Ford criticized the Supreme Court as going "too far" in striking down state abortion laws. Ford, however, opposes a Constitutional amendment to overturn that decision.

He describes his position as "moderate." He opposes abortion "on demand" but believes that it is justified in cases of rape or where the life of the woman was at stake.

Ford said that he would "of course, uphold the law as interpreted by the Supreme Court." But he also said that he favored a constitutional amendment leaving to the states the task of redefining limits on abortion.

— New York Times, 2-3-76

Jimmy Carter

"I think abortion is wrong. I don't think government should do anything to encourage abortion. I think abortion is the result of failure of measures designed to prevent unwanted pregnancies and to induce the mother to carry the unwanted child through to delivery. I think we ought to do everything to have better education, family planning, contraceptives, if desired."

— Carter, Press Release, 4-12-76

Carter opposes abortion but also opposes constitutional right-to-life amendments, as well as measures designed to assure local control over abortion. He said the Supreme Court's ruling is the law, and that as president he would support it.

— Aurora Beacon News, 2-8-76

Welfare reform

Gerald Ford

The President will ask Congress for authority to reform income assistance programs — Food Stamps, AFDC, SSI — to make them more consistent, equitable and efficient.

"1) The President will seek authority to modify those federally assisted programs for which there is a means test.

"2) The act would permit modification of administrative procedures, eligibility requirements, benefit levels . . .

"3) All changes would be subject to congressional approval.

"4) The duration of the authority would be five years."

— Fact sheet on State of the Union message, 19-19-76

Jimmy Carter

"We must recognize there are three categories of poor people — the unemployable poor, the jobless poor, and the working poor; no person on welfare should receive more than the working poor; strong work incentives, job creation and training should be provided for those on welfare able to work; family stability should be encouraged by assuring that no family's situation will be harmed by the breadwinner remaining with his dependents.

On wage and price controls

Gerald Ford

"I would like to reiterate my firm opposition to wage and price controls." "We do have a wage-price council-that has on some occasions investigated price increases and, on several occasions, have been helpful in trying to get a moderation on a price increase, but I do not believe on the basis of past history of wage and price controls during peacetime that they worked."

Ford adds that, because he thinks controls would have "long-range detrimental repercussions," he is opposed to them. "I think there are better remedies."

— Ford Press Conference of 9-16-75

Jimmy Carter

Carter sees wage and price controls as a necessary tool to be used only when absolutely necessary.

— Carter paper, "The Economy"

"I would like standby wage-price controls. My guess is that I would never use them. But I would like them as a lever. I wouldn't hesitate to use them if I had to."

— Business Week, 5-3-76

In a subsequent interview, Carter noted that, "Right now, though, I don't see the need for use of standby controls."

Charlie Chaplin's best

Apple Roll-ing with 'The Tramp'

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

Charlie Chaplin — world-famous motion-picture actor, director and producer — once had a favorite recipe. He contributed it to an Amerian cookbook published, just before America entered World War I, to aid the Red Cross and Actors' Fund. By that time Chaplin, who was born and brought up in England, had made his film debut in the United States and was living here.

In view of his English upbringing, it's not surprising that Charles Spencer Chaplin's offering was a delightful British dessert — Apple Roll. Our tasters loved our updated version of it. Enjoyed also was "the little tramp's" recipe-footnote: contrary to my comedy reputation I do NOT advise mixing the dough with the feet."

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S APPLE ROLL

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1-3rd cup butter or margarine
2-3rds cup (about) milk
2 cups chopped (mediumfine) pared tart cooking apples

Syrup, see below

In a medium mixing bowl, stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. With a pastry blender cut in the butter until fine. With a fork gradually stir in enough milk to make a soft dough; form into a ball. On a floured pastry cloth, with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out the dough to a 14-by 10-inch rectangle; it will be about ¼-inch thick. Sprinkle with the apples, leaving a ½-inch margin. From the 14-inch side, roll up tightly; seal seam by pinching together; fold over each end twice to seal. Place seamside down in a buttered 2-quart oblong glass baking dish (11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inches) or similar utensil. Holding a fork slantwise, prick the pastry across the top in 8 equidistant places; make 8 similar vents in the middle of each side of the roll. (This venting will keep the top of the roll from cracking.) Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden-brown — 40 minutes. Pour the hot Syrup over the roll and bake 5 minutes longer. Serve hot. Makes 8 servings.

Syrup: Shortly before the Apple Roll has finished baking, in a medium saucepan over moderate heat stir together 1½ cups sugar, 1 cup water and ¾ teaspoon cinnamon until sugar dissolves and mixture comes to a boil; do not boil further. Syrup should be hot before using as directed; if necessary, reheat but do not boil.

Pork 'n pears

Brown 4 pork chops and arrange in shallow baking dish. Top each chop with a thin lemon slice. Blend ¼ cup each catsup and sauterne (or water) with 1 tablespoon brown sugar. Pour over chops and bake in moderate oven about 45 minutes, or until tender. Top chops with sliced fresh California Bartlett pears the last 10 minutes of cooking, spooning pan liquid over fruit.

Larger bird, more meat

The larger the turkey, the more meat there is to the bone. Leftovers, after roasting, will be fine frozen and used in "made" dishes.

Vichysoisse

French soups ranked high

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The French have always been great soup eaters and in the provinces they often make soup the main course at supper.

Most French housewives take chicken carcasses and ham and beef bones and simmer them with herbs, save the liquid and use it for stock. This is the base for most French soups, enriched with some chopped fresh vegetables tossed in butter and sometimes with a handful of noodles added to give it body.

There are also tasty light soups that the French serve as a first course for a formal meal and in the summer they are often chilled.

Such a soup is vichysoisse, which has an interesting history. This delightfully refreshing dish was the creation of Louis Diat, the famous chef who presided over the kitchens of New York's Ritz-Carlton in its heyday.

Diat liked to recall how he hit upon this soup, which became so popular both in this country and in his native France. It seems he grew up on a farm in the French countryside near Vichy, and his mother used to make hot leek and potato soup frequently. In the summer the children would cool the soup with milk.

Years later when he had become a noted chef, Diat, casting about for a warm weather dish, remembered the soup that had so often sustained him as a child and how he used to cool it.

After experimenting one afternoon, Diat came up with an epicurean creation by adding chicken broth.

Then came the problem of giving his brainchild a name. Diat recalled that his home had been near Vichy and that many of his wealthy patrons took the cure at this famed health spa and would know the name well. Hence Vichysoisse.

Vichysoisse began appearing on the hotel menu and it was a stunning success. Here is his original recipe, which appeared in "Cooking a la Ritz" by Louis Diat (Lippincott 1941).

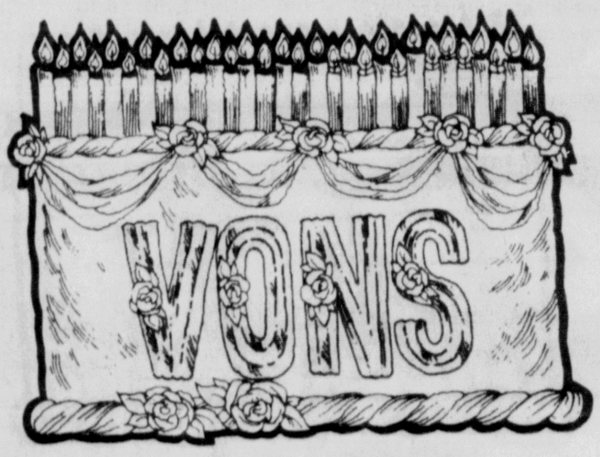

4 leeks, white part only
1 medium onion
2 tablespoons sweet butter
5 medium potatoes
4 cups water or chicken broth
1 tablespoon salt
2 cups milk
2 cups medium cream
1 cup heavy cream

Slice fine white part of leeks and onion and brown lightly in butter. Add potatoes, also sliced fine. Add chicken broth and salt. Boil gently 35 to 40 minutes. Crush and rub through fine strainer or whirl in a blender. Return to heat and add milk and medium cream. Season to taste and bring to boil. Cool and rub again through fine strainer. When soup is cold, add heavy cream. Chill, add finely chopped chives, if desired, and serve. Serves 8. Good with chilled, dry white wine.

Peanut panache satisfies

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

With the youngsters back in school it is always pleasant for them to have special after-school treats. Keep crisp vegetables such as carrots or celery and fresh fruit on hand at all times. To salve their sweet tooths bake a cake such as a peanut devil's food that will keep them well and some peanut crackerjacks. All ages will be tempted to dip into these filling goodies.

In large mixing bowl, cream margarine and sugar. Set aside.

Sift together flour, baking soda and salt.

Alternately add combined dry ingredients and buttermilk to sugar mixture. Beat 1 minute at medium high speed or with rotary beater. Add eggs and chocolate. Continue beating 1 minute longer. Stir in vanilla extract and chopped peanuts. Turn batter into greased and floured 9-inch square baking pan.

Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes, or until done. Cool in pan on wire rack 15 minutes. Turn out onto wire rack to finish cooling. Frost with Orange Frosting when cool. Makes one (9-inch) square cake.

ORANGE FROSTING: In small deep mixer bowl, cream one-fourth cup (one-half stick) softened margarine. Gradually beat in 1 box (1 pound) confectioner's sugar. Blend in 3 tablespoons milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel. Blend in enough additional milk to make a smooth, spreadable frosting.

Mix together popped corn and peanuts in a very large bowl. Keep warm in 250-degree oven.

Melt margarine in a heavy two-quart saucepan. Stir in brown sugar, corn syrup and salt. Bring to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil, without stirring, for 5 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in baking soda and vanilla. Quickly pour over popcorn-peanut mixture, tossing until kernels and nuts are well coated. Spread out in shallow baking pan.

Bake at 250-degree for 45 minutes, stirring once or twice. Remove from oven. Turn out on aluminum foil to cool. Break into pieces. Store in tightly covered container. Makes 3 quarts.

KENYA POT ROAST

Coffee adds flavor to Kenya pot roast

Most people think of coffee only as a beverage or an ingredient for some desserts. However, some adventurous chefs have found that coffee enhances the flavor of meat cookery.

KENYA POT ROAST
INGREDIENTS:
- 5 lbs. cut of beef, top or bottom round
- 1 cup cider vinegar
- 2 large onions, sliced thin
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- Oil
- 2 cups strong black coffee
- 2 cups water
- Salt and pepper to taste
- ½ cup flour
- ½ cup water or port wine
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1-2 tablespoons tomato paste

Place the pot roast in a large Pyrex brand heat-resistant glass bowl with vinegar, sliced onions and garlic. Cover and marinate for 24 to 48 hours, turning the meat several times. Drain, pat dry and discard marinade. Heat oil in a five-quart Corning saucepot; brown the meat. Pour in the coffee and water. Simmer until tender 2½ to 3 hours. Salt and pepper to taste. Thicken sauce by combining the flour, water or wine, sugar and tomato paste.

Artichoke spread

ARTICHOKE SPREAD

My sister Phyllis evolved this new, different and delicious recipe.
- 1 can (14 ounces) artichoke hearts, well-drained
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- ½ teaspoon cider or white-wine vinegar
- Minced fresh or dried herbs and crushed garlic to taste

Mash or chop the artichokes very fine and with a fork beat in the remaining ingredients. Or for a delightfully smooth spread, turn all the ingredients into a French food processor (using the steel blade) and process until smooth. Serve as a spread for small crackers, cucumber slices or cherry tomatoes. Makes about 1 cup.

Chocolate: doctors dispel acne myth

WASHINGTON — Nearly one in every 10 Americans has acne. It is a disease of adults as well as adolescents.

It's an old problem, but there is now new information about it.

The latest to set forth this fact is Dr. Jonathan Zizmor, a Manhattan dermatologist and Chief of Dermatology at St. Vincent's Hospital, in New York City. In his book, "Super Skin," Dr. Zizmor says that chocolate, sugar, candy, and even french-fried potatoes "have been shown to have no effect whatsoever on acne."

And recently one of the nation's leading mass circulation magazines published a special diet developed in cooperation with Dr. Zizmor. Included were many former taboo foods. These chocolate based foods were on the menu: Suisse Mocha as the daily breakfast beverage, one glass each during the week of Chocolate Alba and Chocolate PDQ, and two chocolate desserts. One was a chilled dessert made with cocoa and the other a cold dessert made with grated semi-sweet chocolate.

This change in medical opinion is not, however, an overnight development. A number of earlier scientific studies explored in vain a possible linkup between diet and acne. As far back as 1895, Moriz Kapsoi, M.D., in his book, "Pathology and Treatment of Diseases of the Skin for Practitioners and Students," suggested that there might be no dietary basis to acne vulgaris.

A more contemporary view was presented by two Missourians, J.D. Grant and P.C. Anderson. In 1965, they conducted an experiment in which they fed large amounts of chocolate to eight subjects to try to precipitate an acne flare-up. Unable to do so, they concluded in their report, published in the "Missouri Medical Journal," June, 1965, that chocolate had been unjustly cast in the role of culprit.

Then, in 1967, three members of the Department of Dermatology, University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, Philadelphia, James E. Fulton, Jr., M.D.; Gerd Plewig, M.D.; and Albert M. Kligman, M.D., Ph.D., undertook a controlled investigation of the effect of chocolate on the course of acne vulgaris.

The doctors evaluated the effect of chocolate on acne using sixty-five subjects, and in particular the effect of chocolate on sebum, the substance produced by the skin's oil glands. When sebum is produced in excess it erupts through the skin, causing the condition known as acne. These experiments, like the others, failed to uncover any connection between chocolate consumption and sebum production or acne.

In addition, the study, made possible through a grant from the Chocolate Manufacturers Association of the U.S.A., divided the sixty-five male and female subjects into two groups. One group ate real chocolate while the other ate a substitute with a chocolate taste. At the end of the testing period the "real chocolate" subjects showed virtually the same result as the others.

A recently reported experiment included 80 midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy Medical Clinic in Annapolis, Maryland, all with acne conditions ranging from mild to moderate. The young men were divided into two groups, both experiencing the same living, dining and physical activities.

The first group avoided all chocolate for four weeks; the second included a minimum of three bars in their daily diet. After four weeks the groups traded eating patterns. Clinical observations, facial overlays and photographs showed no significant changes in acne conditions in either group.

In the end, the one very important and agreeable point comes through — eating chocolate neither causes nor perpetuates acne. So teen-agers and adults suffering from acne may feel perfectly comfortable enjoying a sensible amount of chocolate, America's favorite flavor.

Eat-run ham patty outlined

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Most of the week it is eat-and-run for all members of the family so any food item that proves easy and quick to prepare is welcome. A new packaging of ham patties fits the bill.

These are a basis for quickie meals since the patties are basically heat-and-serve items. They also prove helpful for those who are cooking for one or for two, making such treats as mock eggs Benedict for one or a hamdinger sandwich for one. Increase recipes to serve more. Ham bunwiches, for example, is another version of eggs Benedict, to serve for breakfast or brunch.

Quickly pan fry hamdingers, cooking about 2 minutes on each side over medium heat. Meanwhile, poach eggs to desired doneness. In small pan, combine thoroughly mayonnaise, lemon juice and mustard. Heat the mayonnaise mixture for 1 to 2 minutes over medium heat, just to warm thoroughly. Place one half English muffin, or piece of toasted rye bread on each plate. Then place a hamdinger on each muffin or piece of rye bread and top with a poached egg. Spoon on a dollop of the warm mayonnaise sauce. Serve at once. Makes 8 servings.

Quickly pan fry hamdingers in skillet or pattie cooker, about one and one-half minutes on each side on medium heat. Meanwhile, mix mayonnaise with mustard and lemon juice. Poach eggs to desired doneness. Place one Hamdinger on each half muffin. Top each Hamdinger with a poached egg. Spoon a dollop of the mayonnaise sauce onto each.

Place bread on a sheet of foil in a baking pan or dish. Mix butter with mustard; spread on bread. Top with the hamdinger, then the pineapple.

Sprinkle cheese on top. Bake at 425-degrees, until cheese melts.

Spirited plums

Combine ¼ cup sugar, 1 cup water and 1 tablespoon lime juice in saucepan. Stir to dissolve sugar. Heat to boiling and boil vigorously 2 or 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool. Add 2 or 3 tablespoons dark rum or ½ teaspoon vanilla and 1½ pounds fresh California plums, sliced. Serve warm or cold over French vanilla ice cream, lemon pound cake or coconut

CREPES RATATOUILLE

Low-cal delight featured

Our Low-Cal High Fiber Seafood Delight sandwich is just what its name describes. Except who has the gift of gab to choose the words to describe its taste, flavor and mouth-watering goodness. It's a "let's have it again" kind of food.

LOW-CAL HIGH FIBER SEAFOOD DELIGHT
6 sandwiches

- ¼ cup chili sauce
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon horseradish
- 1 can (16 oz.) bean sprouts, drained and chopped
- 1 can (7 oz.) tuna, drained and flaked
- 1 can (6 oz.) shrimp, drained
- 2 tablespoons chopped olives
- 12 Slices whole wheat bread
- 6 slices tomato
- 6 lettuce leaves

Combine chili sauce, mustard, lemon juice and horseradish; stir in bean sprouts, tuna, shrimp and olives. Divide mixture evenly on 6 slices of bread; top with tomato slice and lettuce leaf. Close sandwich with remaining bread slices. Cut in half diagonally and garnish with baby shrimp and green olives.

Ratatouille is the name, thank you

Stew right in style

Crepes are king right now because new crepe pans have made their cookery fun and foolproof. They're also a neat way of serving foods for breakfast, lunch or just dessert. Crepes are made in the same way for whatever the occasion, although some dessert crepes may have a bit of sugar added to the batter.

A new filling for crepes is ratatouille (pronounced ra ta' tuy). It's a French word which originated in Provence meaning a stew (or at other times), a casserole of eggplant, zucchini, tomato and green pepper, well seasoned, in the manner of all French cooking. These are also protein fortified with Swiss or Cheddar cheese, both inside and outside of the crepes so they can be used as a main dish.

Crepes Ratatouille make an excellent and fast luncheon or supper dish because crepes are made in advance and stacked between sheets of waxed paper, wrapped and frozen. The vegetable filling cooks quickly because the vegetables are of a soft variety. Filling, rolling and topping with cheese are quick, as is the broiling time. If crepes are not placed in the oven immediately after filling, cover with plastic wrap to prevent them from drying and curling around the edge.

Serve with fresh fruit salad (melon and grapes are pretty), croissants, chilled milk, and you have an attractive and well balanced meal.

CREPES RATATOUILLE

- 12 crepes*
- 1½ cups thinly sliced onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ¼ cup (½ stick) butter, melted
- 2 cups sliced zucchini, ¼-inch thick
- 2 cups coarsely chopped eggplant
- 1 cup coarsely chopped green pepper
- 1 teaspoon each salt, sugar and basil
- ½ cup cold water
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon instant beef-flavored bouillon
- 2 cups coarsely chopped tomatoes
- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Swiss or Cheddar cheese

Cook onion and garlic in butter until tender but not browned. Add zucchini, eggplant, green pepper, salt, sugar and basil. Cover and cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend together water, cornstarch and boillon; stir into vegetables. Bring to a boil. Add tomatoes; cook and stir 2 to 3 minutes. Spread a generous 1/3 cup filling on each crepe; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon cheese. Roll crepes; place on shallow heat-proof platter. Top with remaining cheese. Broil 3 to 5 minutes or until cheese is melted. 12 crepes.

*CREPES

- 3 tablespoons butter
- ¾ cup all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup milk

Melt butter in 8-inch skillet or crepe pan. Combine flour and salt. Add eggs, milk and melted butter (set aside skillet); beat with rotary beater until smooth.

Heat buttered skillet over medium high heat. For each crepe, pour scant ¼ cup batter in skillet; immediately rotate pan. Cook until lightly browned; turn and brown other side. Stack between sheets of waxed paper until ready to use. Yield: 12 crepes.

Note: Crepes may be frozen. To reheat in oven, remove waxed paper, wrap in foil and heat in preheated 325 degrees oven about 15 minutes. To reheat in microwave oven, remove waxed paper, place unwrapped on paper or china dish and heat in microwave 30 seconds.

'Cordial' grows as spirit aid

A bright ornament in the world of spirits is the cordial or liqueur, which is gaining in popularity in the United States. In 1974, Americans consumed nearly 10 million cases of this sweet, aromatic drink.

I was interested to learn that cordials can be traced to the 13th century when alchemists in quest of a life-restoring elixir began flavoring spirits with a wide range of seeds, roots, fruits, berries and flowers, among other things.

For many years crushed almonds have been added to brandy in Italy. But interestingly enough, amaretto itself is produced not from almonds but from the pit of the apricot, which has a bitter-almond flavor. Now amaretto has been given a subtle suggestion of chocolate, producing a cordial that not only makes a good digestif but a fine addition to a dessert like these cookies.

- ¼ pound blanched almonds, ground fine
- 2 egg whites
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon chocolate amaretto

Grind blanched almonds in electric blender and set aside. Beat egg whites, with salt added, till frothy. Add sugar, beating in 1 tablespoon at a time. Add chocolate amaretto, continuing to beat. When mixture is stiff, fold in ground almonds. Drop teaspoon of mixture on cookie sheet lined with unglazed paper, leaving a 1inch space between each spoonful and each row. Bake 20 minutes in preheated 350-degree oven till cookies are golden brown. Yields about 3 dozen cookies.

Selectivity in shopping saves

Food budgeting is not a sometime thing, it's a day-in, day-out proposition, as any veteran of the shopping scene knows. But unless there's a variety, meals will all begin to look alike.

Savvy shoppers have found that they can have their economy, and welcome change, too, by capitalizing on seasonal price chances. Right now, for example, there are good values on pork cuts, because pork is coming to market with lower prices.

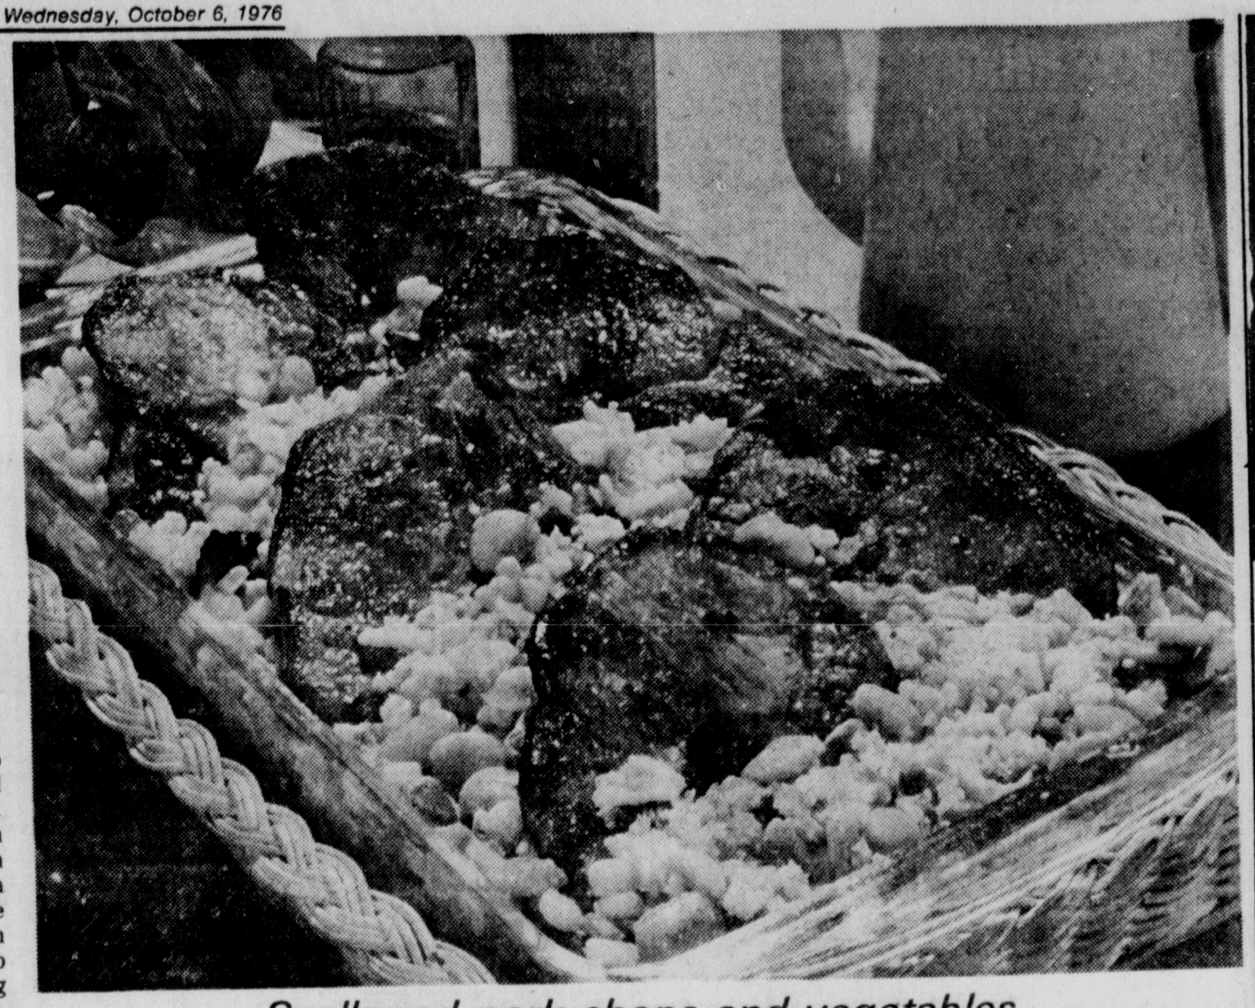

This recipe for Scalloped Pork Chops and Vegetables calls for tender lean chops, usually found in an overlapped layer in a tray pack at the meat counter. They are "thin sliced." The meat itself is a new style of pork, developed for a new generation of cooks.

Scalloped Pork Chops and Vegetables

Yield: 3 to 4 servings

6 to 8 Swift's Premium Tend'r Lean Pork Chops, thinly sliced
5 slices bacon, cut into pieces
½ cup chopped onion
1 pound 1 ounce can lima beans, drained
1 pound 1 ounce can whole kernel corn, drained, reserving 1/3 cup liquid
½ cup milk
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1 egg, beaten
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
1 cup coarsely crushed saltines

Cook bacon according to package directions until crisp. Remove and drain on paper towel. Saute onion in bacon drippings until transparent, about 5 minutes. Remove and drain on paper towel. Season pork chops with salt and pepper. Brown in bacon drippings on both sides. Meanwhile combine remaining ingredients in bowl. Blend well. Pour into a shallow 1½ quart baking dish. Arrange chops on top. Bake in 350 Degree F oven for 30 minutes.

Pineapple Crock Salad

'Pineapple crock' salad from Hawaii

Cooks have used crocks for generations to make pickles, brandy fruits and bake beans. Today we use them not only to cook or preserve in, but to serve in.

"Pineapple Crock Salad" is a idea for a busy homemaker. It's a great recipe to have on hand when you want to whip up a meal in a hurry.

Start by marinating canned Hawaiian pineapple chunks in a pickly syrup made with the drained pineapple syrup plus vinegar, brown sugar, mustard and celery seed. Turn the mixture into a crock or bowl. Cover and chill overnight or for several days.

Use some of the drained marinade to make the salad dressing. None of the rich flavor is lost.

Toss the drained marinated pineapple chunks with chopped or shredded cabbage, green pepper, celery, tomato wedges and sweet red onion rings. Pour on the dressing and toss. Pile into a serving crock or bowl.

"Pineapple Crock Salad" is a classic accompaniment to plump frankfurters and hearty rye or whole grain bread. It's ideal for the after-the-game or before-the-TV crowd.

PINEAPPLE CROCK SALAD

- 2 (1 pound 4 ounce) cans pineapple chunks
- ½ cup brown sugar (packed)
- ½ cup red wine vinegar
- 2 teaspoons dry mustard
- 1½ teaspoons celery seed
- Marinade Dressing
- 1½ quarts chopped or finely shredded cabbage
- 1 cup chopped or slivered green pepper
- 1 cup chopped or sliced celery
- 2 small tomatoes, cut in small wedges
- ½ cup small sweet red onion rings

Drain syrup from pineapple into saucepan. Add sugar, vinegar, mustard and celery seed. Bring to boiling, reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Pour over pineapple chunks. Cover and chill overnight or longer. Prepare Marinade Dressing, and chill. Just before serving, drain pineapple, and combine with cabbage, green pepper, celery, tomatoes and onion rings. Pour dressing over, and toss lightly. Pile into serving crock or bowl. Serve at once. Makes 6 to 8 servings (3 quarts).

Marinade Dressing: Drain off 2/3 cup marinade from pineapple, and combine with 1 teaspoon each cornstarch and marjoram, crumbled, in small saucepan. Stir over moderate heat until mixture boils and thickens slightly. Remove from heat and cool. Stir in ½ cup red wine vinegar, ¼ cup oil, 1½ tablespoons prepared horseradish, and 2 teaspoons salt. Stir together well. Makes about 1½ cups dressing.

Swiss steak highly rated

Swiss steak has been a real down-home favorite in Midwestern families for years and, in many circles, it often was alternated with chicken and peas on the business luncheon circuit. The slow cooking of a lesser cut of beef plus some very rich gravy to serve over mashed potatoes, noodles or biscuits made this a once-a-week treat in many families. Others first were faced with a pseudo-Swiss steak in their college cafeterias but this version was, and still is, a far cry from the homemade dish.

'Galloping Gourmet' has religious revival, gets devil out of food

By Gaynor Maddox

In these days of religious revivals and mystical cults, the story of a prominent chef who claims he talked to God about life and cooking does not surprise us.

Graham Kerr, noted chef of the former TV show "Galloping Gourmet" has returned to the public claiming to be a new man, a better husband and a more loving father. He has seen God and embraced His son Jesus. Family, financial and health problems started his search. It's a long story.

His wife, Treena, was baptized in the new faith first. He followed and together they have set up a Christian family life in northern Colorado. In talking with the two of them, you get the distinct impression of talking with just married youths — their enthusiasm is stimulating, almost lyrical.

In Kerr's successful book "Galloping Gourmet" and in his TV series, for example, he used wine and spirits in several dishes. Now he sees some of the Devil's influence in suggesting such.

In addition, Kerr says he has developed a new God's plan for the overweight. It may help those who are inclined to look on those threatening extra pounds as the curse of God. "No," says Kerr. "These extra pounds call for God's healing process, not for punishment."

The details of his reduction diet are containgd in a new book called "The New Seasoning" (Simon & Schuster, $7.95). It repudiates several of the ideas in his successful "The Galloping Gourmet" and reveals in detail what his conversion to Christianity (his own brand) has done for him and his attitude about food. But it does contain many excellent recipes and experienced advice on cooking techniques which even a non-believer can profit by.

Some recipes are stuffed sourdough meat loaf with hot bean dressing, one example of a nutritious and thrifty recipe, and, for contrast, a treacle tart that Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth of England, likes very much.

Pretzel-making art gives life new twist

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Some people eat them with mustard, other folks fancy them with ice cream or cheese spread. They are sold hot and soft directly from the oven or crisp and crunchy in packages.

Pretzels, a food that dates back to the fifth century, annually compile sales of well over $160 million wholesale in the United States, according to the National Pretzel Bakers Institute — hardly a crumb for an item regarded as a snack.

One person who can attest to the popularity of pretzels is Julius Young, an enterprising Russian immigrant who parlayed a small stall in Livonia, Mich., into 130 stores selling soft pretzels in shopping malls in 24 states. He has since sold the chain.

Young, born Joseph Jagniatinsky, arrived in this country in 1938. Two years later he changed his name.

"I got tired of spelling Jagniatinsky over the phone," he says. "To tell the truth, I had trouble pronouncing it myself."

After studying psychology at Wayne University in Detroit and serving three years with the infantry in the Pacific, Young sold surplus Army coveralls until the supply of merchandise petered out.

"For want of something better to do I designed a contraption with a tea bag suspended from a plastic disc that was put over the cup to keep the water hot until the tea was steeped. The industry did not beat a path to my door," he admits.

Young was at a loose end when he went to Atlantic City to compete in a bridge tournament in 1965. (He and his wife are life masters). He saw a line at a boardwalk booth and joined it out of idle curiosity. It was a concession for hot pretzels baked in a machine with 13 rotating shelves, like the commercial toasters used at lunch counters.

"I never had seen a hot pretzel and I didn't go for the taste of it," he confides. "Just between us, I'm not crazy about pretzels except as a business proposition. I figured that if people were willing to stand in line for something there must be money in it."

Young invested a few hundred dollars in a pretzel machine and rented a small stall in the shopping mall in Livonia, a suburb of Detroit, calling it Hot Sam at the suggestion of his daughter.

The stand was opened on March 24, 1966, and instant disaster loomed, he recalls. The first pretzel came out of the machine a sickly white blob instead of a golden brown delicacy.

"Since I didn't have a razor to cut my throat, I rushed out of the mall looking for a good, high bridge I could jump off," he says with a laugh. "Two hours later I returned and saw a long line in front of my stall. No one had told me the machine needed 20 minutes to warm up properly."

Young, 55 and a resident of Bloomfield Hills, sold the chain to General Host Corp. and now has more time to indulge in his hobbies of collecting art, jade, antique match boxes, cigar cutters, pipes and hundreds of objects made in the form of pretzels.

The recipe for pretzels, Young points out, has remained unchanged for 1,500 years. Father Francis X. Weiser of Boston College, who has written a book on early Christian legends, traces the origin of the pretzel to a monk in northern Italy. To reward pious children at Easter, the monk took strips of dough for Lenten bread, folded them in the shape of the crossed arms of a praying child and sprinkled salt on the dough after it was baked. He called it a "preticola" — a little reward — in the idiom of the region.

Elsewhere the term for pretzels was "bracellae," from the classical Latin for arms, but in the transmission to Germanic dialects on the other side of the Alps the word was debased and gradually evolved into pretzel.

The Pennsylvania Dutch introduced the thick, Bavarian beer pretzel to the United States around 1850. Street vendors have been selling soft hot pretzels from pushcarts in New York and Philadelphia since the turn of the century.

Smaller, crunch types of pretzels became a staple in bars and free-lunch counters throughout the East about the same time, but the salty tidbit was virtually unknown in other parts of the country until the late 1940s. Then high-speed machines and improved packaging to preserve freshness developed by big biscuit manufacturers brought pretzels to the supermarket.

Fruit custard favorite

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Custards and custard fillings have provided many a dessert lover with some exstatic moments of tasting. Put a delicious fruit and vanilla custard inside an easy To-make crepe and you have a very special treat for family or friends. Many may want to enjoy the fruit-custard without the crepe or use the custard as a filling for a favorite pound cake recipe or cupcake. It is versatile enough to go many ways in the dessert spectrum.

In a small bowl combine fruit with vanilla and nutmeg. Spoon about 2 tablespoons of the fruit in center of each crepe. Fold into cylinder shape and arrange on platter. Pour custard sauce over all and serve. Makes 12 portions.

In a small mixing bowl beat eggs. Add milk, oil and vanilla extract; mix well. Add flour, salt and nutmeg; beat until smooth. Lightly grease and heat a 5-inch skillet. Pour approximately 2 tablespoons crepe batter into skillet, quickly tilting pan to spread over bottom. When delicately brown, turn to brown on other side. Repeat, lightly greasing skillet each time. Makes approximately 12 crepes.

In a medium saucepan mix cornstarch, sugar and salt. Blend in 2 tablespoons of the milk until smooth. Stir in remaining milk. Cook and stir over moderate heat until mixture thickens. In a medium bowl mix egg yolks, vanilla extract and nutmeg with 2 tablespoons of the hot custard mixture. Blend in remaining custard. Cover surface with waxed paper and cool. Serve over fruit filled crepes. Makes 2 cups.

Pasta urge growing

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

The pasta urge grows stronger throughout the country as all age groups find Italian-oriented dishes to their liking.

Even if few make their own pasta at home these days, most are tempted by a variety of linguine, ravioli, manicotti or tortellini dishes. Starting with store bought noodles, one can whip up a respectable mock lasagne in about 45 minutes, including the 30 minutes it takes for baking. Serve this satisfying, hearty dish with a crisp green salad with vinegar and oil dressing (with garlic for the purists), a crisp Italian bread and perhaps ice cream or fresh fruit for dessert.

In large skillet, cook beef in oil until lightly browned, stirring frequently. Add onion and cook 2 minutes. Stir in spaghetti sauce. Simmer uncovered 5 minutes. Set aside.

Gradually add noodles and salt to rapidly boiling water to that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Return noodles to pot and toss with butter. Pour half the meat sauce into a 13 x 9-inch baking pan; cover with noodles. Pour remaining suace in center of noodles. Spoon cottage cheese on top. Cover and bake in 375-degree oven 30 minutes. Uncover. Place American cheese slices over cottage cheese and bake, uncovered, 5 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

Vegetables filling for sandwiches

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Vegetables make change-of-pace fillings for sandwiches. You may combine leftover garden-fresh vegetables as sandwich fare or keep packages of mixed frozen vegetables on hand to turn into salad stuffings. Sour cream and a spicy brown mustard add a very different zest to your favorite vegetables used in this manner. Although brown and serve rolls are suggested, you'll also enjoy this mixture with your favorite homemade bread. Meanwhile, a macaroni salami and cheese salad to serve cold is another make ahead dish that school children, for example, can serve themselves before rushing off to a variety of activities now that school is in session. Some will even find this salad makes a good hero sandwich base.

Cook vegetables according to package directions. Place in colander; run under cold water to cool. Drain. Combine with sour cream, mustard and salt. Prepare rolls according to package directions; butter. Arrange lettuce on rolls. Place approximately two tablespoons of vegetable salad on lettuce. Makes 6 servings.

Gradually add macaroni and 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Rinse with cold water; drain.

Combine macaroni, salami, cheese, celery, green pepper and pickles. Add mayonnaise, mustard, onion and 1 teaspoon salt. Toss lightly until mixed. Refrigerate in covered container. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Mom can compete with nutritionists

September means school days for more than 49.5 million students from kindergarten through senior high.

To their moms, it means school lunches.

Food and Nutrition Service, the federal agency, within the U.S. Department of Agriculture, responsible for school food programs nationally, estimates that at peak periods last year, 56.6 percent of the students in schools with lunch programs bought the cafeteria lunch. The rest, a solid 43.3 percent, were stocked with lunch from another source, often from home.

Compared to the standards of planned school lunches, how does the lunchbox crowd fare nutritionally?

According to the Food and Nutrition Service, an average school lunch in the Type A program provides one-third of a student's recommended daily allowance of nutrients. It contains 1½ to 3 ounces of meat or meat alternative such as peanut butter or eggs, depending on the grade level.

It also contains two or more servings of fruits or vegetables, a slice of whole grain or enriched bread or bread products like muffins or tortillas and a half-pint of milk.

Can mom's brown bag compete with the Type A meal from the school food service?

"It can," says Nancy Snider, former food editor of Institutions magazine and consultant for Sunfield Foods. "But it often doesn't, because mom doesn't know two things — what the U.S. recommended daily allowances (U.S. RDA) for her kids are and what lunchbox-type foods can provide them."

What's a mother to do?

First, Snider recommends, gather a few basic facts about the four basic food groups. The U.S. Department of Agriculture and state university cooperative extension service, or the agricultural advisory service, in each state can provide you with information on nutrient requirements for school-aged children at all levels.

Another help in understanding nutrition comes from the Nutrition Consortium, Inc. The Consortium, a group of six nutrition-minded organizations including the American Dietetic Association and the National Institute of Nutrition, prepared a book called "Nutrition Labeling, How It Can Work For You" that is available for two dollars by writing to 9650 Rockville, Bethesda, Maryland 20014. It contains guidelines on how to read the nutrient information listed on packages of foods prepared by manufacturers.

Beyond that, Snider says mom's best friend is a sample set of menus.

"Most mothers aren't registered dietitians, so complicated reference books are more confusing than enlightening," she notes. "A few simple facts and common sense will enable most homemakers to play appealing, nourishing lunches quickly and conveniently."

Packing appeal into a lunch ranks right up there with nutritional balance, according to Snider's priority list.

"Mom has to remember that lunch must sell itself to the eater. She won't be there to spoonfeed, so she should always include foods her child likes," Snider counsels. "Even the most nutritious lunch is worthless unless it's eaten!"

Appeal can come in the form of a tasty treat or an interesting package. A surprise item. Maybe it's a favorite sandwich or a new snack.

"If it attracts the luncher's interest, it's half way to the stomach," Snider says.

She recommends planning ahead. If making the lunch takes too much time, especially for busy moms on hurried school mornings, the job just won't be done well. Here, convenience is essential.

Planning the week's lunches along the same lines as the week's dinners insures that leftovers will be put to good use. Advance preparation also allows mom to design lunches that take advantage of supermarket sales. Saving cents always makes sense.

Another tip to convenience is knowing how to make prepared foods work for you. The food industry's rise in nutrition-consciousness and the new information on nutrition label reading mean consumers can use packaged foods that are ready-to-eat as nutritional pluses. This covers items from main dishes to desserts. Some snack foods can also become a significant part of nutritious eating. Companies like Sunfield Foods are making such items as Crunchola, specifically to combine popular flavors and nutritional balance.

Prepared foods also lend flexibility to menu planning. Since they generally come pre-packaged and have relatively long "staying power", mom can stock up and rely on them for spur-of-the-moment brown-bagging needs.

Richard Blaisdell

Success is . . . baking sweets

The pastry chef who recently prepared a five by 16-foot cake depicting the New York skyline for the reopening of Tavern on the Green Restaurant in New York City first dreamed of a culinary career when he and his brother baked biscuits wrapped around a stick on a childhood camping trip.

Richard Blaisdell has made many improvements in his kitchen equipment since then and has become a foremost authority on baking. He has achieved his early goal of working at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, was on the staff of the St. Regis Sheraton and formed the Blaisdell School of Fine Culinary Creations.

Currently, Blaisdell is executive pastry chef at Tavern on the Green and supervises the preparation of specialties such as cheesecake, hazelnut and Black Forest tortes at Maxwell's Plum Restaurant. Even with this kind of demanding schedule, he finds time to conduct classes in French Baking and Cake Decorating at the Cordon Bleu in New York.

"My students range from homemakers who wish to develop their own skills for entertaining purposes to professionals who want to update their knowledge," says Blaisdell. He also teaches apprentice chefs at Tavern on the Green.

Chef Blaisdell, along with a team of ten other master chefs sponsored by Kraft Foods, will represent the United States in the upcoming International Culinary Competition in Frankfurt, Germany. A gold medal winner in the 1972 contest, Blaisdell will enter marzipan, pastillage, tallow and chocolate sculptures, specialty desserts, sugar works and cold food platters reflecting the "Spirit of '76" theme this year's team has adopted.

Blaisdell is as excellent an artist as he is a chef. His all-edible sculptures are painstakingly executed. One hand-painted marzipan flower arrangement took eight months to complete and is modeled in the finest detail — down to a realistic Chinese vase which holds the bouquet. Another of his pieces which portrays a Bicentennial scene won a special judges award at the Chicago Culinary Arts Salon in May. So many people have commented on the sculptures that Blaisdell is planning to reproduce them in porcelain.

Married with a family of three boys, he is coaching his wife and sons in the art of pastry decoration. This month when he competes against chefs from 24 other nations in Germany, these novice culinarians are sure to be his staunchest supporters.

German-style pot roast: beef in creamy wine sauce

Chuck roasts German style

Be watching the grocery ads for specials on chuck roast. There's much you can do with this versatile cut.

Consider buying an extra large roast next time it's on special. You'll be able to use it for two quite different but delicious recipes created by The Test Kitchens of The R. T. French Company of Rochester, New York.

The first, German-style pot roast, is an updated version of an old fashioned sauerbraten, while the second, beef in creamy wine sauce, rivals the kind of continental cuisine you enjoy in fine restaurants.

One of the beauties of the German Style Pot Roast is its ease of preparation. No marinating for days, no long list of ingredients and no complicated instructions.

GERMAN STYLE POT ROAST

- 2 to 3 pounds beef chuck roast
- 2 tablespoons oil or shortening
- 1¼ cups water
- 1 can (1-lb.) sauerkraut, drained and rinsed
- 1 envelope (¾-oz.) French's Brown Gravy Mix
- ¼ teaspoon ground allspice, if desired

Brown roast in oil in large skillet. Add water and sauerkraut; cover and simmer 1 to 2 hours, until tender. Stir contents of gravy mix envelope and allspice into liquid in pan; cook just until thickened. 5 to 6 servings.

BEEF IN CREAMY WINE SAUCE

- 2 to 3 pounds beef chuck roast
- 2 tablespoons oil or shortening
- 1 envelope (¾-oz.) French's Mushroom Gravy Mix
- 1 cup water
- ¼ cup Widmer's Sweet Vermouth, Port Wine, or pineapple juice
- ½ cup dairy sour cream
- Parsley flakes

Remove fat and bone from meat; cut meat into 1-inch cubes. Brown in oil in large skillet. Add contents of gravy mix envelope, water, and vermouth. Cover and simmer about 1 hour, or until tender. Stir in sour cream and sprinkle with parsley flakes just before serving. 4 to 6 servings.

Coffee cake wins heartwarming reception

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

Because a friend of ours wasn't entirely satisfied with the coffeecake recipes she tried, she worked out her own formula. When we tested it, our tasters were delighted with the result: coffeecake of excellent texture and flavor filled with a heartwarming mixture of cinnamon, raisins and nutsm To have this coffeecake at its best, serve it warm or freeze and heat it according to the directions in our recipe.

CINNAMON COFFEE CAKE

- 4¾ to 5 cups flour
- Sugar
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Milk
- Butter
- 3 eggs
- Cinnamon Filling, see below
- Confectioners' sugar

In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together 2½ cups of the flour, ½ cup sugar, the yeast and salt.

In a small saucepan over low heat stir together ½ cup milk, ½ cup water and ½ cup soft butter until lukewarm — butter does not need to melt entirely; pour into yeast mixture. At low speed beat until blended; at high speed beat for 3 minutes, then beat in eggs one at a time.

With a wooden spoon stir in enough more flour (about 1½ cups) to make a very soft dough. Turn out on a lightly floured surface and knead in enough more flour (about ¾ cup) to make a soft dough. Place in a lightly buttered bowl; turn to grease top. Cover with plastic wrap; let rise in a warm place until doubled — about 1 hour.

Cut 6 tablespoons firm butter into small dice; refrigerate to keep firm.

Punch down dough. Cut into 2 equal parts. Roll out each part into a 16 by 8-inch rectangle. Sprinkle each with the Cinnamon Filling; dot with the chilled butter. Roll up each from long end almost completely. Mosten long exposed end; press edge against roll to seal. Carefully place rolls into two buttered 9 or 10-inch round cake pans, gently curving to form full circles. Pinch edges to seal. With scissors or knife, cut partway through rings at 1-inch intervals. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled — about 1 hour. Melt 2 tablespoons butter; brush over dough.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden and coffeecakes sound hollow when tapped on the bottom with your fingers — about 30 minutes. Cool in pans on wire racks for 10 minutes. Turn out of pans.

Stir together ½ cup confectioners' sugar with 1 tablespoon milk; drizzle over one of the warm coffeecakes. Serve warm.

Cool the other coffeecake completely. Freezer-wrap and freeze without frosting. To serve, remove from wrapper and place on a cookie sheet. Thaw and warm in a preheated 325-degree oven for 20 to 30 minutes. Drizzle with confectioners's sugar if desired, using the amount given for the other coffeecake.

CINNAMON FILLING: Stir together 1½ cups chopped (medium-fine) walnuts, 1 cup golden raisins and 1 tablespoon cinnamon.

Makes 2 coffeecakes.

Mozzarella meatloaf helps stretch dollar

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

There must be something soothing in Italian dishes since so many Americans enjoy versions of Old Country favorites. Since most families still are stretching their food dollars, another good ground beef recipe is in order. This one makes use of canned spaghetti sauce with meat, mozzarella cheese (that makes pizza such a treat) and olives to turn out a different mozzarella meatloaf. Serve with a super salad or vegetable salad sandwiches (a good way to use leftovers) and possibly a fruit-wine punch for company.

Youngsters will enjoy this meatloaf as a hero sandwich filling since it is good when eaten hot or cold.

Combine all ingredients except mozzarella and sliced olives. Use half a can of spaghetti sauce with meat. Divide meat mixture in half. Place half in bottom of baking dish. Form into 8x4x1-inch loaf. Place mozzarella slices on top. Then use remainder of meat mixture to form top of loaf. Seal sides and ends. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Pour remaining sauce on top; bake for 10 more minutes. Garnsih with sliced olives. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Gradually add macaroni and 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Rinse with cold water; drain again.

Mix together luncheon meat, pimiento and cucumber. Blend sour cream, mayonnaise, onion, lemon juice and remaining seasonings. Combine with macaroni mixture. Chill. Serve on crisp salad greens garnished with additional pimiento, if desired. Makes four servings.

Easy plum crisp

Following your favorite apple crisp recipe, substitute fresh California plum slices for the apples. Fully-ripened plums are the best — juicy and flavorful. Plums are ripe when they're still firm, except for a slightly soft tip end. If not quite ripe when purchased, leave plums at room temperature for a day or two. But watch carefully — fresh plums can turn over-ripe very quickly. Refrigerate ripe plums to keep them fresh for several more days.

Save your stroganoff.

When you're making a real beef stroganoff, don't give it a fake taste. Use real sour cream. Those imitators have a different texture. And artificial additives.

You see, we have a free booklet with a stroganoff recipe and 16 others, and we don't want you to make a poor imitation. So when you pick up our booklet "Do more with sour cream than simply smother another hot potato," pick up real sour cream. At your grocer. And save the taste.

Only real sour cream tastes real.

Harris' confidence pays off for Rams

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — James Harris has confidence in himself, the Los Angeles Rams have confidence in Harris and the only starting black quarterback in the National Football League has proven his worth.

"There is no question about James Harris," declared Coach Chuck Knox, a position he has held since the former Grambling star became the starter for the West Coast club.

"I've always had a lot of confidence in myself," readily admits the 210-pound quarterback who last Sunday turned in the finest passing performance in a quarter-century of Rams football when he completed 17 of 29 passes for 436 yards and two touchdowns in a comeback 31-28 victory over Miami.

Rams coaches call the plays from the bench, but Knox says Harris always has the option to change them at the line of scrimmage.

The 6-foot-4 quarterback does it, sensing the defenses and what will be successful for his club.

He's had his troubles. He was an out-of-work football player when the Rams signed him and then watched him develope to a point where the club could trade veteran John Hadl in mid-1974 after he had been a Most Valuable Player in the conference the year before.

After leading the Rams to a 11-2 record in 1975, Harris hurt a shoulder and was out of initial playoff action.

This year, in the Aug. 28 preseason game against Buffalo, he broke his thumb. Now he's back, but recalls the trauma.

"I went with Buffalo in 1969 and feel happy that Coach John Rauch gave me a chance to play quarterback. There were rumors when I first went there that they were going to switch me to another position.

"I didn't think I got a real fair chance at being a quarterback to the point where they were going to decide to go with me," Harris says.

In 1971, his third season with the Bills, he completed 51 of 103 passes for 512 yards, one touchdown with six interceptions.

Then Buffalo cut him.

"I laid out a couple of weeks, maybe four or five weeks and then the Rams made me an offer. I was out of ball and I wanted to play and no one was giving me an opportunity in that point of time," he says.

"This was an opportunity for me to play, at least an opportunity for a team to look at me."

He didn't play in 1972 and only briefly in 1973. Then in 1974, he finally started against San Francisco and the Rams won 37-14. The next week Hadl was traded. Harris had a job, but even after the Rams won 17 regular season games in two seasons, there were those who doubted.

Not the coaches. Knox maintained that Harris was No.1— ahead of Ron Jaworski and ahead of this season's rookie Pat Haden who took over when both were injured and engineered a comeback 10-10 tie with the Minnesota Vikings in the Midwest on Sept. 19.

Harris had broken his thumb and Jaworski had broken his shoulder in the regular season opener at Atlanta. Haden was a hero in Los Angeles, the man who had thrown the passes that gave Southern California an 18-17 victory over Ohio State in the 1975 Rose Bowl game.

But when Harris' thumb mended, he remained No. 1.

In a newspaper interview Harris had said he was overlooked nationally because he was black. Now he says, "I think a lot of things were blown out of proportion about that interview that I had. Right now I'd kind of just like to let that go behind me and concentrate on playing."

He reflects the sentiments of Coach Knox when asked about the Rams' Super Bowl possibilities.

"I'd just like to contribute as much as I can to the Rams' winning," he says. "The most important thing to me is our team sticking together and winning together. That's my goal right now.

"It's a little early right now to be thinking about the Super Bowl. First, we have to win our division. In order to do that, we have to concentrate on each game we're going to play. I think right now it's a matter of us concentrating on beating San Francisco, but each time I go into a game I think our chances of winning are excellent."

The Rams 3-0-1 meet the 49ers, 3-1, at the Coliseum in Los Angeles on Monday night in the nationally televised game.

When Harris was hurt last year and again this preseason, he didn't think much of the injuries at first.

"When I first got hurt in New Orleans last year, I didn't think it was that serious," he says. But the injury kept him out of the final regular season game when the Rams beat Pittsburgh and out of the first playoff game against St. Louis. He started the NFC championship game against Dallas but was ineffective and Jaworski took over as the Rams lost.

He didn't think the thumb injury was anything this year and actually stayed in the Buffalo preseason game for a quarter until swelling showed something was truly wrong.

If he had doubts he would return as No. 1, he doesn't show it now, saying, "The coaches would make the decision. I had to concentrate on getting myself well. I knew we had two tough games on the road—Atlanta and Minnesota, but I had confidence that Ron and Pat could get the job done."

After Jaworski and Haden worked those games, the Rams came home to open their season at the Coliseum against New York. Coach Knox didn't hesitate to name Harris when he was passing well despite a plastic splint on his right thumb.

NEW MONTREAL MANAGER

Newly-named Montreal Expos manager Dick Williams holds team jacket before news conference in Montreal Tuesday. Williams, fired this year by Angels, signed two-year pact.

Expos hire Dick Williams

MONTREAL (AP) — Dick Williams, a strict disciplinarian who guided the Boston Red Sox and Oakland A's to American League championships, now will try and inject some life into the floundering Montreal Expos.

The Expos, who never have finished higher than fourth in the National League East in their eight years of existence, wound up with the worst record in baseball this year. They signed the 47-year-old Williams to a two-year contract as manager Tuesday.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

"I think things are in good hands," said Expos President John McHale in making the announcement of Williams' hiring. "We have a guy in Dick who knows how to win and has an attraction in Montreal."

Williams' attraction in Montreal stems from his tenure as a player for Montreal's International League team in 1953 and 1956 and his tenure as Expos coach during the 1970 season.

Williams said there wasn't a single player left on the Expos' roster from 1970 and he would have to do some homework on the National League after spending the past six years in the American League. "I'm going to have to do a little catching up," he said.

So will the Expos.

They finished the 1976 season with a 55-107 record, 46 games behind the first-place Philadelphia Phillies.

Williams said he planned to stress fundamentals at the team's spring training camp next year and did not anticipate any personnel problems, particularly with petulant shortstop Tim Foli.

Foli publicly criticized rookie Manager Karl Kuehl this year, saying he was incapable of managing in the major leagues. Foli's comments were considered one of the reasons for the Expos' dismal showing.

Kuehl was fired Sept. 3 and Charlie Fox was named interim manager. Fox, 54, spent 34 years in the New York-San Francisco Giants organization before joining the Expos as a special assignment scout this year. He was retained by the club as vice president in charge of baseball operations, with Jim Fanning shifting to vice president in charge of player development.

Fox said the Expos would be in the bidding for any available free agents. "We have to come out with two good ballplayers no matter what position they play," said Fox, adding that the team needed a left-handed power hitter and a second baseman.

Williams began his major league managerial career with Boston in 1967 and led the Red Sox to the American League pennant. Boston fell to fourth place in 1968, and Williams was fired late the following year. He managed the A's from 1971-73, winning three division titles and the World Series in his last two years, then quit after a feud with owner Charles Finley.

After that, he signed to manage the New York Yankees, but Finley protested, saying Williams still had a contract obligation to the A's, and AL President Joe Cronin voided the contract with the Yanks. Williams then was named manager of the California Angels in June, 1974, and held the job until being fired last July 22.

New Lion coach to be demanding

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Rick Forzano's stern discipline wasn't successful with the Detroit Lions— and his successor does not sound like he will be any easier on his athletes.

"We're gonna be demanding of our football players," said new Coach Tommy Hudspeth. "We're going to ask them to do certain things and go from there and put the chips on the table."

Execution will be vital, Hudspeth said.

"You've got to block and tackle if you're going to get the job done," he said. "When you're asked to do something, you should do it."

Whether he can stifle player unhappiness while getting more out of the lackluster Lions will determine whether Detroit can turn things around in the National Football League this season.

Hudspeth, a 45-year-old Kansan and former college coach, was named interim coach Tuesday by Lions' owner William Clay Ford. He moved up from his post as coordinator of personnel and scouting to replace Forzano, who resigned Monday.

Hudspeth believes Detroit has the talent to reach the playoffs, "but you have to get it out of them."

Forzano wasn't able to do it. There were several serious incidents of player dissension in his tenure of just over two seasons as head coach.

Forzano said his resignation was not the result of any pressure from Ford.

Forzano faced a battery of reporters at a Pontiac Stadium news conference prior to the introduction of Hudspeth as his replacement.

"Circumstances have to be overcome, and I feel I was unable to overcome certain circumstances," Forzano said.

Asked if his resignation saved the job of General Manager Russ Thomas, Forzano said: "If this helps save Russ' job then fine, but that wasn't the reason I resigned."

Forzano said he gave Ford two letters, one of resignation and another stating a number of things he refused to disclose.

"I don't feel I should view any problems I have to the public," he said.

Forzano said even if the Lions, 1-3, had not lost to Green Bay 24-14 Sunday, he intended to resign.

Hudspeth said Ford asked him two weeks ago if he was willing to replace Forzano if need be.

"He came to me a couple weeks ago and discussed the possibility," Hudspeth said. "The reason I'm sitting here as interim coach is that we didn't want to start over again. We've got a good coaching staff intact.

"By having me step in, it's an easier transition than anything else we could do," said Hudspeth, who was an assistant at the University of Tulsa and with the Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian League.

Ford was not at either news conference.

In a release he said: "I had two major reasons for asking Tommy to take over the team ... Hudspeth has more head coaching experience than any other man on our staff. Just as important, and maybe more so, is the fact that I wanted to keep the present staff of assistants intact. There are men on it with definite head coaching potential."

Yankees break 2 million mark

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees became the first American League team to draw more than two million fans in one season since 1968 when their Saturday doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians attracted a crowd of 22,905.

Porter joins Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ross Porter, who began his sports broadcasting career doing the play-by-play for a Dodgers farm club 23 years ago, has joined the announcing team of the Los Angeles Dodgers, club President Peter O'Malley announced.

Porter, 37, joins Vin Scully and Jerry Doggett on the Dodgers' radio-television broadcast team, O'Malley announced Tuesday.

Porter will resign his post with KNBC news at the end of the year, a Dodgers spokesman said. The winner of numerous broadcasting awards, Porter had been with KNBC for 10 years.

He started his sports announcing when he was 14 years old, doing games for a Dodgers' class D team in Shawnee, Okla. He went on to graduate from the University of Oklahoma before moving to California.

The Dodgers decided to add an announcer to their broadcast team earlier this year, following Scully's signing to do network broadcasting in addition to his job with the Dodgers.

'Cats, Saints set for H.L. battle

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Football games between Bonita and San Dimas have always been one of the highlights of the prep season, and this week's contest between the two neighboring schools could well be the real "show-stopper".

The series between the two friendly rivals, dubbed the "Smudge Pot Bowl", stands at 3-1 in favor of San Dimas. However, the games have always been hotly-contested, and a bit more than usual rides on Friday's game at Mt. San Antonio College.

Both Bonita and San Dimas are coming off impressive wins over two touted Hacienda League foes. Bonita upset Royal Oak 35-26 while San Dimas easily handled Walnut 19-0.

Thus many feel that the winner of this year's "Smudge Pot Bowl" will also wind up as the winner of the H.L. title. It's hard to dispute that sort of thinking.

The two teams are a study in contrast this season, Bonita getting the job done with a sharp passing attack while San Dimas rolling past opponents with a nearly-unstoppable running game and a quick and aggressive defense.

Actually, the Bearcats have gone to the air almost of necessity.

Two of their top runners, Jim Franks and Ralph Ortega, are on the shelf with injuries. Franks suffered a broken arm in the Azusa game and is not expected back this season, while Ortega has been hobbled by a bad knee.

In the wake of those injuries, senior quarterback Sanford Coggins has assumed more and more of the offensive burden.

Against Royal Oak, he performed brilliantly in leading the 'Cats to a come-from-behind win. Given better pass protection, he clicked on seven of 19 passes for 216 yards.

Coggins also rushed for 90 yards on only 12 carries, as he accounted for all five Bearcat scores, three rushing and two passing.

Keith Brandt continues to be Coggins' favorite receiver. Brandt caught five passes vs. Royal Oak for 134 yards and now has 12 receptions for 296 yards and two TDs on the year.

Coggins has also been the 'Cats leading running threat with 201 yards on 42 carries in three games. However, it's a long way from those stats to the next Bonita ball carrier, Bobby Vidaure, with 117 yards on 22 totes.

Both the Bearcat passing and running games will be sternly tested by the rock-hard San Dimas defense.

The Saints have allowed only 10 points per contest and have been especially tough against the run, allowing only one touchdown on the ground in three games.

Last week that S.D. defensive unit put the brakes on Walnut's Kevin Morgan, one of the top runners in the valley. Bonita doesn't have anyone in Morgan's class as a runner so the 'Cats could find rushing yardage mighty scarce on Friday.

The Saint offense has been impressive in three games, but that was before senior halfback Fred Carter broke his collarbone vs. Walnut last week. Without the speedy back, it remains to be seen how well or poorly that San Dimas offense can do vs. Bonita.

Claremont coach explains big win

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

When a team that has scored just 19 points in two football games while surrendering 71 points turns around to win its third contest by a 19-point margin, observers might suspect that some new superstars appeared on the scene or that the head coach asked his players to win one for the Gipper.

But Esper Keiser, whose Claremont High squad bounced back from a pair of lopsided non-league losses to trim defending San Antonio League co-champion Chino, 26-7, said Friday's win involved nothing of the sort.

"It was hard to believe," said Keiser. "But it was just a matter of execution. We're still working fundamentals."

Of the win over the Cowboys, Keiser said, "We finally carried out some of the things we hadn't before."

But the Claremont coach added that there might have been another ingredient in the impressive victory.

"It's a little bit of pride," Keiser said. "You know what you have even when you lose." (The Wolfpack fell to Bonita, 31-7, and Glendora, 40-12, in non-league games.) "And I think you work a little harder when you have adversity."

But in spite of the big win over a defending league co-champ, Keiser says he's a long way from thinking about the SAL title.

"I've been around long enough to know that you have to take this league one week at a time," said the Claremont coach. "I still think that Damien is going to be the team to beat. But except for some fumbles, Ganesha might have had the best of them the other night." (Damien needed two fourth-quarter touchdowns Friday to beat the Giants, 21-14.)

Claremont will meet Ganesha at Mt. San Antonio College Thursday at 7:30 p.m., so the Giants are currently Keiser's chief concern.

"They look mighty good," he said. "Floyd Eddings (a Giant running back) is an amazing athlete, and the whole team looks tough."

The Giants are one of three SAL teams who have yet to win a game this year. The others are Pomona (0-3) and Chino (0-2-1).

The Cowboys will try to rectify that situation in another Thursday date against Garey (2-0-1), the SAL's only undefeated team. That game will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Bonita High's field.

Coincidentally, each of the four SAL games this week will match a team that won its league opener against a squad that lost last week.

The Vikings have used the passing arm of Al Clay and the fine running of Ralph Dixon, as well as good coverage by a generally swift defensive unit, to hold their opponents to 32 points in three games — and six points their last two games. Garey blanked Montclair last week, 19-0.

The remaining two SAL games this week will be played Friday, both at 7:30 p.m. Pomona will visit Damien while Upland hosts Montclair.

Damien and Upland were both victorious last week but neither had an easy time.

The Highlander defense starred in Upland's 12-10 win over Pomona. The only Red Devil points came late in the fourth quarter when Highlander coach Bob Holycross elected to accept a safety rather than risk a fumble near his own end zone. Pomona added a touchdown and two-point conversion after the Upland free kick and that was the extent of the Devils' scoring.

Lakers cut two guards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Guards Don Freeman and John Roche were waived by the Los Angeles Lakers Tuesday, a team spokesman announced.

Lakers' Coach Jerry West, who now has a squad of 16, still must make four cuts to get down to the National Basketball Association's 12-man limit.

Freeman, 32, signed with Los Angeles as a free agent last season after eight years in the American Basketball Association. He averaged 10.8 points per game for the Lakers last season despite being hampered by knee injuries.

Roche, 28, came to the Lakers from Phoenix last season and played in just 15 games.

Pac-8 excites Robinson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California already has one Pacific-8 victory under its belt, but conference play begins in full swing this weekend and Trojans Coach John Robinson seems excited about it all.

"There's no way anybody can sit back and say who's the best team in the Pac-8," the USC coach, in his first season, said Tuesday. "I think for the first time in a long while, it's really going to be a race. It's sort of like the Big Eight usually is; who gets hurt, who has the big days will make the difference."

Before the season began, the Trojans were generally regarded to have the inside track at the Pac-8 crown and the accompanying trip to the Rose Bowl.

But UCLA, which tied Ohio State Saturday and is unbeaten, now is considered the team to beat for the conference title.

Robinson, however, said he doesn't see it as a two-team race.

"I think anybody will have trouble against Washington if they play them in Seattle," he commented. "And Stanford, when it gets untracked, can play with anybody. Of course Cal's going to be tough, and UCLA definitely is."

The Trojan coach said he thought UCLA, which beat Ohio State in the Rose Bowl last January, has been underrated in recent seasons.

"I believe they've had one of the best teams in the country for the past few years," Robinson remarked, "going back to Kermit Johnson and James McAlister."

Southern California, a 53-0 winner over Oregon last month in the conference opener for both teams, apparently faces another of the conference's weaker teams in Washington State this Saturday.

The 11th-ranked Trojans, 3-1, will go into the game in Seattle's Kingdome as a heavy favorite over a Cougar squad that has won but one game in four tries.

Still, Robinson indicated he was afraid of the Cougars' quarterback, junior Jack Thompson.

"Washington State has proven in every game it can score from anywhere on the field," Robinson said, "and it certainly appears Thompson is an outstanding quarterback. You never stop a great passer, you just slow him down."

Thompson threw three touchdown passes and connected on 19 of 25 passes in the Cougars' latest outing, a 45-6 rout of Idaho.

But the Trojans have looked awesome both offensively and defensively in their past three games, following an opening 46-25 loss to Missouri.

In their last victory, a 55-0 mauling of Iowa, USC's passing game was extremely effective, as starting quarterback Vince Evans completed eight of his 15 passes for 94 yards and a touchdown, while reserve Rob Hertel connected on 10 of 13 for 167 yards and a school record-tying four touchdowns. In the meantime, tailback Ricky Bell was gaining 119 yards on 28 carries and Bell's backup, freshman Charles White, ran for 120 yards on 15 carries.

Long Beach plans Grand Prix again

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Despite financial woes in its first running earlier this year, the Long Beach Grand Prix Championship Formula I race has been set again for 1977, officials announced.

The second edition of the event, the only race through city streets in the United States, will be run April 3 of next year, officials said Tuesday.

The Long Beach City Council voted 8-1 to sign the contract enabling the race to be held again, and re-affirmed the provision calling for races through 1985.

A debt of $868,744 reportedly accumulated for the first Formula I race in Long Beach and a prelude Formula 5000 event at the end of last year.

But the promoter of the race, the Grand Prix Association of Long Beach, Inc., settled with most of its creditors for 35 cents cash and 20 cents of Long Beach Grand Prix stock on the dollar, the association said.

This, coupled with the city council's vote to permit the LBGPA to defer the 1976 extraordinary expenses of $86,000, made a second Formula I race possible.

'Pack netters win

Claremont and Ganesha scored wins in San Antonio League girls tennis action Tuesday afternoon.

Claremont downed visiting Upland 5-1, while Ganesha won by the same score over Montclair.

Cathy Claussen, Connie Elwell and Diane O'Brien all won their singles matches to pace Claremont. The long Upland win came as Linda McKeon and Mug Ogg won their doubles match.

Singles wins by Doreen Lesinsky and Monica Mello led Ganesha past Montclair. The Montclair point came when Jamie Anderson won her singles match.

The Claremont girls are now 6-0 on the year and 2-0 in SAL action. Ganesha is now 1-0-1 in league, while Upland stands at 5-1 on the season and 1-1 in SAL matches. Montclair is winless at 0-2 in SAL play.

Ganesha will host Claremont on Thursday in an important league match.

Devil grid club to meet

The Pomona High Football Boosters Club will be holding a benefit dance Saturday night at the Pomona Moose Lodge.

The event will run from 8 to 12 p.m. All parents of Devil players and any other interested adults are invited to attend.

Tickets will be $3 for singles and $5 for couples. They will be available at the door Saturday night.

Monies raised by the dance will go towards the Pomona High athletic program.

Mountie CC team to host Cerritos

Mt. San Antonio College's unbeaten cross country team will finally return home Friday after recording five straight wins on the road.

The Mounites swept a tri-meet last Friday at Orange Coast College, topping San Diego Mesa 28-31 and host Orange Coast 18-42. That left the locals with a perfect 3-0 South Coast Conference mark.

They will be running against Cerritos at 3 p.m. Friday on their home course.

Pomona's Barry Boettcher ran his best time of the season last week to help the Mounties score the two triumphs. Boettcher recorded a 20:48 clocking. Billy Jones (20:38) and David Tillery (20:39) were the top Mountie runners.

Following this Friday's meet with Cerritos, the Mounties will have a showdown battle with powerful Grossmont on Oct. 15. That meet will be at Grossmont.

The SCC finals are slated for Nov. 2 at Fullerton JC.

Boyer seeks St. Louis job

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Another hero of yesteryear, Ken Boyer, has thrown his hat into the ring as a candidate to manage the St. Louis Cardinals.

But the 45-year-old Boyer, currently the field boss of the Cards' top farm club, concedes a successor to Red Schoendienst may be chosen from outside the National League baseball team's organization.

"I have no way of knowing what his reaction was," said Boyer after talking Tuesday with club president August A. Busch Jr., following the firing of Schoendienst.

"I think he may even have been startled that I asked," Boyer suggested, "but I just wouldn't want to live with myself this winter if they went out and hired somebody else without my having asked."

Cards General Manager Bing Devine, who informed Schoendienst of the firing, said Boyer's name is on a list of three candidates he has submitted to Busch.

"Boyer is not in any better position than any of the others," Devine said. However, he added, "He is not the heir apparent. No one else from the organization is on that list."

Boyer, the NL's Most Valuable Player in 1964, played 16 seasons in the major leagues, including 11 at third base for St. Louis.

Since retiring as a player in 1969 he has managed at three minor league levels in the Cards' chain, including the last three at Tulsa of the American Association.

"I've been in the organization since 1949 and I feel like I've got Cardinal blood in my veins," he said. "With all the young kids they have here, I'd kind of like to grow up with them."

Busch, 77, said in a statement the decision not to rehire Schoendienst, 53, was based on "our consensus that there is a need for a change."

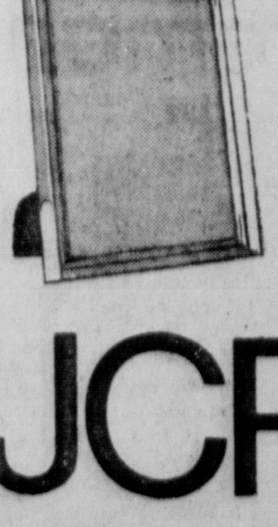

"There are times, regardless of one's capabilities, when a different perspective is in order," the statement said. "Red Schoendienst's distinguished career, both as a player and a manager, are on the record books for all to see."

Schoendienst had managed the Cards since 1965, twice leading them to National League pennants and once to a World Series title during his 12 seasons.

"If you've got the ball players you can manage," he said, alluding to St. Louis' skid during the past season to 72-90, the club's worst record since 1955.

It's a Racquet

THANKS TO CHINO PLAYER Jesse Benavente, the two major titles in his city's first annual tennis tournament are staying home for the year. Benavente won the B singles crown and a share of the doubles championship as the Chino Recreation Department and Tennis Club Tournament wound up Sunday at Chino High.

Ontario's Wade Mayo was the victim in the singles finals, 6-1, 6-2, after Benavente had eliminated Paul Kustel, 6-2, 6-0, in the semis. Kustel's setback denied him a third city championship this year, the Ontario veteran having won both the Montclair and Upland tournaments.

Benavente teamed with Tom Harris to cop the doubles prize in a 6-4, 6-0 finals decision over Bud Ayala and Dick Vaniman.

In the lower divisions Terry Megargee earned the C singles title, 6-4, 6-0, over finals opponent Jim Bamber; Chip Harris and Robert Haag claimed C doubles laurels, 7-5, 6-3, over Steve Vicario and Ed Chiappone; and Jeff Haley was the D men's victor, 7-6, 6-0, over Doug Ramsey.

WINNERS IN A CLAREMONT Tennis Club tournament last weekend lived high on the adage, it's who you know that counts the most. The event was the club's annual Member-Guest Tournament, crowding the Padua Avenue courts with 98 men and 50 women for doubles competition.

Member Kevin Clark and guest Dale Gelgur emerged as the No. 1 twosome in the men's action Sunday, winning the roundrobin series within the top ability level group. First-placers in the premiere women's group Saturday were member Donna Dickinson and guest Cathy Headley.

Other group winners among the men were (member listed first) Roger Skinner and Bob Lind, Maury Flora and Jim Paschal, Barry Franco and Jim Samonte, Jim Chick and Kent Payne, Duke Leong and Don Shafe, Harry Gousha and Bill Grist and Fred Vaugeois and Fred Conly. Triumphant women's duos also included Holly Jang and Barbara Hertz, Sandi Vander Dussen and Kathy Zudama, Chris McHenry and Ann Read and Isabel Louis and Nicki Glozer.

IT'S STILL EARLY in the Claremont city leagues season, and a lot of unbeaten singles players and doubles teams are locked in first place ties. But one ladder has an undisputed leader — 12-year-old Jeff Krieger heading all men's singles entrants.

Little Jeff, one of three junior players admitted to the league, has 40 points after three weeks of play. That's a one-point margin over Rob Weisberg's second place total, while Dennis Robbie and Ralph Spaulding are tied for third with 38 each. Aki Nishimura is fifth with 36 in his bid to repeat his ladder championship of last spring.

Two-way deadlocks exist atop the three-week-old men's and mixed doubles leagues. The men's leaders, each with a perfect 42 points, are the tandems of Jack Verheyden-Dave Griffin and Robbie-Don Church. The four-man switching partnership of Herb Hoskins-Rick Pawley-Jerry Bradley-Tom Helliwell holds third with 39, Enrique Perez and Ignacio Castuera are fourth with 38 and Bob Lindeman and Pao Lie rank fifth with 37. In the mixed Griffin and Peggy Rees share the No. 1 rung with Bob and Cindy Lindeman. Behind them are Bob and Sylvia Connolly and Castuera, 39 each, and Herb and Kate Hoskins, 38.

The two-week women's A doubles standings show a five-way tie for first place between the teams Penny Daoust-Kip Spear, Pat Fiddes-Jeannine Neuer, Eleanor Savage-Regina Schneider, Linda Moore-Diane Stowell and Tammy Kessler-Lydia Smith. B co-leaders are Jean Saelzler-Lorraine Harrison, Carolyn Martin-Laura Casey, Dottie Velie-Joan MacFarland and Paula Pitzer-Georgia McManigal.

Heading the A women's singles league are Daoust, Connolly, Moore, Kessler, Spear and Helen Wang.

MONA WOLFE AND ROB STAHL paired up to win the San Jose Hills Racquet Club's recent mixed doubles tournament at Mt. San Antonio College. Mary Del Welton and Mel Eagle were runners-up, while Roxie Hanseth and Randy Figueroa were consolation winners.

B flight champs were Renee Kline and Maury Varney, runners-up were Sue Baker and Jacques Hamm and consolation victors were Diane Tolosa and Joe Edberg.

In an informal team match last Saturday the club defeated an Arcadia contingent, 21-12. Two teams will represent San Jose Hills in this fall's Foothill League play set to begin Oct. 24.

* * *

VALLEY RACQUET CLUB'S Jack Newman and Al McNair won the club's recent Mixed-Up Doubles tournament. Kathy McNair teamed with Mike Lease for the consolation award, with Kathy maintaining her lead in the club's Grand Prix series.

A similar tournament last week saw Martin Mayland and Nadine Perry topping the field and Micky Ashbrook and Fred Demke taking the runner-up spot. Joe Luce and Theresa Wilson were the winners of Saturday's clinic competition.

LA VERNE'S PARKS and Recreation Department has scheduled tennis lessons for children and adults starting Saturday. Children's beginning classes will convene at 9 a.m. for seven Saturdays and adult beginners will meet at 10 a.m. The adult fee is $12, the youngsters' cost $9. The recreation office is accepting reservations at 2039 Third St.

THE POPULARITY OF DOUBLES can't be denied. Claremont Tennis Club reports that 78 teams are participating in the club's midweek women's ladders. There's an even bigger crowd for Sunday's mixed doubles competition — 87 duos vying on four levels.

Sports briefs

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — Robert Jackson, a 228-pound linebacker from Texas A&M, was named the Associated Press Lineman of the Week for his 27-tackle performance in the Aggies' 14-7 victory over Illinois.

CHOUDRANT, La. — William Mallory "Big Bill" Bagwell, who played two seasons in the major leagues in the 1920s, died at the age of 80.

COMMERCE, Tex. — Terry Dean Allen, an 18-year old freshman basketball player for East Texas State University, died of a cardiac arrest during a practice session.

NEW YORK — Snooze, $8.80, romped to a 5½-length victory over Craze Quilt in the $25,000 Twixt Purse at Belmont Park.

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Jade Prince, a 2year-old son of Meadow Skipper, raced the fastest mile in harness racing history as he won the $62,755 Fayette Pace at Red Mile in 1:54 1-5.

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves were fined $10,000 Tuesday and their first choice in the January free agent draft was taken away by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Braves Owner Ted Turner said.

The decision came on a tampering charge made against the Braves by the San Francisco Giants. The Giants accused the Braves of talking contract with one of their outfielders, Gary Matthews.

Upsets await SAL grid followers

By MAJOR AMOS E. HOOPLE
Peerless Prognosticator

Egad, dear readers, the same forecaster who brought you last week's stunning upset by Bonita High over Royal Oak has a few more chills and thrills in store for you this weekend.

Having concentrated on the Hacienda League in my last go-around, this time I will go out on that proverbial limb to bring you folks a couple stunners in the San Antonio League.

Knowing full well the unsettled nature of that loop, some might say that I'm — heh-heh — barking up the wrong tree in predicting SAL outcomes. But I remain your fearless as well as peerless forecaster and have a couple predictions which will "leaf" you amazed. Kaff-kaff, how's that pun!

For starters, look for not one but two surprises come Thursday night. The famous Hoople method sees Garey pruning Chino by a 18-10 count and, in an even bigger stunner, Ganesha sawing Claremont down to size, 21-19. Har-rumph!

Prep action will pick up on Friday, with SAL wins predicted for Damien (24-21 over Pomona) and Upland (22-6 over Montclair).

In the Hacienda League, the other three tilts on tap for Friday are mere scrubbery compared to the Bonita-San Dimas "giant sequois" at MSAC.

In that battle, look for the Saints to prevail by the narrowest of margins, winning the game by a lone PAT, 7-6. Kaff-kaff!

Other Hacienda foliage has Alta Loma beating Ontario by a 19-0 margin, Walnut taking care of Sierra Vista, 27-14, and Royal Oak blasting Gladstone 29-6.

Onward to Saturday and the college scene. Poor Cal Poly has been thrown in the brier patch again this week by the schedule maker. Look for the Broncos to come out of a thorny situation in Texas with a 49-10 loss at the hands of North Texas State.

Closer to home, La Verne should continue to florish with a 25-20 whipping of Azusa Pacific, but USIU will uproot Claremont-Mudd 24-14. Among the junior colleges, success beckons all three local squads.

MSAC will leave Santa Ana "pining" for a win, as the Mounties will edge the Orange County lads 14-13. Citrus should "stick" it to Palomar by a 27-10 count, and Chaffey will "bark" past Riverside City College, 29-18.

Here's hoping my local forecast has been quite a tree, eh, make that treat, for you football fans! Egad, I think I have become a bit sappy with all these puns!

Switching (ugh!) to the national picture, particular emphasis should be paid this week to the Pac 8 loop, where a full schedule of games looms.

Washington's Huskies and Oregon State will be meeting for the 63rd time on the Beaver's home field. We look for the Huskies to treat their hosts to a rough afternoon while walking away with a 30-17 victory. The Southern California Trojans will pay a visit to Seattle to meet the Washington State Cougars. This should be an easy conquest for the Trojans as their Heisman Award candidate Ricky Bell has a field day. Make it: Trojans 35, Cougars 7.

The California-Oregon meeting will be close with Joe Roth's strong arm spelling the difference as he outduels Oregon's aerial whiz, Jack Henderson. The final score: California 28, Oregon 16. Meanwhile, in the Los Angeles Coliseum a capacity crowd of 93,791 football filberts will be on hand for the 47th game between UCLA and Stanford. The Bruins will start their march toward a second straight Rose Bowl appearance by whipping the Stanford Cardinals, 33-14.

One of the nation's top rivalries brings Oklahoma and Texas together in Dallas. This 71st renewal appears, from the Hoople scouting reports, to be an Oklahoma romp. However, a word of caution — when these clubs meet you can throw past performances and statistics out the window. In a typical Sooner-Longhorn brawl, the Oklahoma lads will prevail, 21-18.

Other matchups featuring top-ranked teams include Michigan-Michigan State; Nebraska entertaining Colorado; Ohio State at Iowa; Oklahoma State vs. Kansas; Georgia at Mississippi; Maryland at North Carolina State; Boston College vs. Florida State; Alabama vs. Southern Mississippi; Illinois against Minnesota, and LSU hosting Vanderbilt.

Here's how the Hoople System calls 'em: Michigan's Wolverines will win the 69th repeat of its storied rivalry with the Spartans, 35-12. Nebraska's Cornhuskers will edge Colorado, 24-17, and Ohio State will have little trouble with Iowa winning by a 24-7 margin.

The Kansas Jayhawks, enjoying one of their best seasons, will trim Oklahoma State 35-12, and in a really Big One for both teams the Texas A&M Aggies will outgun the invading Texas Tech Red Raiders, 33-27. Pittsburgh and their Heisman Award candidate Tony Dorsett will show little mercy to out-manned Louisville, rolling over the Cardinals, 49-0. And in a very important Southeastern Conference mixup, Vince Dooley's Georgia Bulldogs will outsnarl the Mississippi Rebels to win 28-13.

Carter took a 327-yard rushing total into moth balls with him. In his abscence, Saint coach Bob Baiz indicated that he will start Perry Aris.

Aris has played mostly as a defensive back this season, and is one of the tops in the league at that spot. As a running back he has gained 84 yards in 12 carries.

Saint fullback Bob Pleasant is healthy and that alone is enough for the Bonita defense to worry about.

Pleasant has averaged close to nine yards a carry this year, with 275 yards on 35 attempts. How well he will run without Carter in the same backfield will be answered Friday.

Friday's games
Ontario vs. Alta Loma at Chaffey College, 8 p.m.
Bonita vs. San Dimas at MSAC, 8 p.m.
Walnut vs. Sierra Vista at Baldwin Park High, 8 p.m.
Royal Oak vs. Gladstone at Citrus College, 8 p.m.

The Saint passing game has been suspect in the early going, as QB Don Hargett tossed 17 straight incompletions prior to connecting last week vs. Walnut for the first time this year.

Hargett did run the ball well vs. the Mustangs however, and might catch Bonita napping with a double quarterback sneaks.

In all, the game shapes up as a classic matchup between two of the better teams in the CIF 2A Division. That it will be Bonita and San Dimas going at one another is just icing on the cake.

"It's a high-pitched rivalry," noted Saint mentor Baiz. "When our two schools get together it's just like USC-UCLA. I think all the kids approach the game with just a little bit more intensity."

"It will be a tough game, it always is," Bonita coach Pete Lopez said. "San Dimas is a fine football team, we will have to play it pretty straight against them. You can't fool a team as good as they are."

LEO BURKE
Damien fullback

Junior quarterback Dan Marconi directed that offense and contributed some key passing as running backs Leo Burke and Jason Wight churned for most of the Spartan yardage.

Damien was tough defensively throughout the game, limiting the Giants to just one sustained scoring drive. The second Ganesha touchdown came on a razzle-dazzle paly — a 46-yard flanker reverse run by Floyd Williams — on the third down of the series.

HEADED FOR OMS — Shirley "Cha Cha" Muldowney is among the favorites in the Winston World Finals this weekend at Ontario Motor Speedway. She is the only woman licensed for Top Fuel.

'Cha Cha' aims at title

The fastest woman on wheels gets together with the fastest race track for wheels Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Ontario Motor Speedway with the 12th running of the National Hot Rod Association's season-ending Winston World Finals.

The lady is Shirley Muldowney of Mt. Clemens, Mich., whose credentials include a best quarter mile elapsed time of 5.91 seconds, numerous clockings in excess of 240 miles an hour and a Top Fuel victory in the 1976 Springnationals at Columbus, Ohio.

OMS is the site of drag racing's first official five-second elapsed time, its first five-second Funny Car run, its first all-five second Top Fuel qualifying field and its only 240 mile an hour speed for a full bodied car.

Together with a $235,050 purse, $150,000 in Winston bonus money and a field of 300 outstanding cards from the United States and Canada, the combination spells S-U-P-E-R, the name of the event which preceded the World Finals at OMS.

Although Ms. Muldowney will be a focal point for the three-day competition, she is by no means the Top Fuel favorite. That distinction falls to Richard Tharp of Houma, La., the reigning National Champion and heir apparent to the Winston World Championship vacated by Don Garlits.

Should Tharp falter at the wheel of the Candies and Hughes machine, there will be a wealth of talented drivers around to capitalize. In addition to Muldowney they include '74 World Champ Gary Beck of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada; Winternationals '76 champion Frank Bradley of Napa, Calif.; '76 Gatornationals winner James Warren of Bakersfield, Calif.; and Jeb Allen of Santa Rosa, Calif., recent winner of the Fallnationals at Seattle, Wash.

Last year, it took a time of 5.93 seconds to make the 16-car Top Fuel finals and eight cars that ran in the fives didn't make the show. This year, some racers believe it will take a 5.85 to get in and a 5.60 to get the No. 1 spot.

If the track is as good as it was a year ago, the current national record of 5.63 seconds, 250.69 miles per hour will certainly be in jeopardy.

Quality is assured in the other standard NHRA eliminator categories as well, each one involving 16-car fields qualified in 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. sessions on Friday and Saturday.

In Funny Car, Don Prudhomme of Granada Hills, Calif., will be trying to win for the seventh time in eight starts this year, will be trying to repeat as the World Finals winner and will be trying to duplicate his five-second elapsed times and 240 miles an hour speeds of a year ago.

Prudhomme, the winningest driver in NHRA drag racing history with 20 titles, holds the current Funny Car records of 5.97 seconds, 241.53 miles per hour, the latter during the 1975 finals.

His major competition at this year's renewal should come from Gary Burgin of Stanton, Calif., who beat him in the finals of this year's U.S. Nationals at Indianapolis, Ind.; Raymond Beadle of Dallas, Tex., who drove the "Blue Max" Mustang to a similar upset in the 1975 Nationals; Tom McEwen of Fountain Valley, Calif., three times a runner-up to Prudhomme in the last 14 months; and Tom Prock of Utica, N.Y., an overdue four-time national event runner-up.

Champions will also be crowned in PRO Stock, Pro Comp, Competition, Modified, Super Stock and Stock during final eliminations scheduled for noon Sunday.

Oregon's orange and black football team meets the Syracuse orange Oct. 2 at Syracuse, N. Y.

Prudhomme can break his own victory record

When superstar drag racer Don Prudhomme won six of eight Funny Car championships during the 1975 season, incredulous officials were calling it a record which might never be duplicated.

In view of Prudhomme's accomplishments this year, however, that prediction was obviously a bit premature.

The 35-year-old pro from Granada Hills, Calif., the winningest driver in National Hot Rod Association history, can break his own year-old record for victories in a single season by once again outrunning everyone in the sport during the 12th annual Winston World Finals, Oct. 8-10.

Entering that season-ending showdown, Prudhomme has won six times in seven 1976 starts, stumbling only in the finals of the U.S. Nationals where he was upset by Gary Burgin of Stanton, Calif., one of his chief rivals in the World Finals racing at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Over the past two seasons, Prudhomme's U.S. Army-affiliated Chevrolet Monza Funny Car has been in the winners' circle 12 times in 15 events and has been in the finals on 14 occasions against the toughest competition in drag racing.

Before losing to Burgin last Labor Day, he had won seven straight NHRA championship events including the 1975 Winston World Finals in which he recorded the sport's first five-second (5.98) elapsed time in a bodied car.

It was also at the '75 Finals that Prudhomme became the first Funny Car driver to record a speed in excess of 240 miles an hour. He first posted a mark of 241.53 MPH which still stands as the official national record and later hit 240.64 MPH.

But despite his 20 career victories, despite his dominance the last two seasons, despite his recent new elapsed time record (5.97 seconds during Nationals qualifying) and despite the fact that he has posted the eight quickest times in Funny Car history, there are those who still believe Prudhomme is fallible.

Primary among them is Burgin, a second year touring pro who is convinced that he'll be able to match Prudhomme, performance - for - performance, at Ontario even if that includes five-second times and 240 mile an hour speeds.

Among the other Funny Car drivers who could dip into the "fives" and conceivably challenge for the championship are Raymond Beadle of Dallas, Tex., who qualified second to Prudhomme at the Nationals at 6.07 seconds in the "Blue Max" Mustang; Ed "Ace" McCulloch of Fresno, Calif., four times an NHRA national event winner and runner-up to Prudhomme twice this season; Tom Prock of Utica, N.Y., four times a runner-up in the last two years; and Tom McEwen of Fountain Valley, Calif., Prudhomme's former racing partner who has lost in the finals three times in the last 14 months.

However, outside of Burgin the best bets to upset Prudhomme are a couple of Funny Car rookies — Jerry Boldenow of Minneapolis, Minn., and Eddie Pauling of Phoenix, Ariz.

Boldenow will be making only his second national event appearance in the all-new "Moby Dick" Corvette in which he qualified No. 6 at the Nationals at 6.15. Pauling, driving for former Winternationals winner Johnny Loper, qualified third at Indy at 6.10 and second at the recently completed Fall-Nationals at Seattle, Wash., at 6.12.

Champions will also be crowned in Top Fuel, Pro Stock, Pro Comp, Competition, Modified, Super Stock and Stock in noon finals on Sunday. Qualifying is set Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Unser to go for hat trick

Al Unser will attempt a "hat trick" triple win Oct. 16-17 at Riverside International Raceway in the final major road racing weekend in North America this year.

The youngest Unser brother is one of the favorites to win the season finale of the SCCA-USAC Formula 5000 series and is the only driver in that race also entered in two feature races in the International Race of Champions series.

They're both part of the annual California Grand Prix, the traditional climax to a spectacular season of road racing on this side of the Atlantic.

Unser, whose 1976 victories in the Pocono 500 and Milwaukee 200 USAC championship races broke a two-year losing streak on that circuit, is now considered one of America's best road racing drivers.

Unable to win this year's Formula 5000 championship because he missed the first two of seven races in the series, Unser ranks fifth in the point standings with 76 points behind Brian Redman (116), Jackie Oliver and Alan Jones (tied with 84 each) and Unser's protege, Danny Ongais (78).

Unser was one of the first invited to compete in the IROC heats two and three in equally prepared Camaro Z-28s against an invitational field of 11 champion drivers.

Last season, in his IROC debut, Al combined a second place finish at Riverside and a fifth at Daytona to score a sixth place overall in the series. He might have fared even better at Daytona had he not been caught in the "sling-shooting" melee coming off the final turn of the last lap.

Although Unser has made his biggest mark in racing as a USAC championship driver, he is considered by many observers to be one of America's best road racers.

Tickets for the California Grand Prix are on sale at all Ticketron outlets, Wallichs and Liberty Ticket Agencies and at the Raceway ticket office, 22255 Eucalyptus Ave., Riverside, Ca. 92508 (714) 653-1161.

Unique bonus offered in race

A unique $18,000 bonus being offered NASCAR drivers in the 17th annual running of the National 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway Sunday will result in some unusual strategy and pit action, says George Beard, Goodyear's field manager for stock car racing.

The track has divided the first 306 laps of the 334-lap race into nine segments of 34 laps each. There will be a $2,000 payoff to the driver who has led the most laps in each of the nine segments.

But the catch — and here's where the excitement comes in — is that the 34-lap segments won't coincide with regularly scheduled fuel stops on the 1½-mile Charlotte tri-oval.

"Barring a caution flag," he says, "the first fuel stop should come at about 64 laps — or 96 miles into the race. That's just four laps before the windup of the second $2,000 segment.

"And with crew chiefs and drivers going for the lap money, that means that the front-runners will have to pay very close attention — not only on how many laps they may have led, but also on how much fuel they've used.

Tire changes will also play an important role in the race strategy.

"All the crew chiefs and drivers know tires that have been allowed to cool off in the pits are faster than hot tires running on the car. You can bet they will be changing at every opportunity to keep the tires as cool as possible."

Poly harriers host meet

Cal Poly will host its first and last cross country meet of the year with Cal State Los Angeles and Cal State Northridge at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Puddingstone Lake course.

The home meet should give Jim George's crew an estimate of where it stands in the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

"This will be a good test for us," said George. "I think we will know much more about where we are as a team and where we are going after this Saturday's meet."

According to George, "All three teams have good runners and any team could win the meet on a given day."

Last Saturday, in a field of 14 teams, Cal Poly finished sixth, at the Fresno State Invitational.

Mark Lotich was the Broncos' top runner (32:28) as he finished 31st in the competition. Six seconds later Greg Morrison finished 32nd.

Woody gets help?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA Coach Terry Donahue is wondering why Ohio State's Woody Hayes complained about officiating in Saturday's 10-10 tie between their two football teams at Columbus.

In Donahue's words, "Some of those officials have to be related to Woody by marriage."

Hayes said Theotis Brown was illegally in motion when he took the ball on a fake punt and ran for a first down that kept the Bruins going to their only touchdown of the game.

"I didn't notice he was in motion," Donahue said Monday.

"I'm surprised he (Hayes) didn't notice all the clips" during Ohio State kick returns, added Donahue.

"I'm surprised he didn't mention that the official who ruled James Sarpy's catch incomplete came from 25 yards away to overrule the official who was right there."

Petty keeps money lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough, who won his fourth consecutive grand national stock car race last weekend, leads Richard Petty in points, but Petty has the edge on season money winnings.

NASCAR figures released Monday show Yarborough with 4,050 points, 99 more than Petty with four races to go. Petty leads in money, $271,035 to $264,910.

David Pearson is third with $223,230, followed by Benny Parsons, $186,140; Buddy Baker $169,025.

Poly girls vie tonight

The Cal Poly women's volleyball team visits Cal State Fullerton tonight at 8 p.m. for a match with the Titans. The Broncos (1-1) then head north for games with UC Santa Barbara on Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

The Broncos defeated Cal Poly San Luis Obispo in a best three-out-of-five match Friday by scores of 15-9, 15-8, and 15-11.

Cal Poly Pomona received strong games from hitter/blocker Margaret Rebenar and setters DeDee Ruiz and Becky Bruce. The Broncos averaged six spikes per game from their hitters, while SLO only managed two spikes per game off of the Broncos's good defense.

Archer vaults to 69th spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Archer vaulted from 147th place to 69th on the pro golf money list after picking up $27,000 for winning the Sahara Invitational golf tournament over the weekend.

Archer now has $35,062 on the year, a far cry from making the top 10.

Jack Nicklaus continues to lead the parade with $266,438, Ben Crenshaw is second at $256,321 and Hale Irwin is third at $252,718.

Rounding out the top 10 are Hubert Green, $211,406; J.C. Snead, $192,645; Al Geiberger, $190,184; Ray Floyd, $178,318; David Graham, $176,174; Don January, $162,772, and Jerry Pate, $150,727.

Sponge a help

For the sheerest coverage and easy blending, try applying your foundation with a sponge. Dampen sponge first, squeeze out the excess water, then go to work with a small amount of foundation.

Joyce Brothers

Reason for difficulty

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm finding it almost impossible to exist without my husband who died a year ago. I didn't know how many ways I'd miss him. It isn't as if ours was a perfect marriage, but I was more dependent on him than I realized. I don't know how to handle money or how to get places. I never learned to drive. I'm frightened and ill at ease when I'm out. — B.B.

Dear B.B.: You're suffering not only from the loss of someone you loved, but from the loss of a way of life. This is an unfortunate result of the double standard that still exists to some extent. Women can become totally dependent on men who feel that in order to live up to their role, they must protect and do almost everything for their women. This is just as unfair to the women as it is to the men involved.

It's vital now that you try each day to do more things for yourself. Don't try to change your whole way of living in one day, but do a little at a time and try to live one day at a time. Each new accomplishment, no matter how small, will give you more courage and self-confidence. Don't worry if you don't do something perfectly the first time. Remember, without practice no one ever mastered balancing a budget, reconciling a bank statement, driving a car, or even ordering in a restaurant.

Look on this as an exciting challenge and you may even enjoy the learning. After all, how you face various tasks in life depends, to a great degree, on your attitude.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I think we must have one of the most cynical, sophisticated 12-year-old around. It's partly our fault, but I think it's also that he's always been around adults and he's taken on their attitudes. My husband is in politics and I think maybe our son reflects his views. We worry because he is an only child but we're unable to have more children. — C.M.

Dear C.M.: Don't worry about the fact that you have only one child. First-born and only children are consistently in the upper I.Q. groups and among students in the professional schools and in college and universities with high entrance requirements.

Your "only child" need not be spoiled. When an only child turns out to be a selfish, spoiled, unpleasant adult, it's probably because he is reflecting the values of his parents, rather than because there were no other children in the family. Those same parents might have had four or five spoiled, selfish, unpleasant children who would grow into unpleasant adults.

I think you can counteract some of the problems in raising one child by arranging more contact with children near his own age. This might even include having overnight guests and having friends on holidays.

Children emulate and form themselves in the image of their parents so your son probably is reflecting his father's cynical views. It's important to remember, however, that children do need some heroes in order to grow up happy, healthy and well adjusted. They need this so they may build and reinforce their own self-esteem. Maybe your husband is the hero for your son.

Cal Poly sets 'Charlie Brown'

Cal Poly will present repeat performances of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" in the University Theater at 8 p.m. Oct. 15 and 16. Ralph McCormic directs the musical based on the comic strip, "Peanuts."

Charlie Brown, the forlorn loser with the "failure face" is the central figure in this expose of the irrational fears, frustrated hopes and flights of imagination of children.

All of Charlie Brown's friends are here — Snoopy, the dog who sleeps on top of his dog house and pretends he's a World War I flying ace; Lucy, the crabby girl with a self-assurance unusual in an age shattered by doubt; Linus, brilliant and sophisticated, who finds security in his blanket; the blithely uncomplicated little Patty; and Schroeder, the Beethoven freak.

The cast includes Rick Barton of Walnut, Kevin McDonald and Lew Crouse of La Puente, Mike Beddoe of San Diego, Jeanine Lambeth of Covina and Laurie Borchardt of Baldwin Park.

Auction of art slated

The Chino Valley Prospectors Club will hold an art show and auction in the Chino Community Building Friday night. The preview will start at 7:30, the auction at 9.

The public is invited to attend without charge. A door prize will be offered, and coffee and cookies served.

The collection includes oils, watercolors, lithographs and graphics by some of the world's leading artists. Each work is signed, numbered and framed.

Gallery to open exhibit

Gallery 8 at Harvard and Bonita avenues, Claremont, will open an exhibition Saturday of watercolors and sculpture by William Abbott, Elizabeth B. McNaughton and Marguerite Staude.

The exhibit will open with a reception for the artists from 5 to 7 p.m. The show will continue through Nov. 7.

Abbott started painting while a practicing architect. Since 1961 primary work has been with architectural design and illustration. He has continued his art with the expression of many subjects in transparent watercolors. Architectural illustration has given him a foundation in detail, form, shading and shadow, while permitting the freedom of watercolor strokes.

Mrs. McNaughton, a graduate of Chouinard Art Institute and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, will exhibit watercolors from a recent trip to Tahiti. She has done many portraits on commission.

Miss Staude has produced a wide variety of work, principally sculpture. She is best known for designing and building the Chapel of the Holy Cross in Sedona, Ariz., which won the Award of Honor from the American Institute of Architects in 1957.

Child star growing up

By Dick Kleiner

BUDAPEST, Hungary (NEA) — It's been ten years since "Oliver!" and time has moseyed along.

The little boy who played the title role — young, innocent, beautiful blonde curls and blue eyes — has grown up. Today, Mark Lester is 18, tall, slender and mature.

He's playing the dual title roles in "The Prince and the Pauper," which is shooting here. His eyes are still blue but his hair has darkened. The beauty is gone, replaced by a rather strange handsomeness.

During the course of the filming here, he celebrated his eighteenth birthday. Director Richard Fleischer gave him a stuffed dragon, the make-up man gave him a fancy mirror — and Oliver Reed, one of his co-stars, engaged a girl for him for the evening.

"She disappeared — fortunately," Lester says. He blushed a bit as he told the story.

He was delighted to have reached that milestone, which is an important one for an English youth.

"I am now," he says, "of legal age to vote and to drink and, of course, to go to jail. You can do everything at 18 in England, except drive a juggernaut."

(A juggernaut is what the English call our big tractor-trailer rigs. You have to be 21 to drive a juggernaut.)

Lester drinks and smokes and he says he's been with a girl, a young art student, for a year and a half.

The biggest thing that happened to him when he turned 18 was that his chaperone left. According to English law, a sub-18 has to be accompanied, when working, by a chaperone. She was on the set with him at all times. The day he had his eighteenth birthday, she went back to England, and he's now on his own.

Mark Lester began acting when he was five. From then on, he went to stage school, not regular school. His big break was "Oliver!" — he was eight when it started, nine when it finished.

"When I was ten," he says, "I began going to a normal school, not stage school. So, from then on, I had a pretty ordinary childhood. I had school friends who treated me like they treated everybody else. And, still today, 80 per cent of my friends are outside of show business."

MARK LESTER

He was wearing a black sweatshirt with the legend "Pennsylvania State University" across the front. He said his sister had sent it to him, because sweatshirts from American colleges are all the rage now in England.

He ran his fingers across the letters on his sweatshirt as he talked.

"I want to stay in acting," he says. "It's really all I know. I've done a little work on the stage, but after a week I got bored. I think I'll stick to film."

This is his first experience in a country as exotic as Hungary, and he's enjoying it.

"I haven't had too much chance to sightsee," he says. "I have very few days off. When I do have one, I usually go somewhere and have a long lunch, although I don't much care for Hungarian food. I've heard that the Hungarians are required to send their best produce to Russia.

Back home in England, Lester still goes to school, primarily because he wants to learn another language.

Rhythm and blues superstar displays an enticing elegance

By Stan Mieses

It's not easy, being one of the handsome young men of rock and roll. Quite clearly, Robert Palmer is just that. Palmer is also the Great White Hope of a record company that's made its mark in the USA with reggae music, and his style has been influenced by that predicament, at least on record. Palmer favors a rhythm and blues sound that's something borrowed and something blue, and he has even recorded reggae, with success. His two albums, "Sneaking Sally Down the Alley" and "Pressure Drop" have developed a solid following here, many of whom are attracted by Palmer's enticing elegance.

I accompanied Robert Palmer to his tailor's during his brief visit to New York recently, because I wanted to know just what makes for enticing elegance. Palmer is preparing for a major U.S. Tour and a third record will be released concurrent to his concert appearances. "I want this to be the definitive," he told designer Jacques Bellini.

We sat in Bellini's upstairs chambers, reserved for the special customers who require the designer's personal attention. Bellini has designed for multitudes of stars, and he is quick to namedrop. It is an impressive lot. Robert Palmer likes that kind of company.

Palmer wore an outfit composed of a crisp white shirt, lime green V-neck sweater with white piping, and snug, white gabardine trousers. Elegant. I also noticed that Palmer kept all his personal effects — money, keys, lighter, etc. — in a manila envelope which he hand-carried so that, I assumed, his pants pockets wouldn't bulge. Enticing.

Palmer, Bellini, and Palmer's manager, a strong-willed woman named Connie deNave, were sitting around a large round table dotted with filled brandy snifters when we joined the conversation.

"I want the rhythm section to be dressed exactly alike," said Palmer.

"And the bongo player?" asked the accented Bellini.

"Separate."

"And the three singers, alike again!" Jacques was very enthusiastic.

Bellini explained, with great hand-flourish: "It has to combine, all co-ordinated with colors, with him," he directed this to Palmer's manager, "at the top, like steps up to a temple. Only one outfit, it's a freak-out," he said disparagingly. "You turn around and you are a complete different. It's a love song, a pep song."

"Jack," Miss deNave cut in, "when Robert sings, it's like an intercommunication with himself. When you say 'I've got four outfits,' I don't need it. He's only been wearing very handsome suits."

"I wore a black jumpsuit of yours once," said Robert to Jacques.

"Yes, a jumpsuit. I will make for you," Bellini said, draining and refilling his glass, but not sooner than Palmer. "I don't want you to be a stranger in your own clothes. Please, walk for me."

Palmer lit a Dunhill cigarette with a Dunhill lighter, and reluctantly rose and paced the room back and forth. Bellini jumped out of his chair. "No!" he shouted. "You must walk with your head up! Don't ever be afraid of people. You must give light! You must be Con Edison for the zoo!"

A blonde jet-set type stuck her head through the velvet curtain, and motioned to Bellini. "Jill St. John is waiting downstairs, but I don't care," he said. "She doesn't have an appointment. You do. Now, what about the girls?"

"The girls are sexy, but not sh-boom," Palmer said to the designer.

"Hm. For you, what about a rust satin suit?"

"Rust yes, satin no."

"I want to put you in earth colors. You are too skinny for black. It makes you," he turned his back to us, and wheeled around, "too dramatic. I make two suits, one jumpsuit, rust and chocolate brown."

"I don't know," said Palmer. "It's very American. What about rust and lime green?"

* * *

Elton John's admission of bi-sexuality in print comes as no surprise to those who have been near him for years without seeing women around. In fact, I was surprised that the confession brought arched eyebrows to anyone. Is the sexual preference of pop stars really hot copy, or is the magazine with the interview drumming up this hype? I sincerely say, who cares. Keep the details. . .The Alcot Convalescent Home in Los Angeles uses disco music as part of its therapy. According to Bell Yarmish, administrator, many of the home's stroke victims find music of all varieties "a marvelous opener. . .whether they have mental or physical problems. Music is the one thing they will understand.". . .Along with a new release from Eric Clapton, "No Reason to Cry," RSO Records will release classic Cream and Blind Faith lps previously unavailable in the U.S. . . . New group, "Boston," plays some exciting hard rock. . .Hall & Oates' Abandoned Luncheonette Album re-released and doing well on the strength of their re-released single, "She's Gone." Suddenly, that song has become a popular 'cover' song for many R&B groups . . . The Monkees Greatest Hits are also on the charts . . . Wild Cherry, who own the No. 1 hit single "Play That Funky Music," are an enthusiastic bunch in concert.

Odetta set at MSAC

The America Sings Series at Mt. San Antonio College will open Oct. 17 with recitals by Odetta, termed "America's queen of folk music." The programs will be held in the Social Science Center at 4 and 7:30 p.m.

Her repertoire will include work songs, Negro spirituals, blues, children's songs, ballads and folk melodies.

Odetta has appeared in almost every European country, Japan, Israel and the Soviet Union. Critics have called her America's "outstanding singer."

Originally trained in opera at Los Angeles City College, she left the field to develop a unique style which includes the best elements of gospel and soul.

She "preaches a bit," she says, and often opens the floor to discussion. "We need as much putty, spit or glue as possible to bring us together," she says.

She has recorded 15 albums, and she appeared in the 1961 version of William Faulkner's "Sanctuary."

Series tickets are $10.20 for general admission and $5.10 for students. Individual tickets, $4 for general admission and $2 for students, may be obtained at the MSAC Community Services Office. Phone and mail orders may be charged to Master Charge or BankAmericard.

QUEEN OF FOLK — Odetta, called "America's queen of folk music," will present a concert in the Social Science Center at Mt. San Antonio College at 4 and 7:30 p.m. Oct. 17. Tickets are $4 general and $2 for students. They are on sale at the Community Services office.

JOHNNY WONDER

A horse wears shoes for very nearly the same reasons you wear shoes — to protect its feet from injury and wear.

A horse's shoe is a kind of metal plate that is shaped to fit around the edges of the horse's hoof to keep the hoof from splitting on hard or rocky roads.

The horseshoe is held in place with six or eight horseshoe nails. But since the nails go only into the horny hoof, this doesn't hurt the horse at all.

A horse's hooves are really thick toenails. They are made of the same kind of tough material your toenails are made of. The hooves grow and must be trimmed and the metal shoes reset or replaced every few weeks.

There are many kinds of horseshoes. Race horses, for example, wear special horseshoes made of very light metal that may wear out after just one race. Horses that run only in soft grasslands sometimes do not need shoes at all. People who shoe horses are called "farriers."

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, Ca 95061.
